An Iowa Story

The Iowa Development Commission has recently published some facts about the origin and development of the "Iowa Corn Song" which we give you below from the Commission's bulletin:

A SONG IS IOWA'S CALLING CARD

When the boys start whooping it up their favorite tune is a rollicking ditty that puts a bounce in the house. It is called the "Iowa Corn Song" and has become Iowa's musical calling card.

We're from Ioway, Ioway;
State of all the land,
Joy on every hand;
We're from Ioway, Ioway;
That's where the tall corn grows!

From Glasgow to Moscow, from Savannah to Singapore, the recipe is the same: mix hale and hearty folk with the rhythmic ring of this tune from the rolling prairieland of the midwest and eyes light up, hands bounce, and feet jump. And invariably in most any place there is someone who has tried it.

Conventioneers especially know the Corn Song. It is perhaps to the mirthful broadcasting of these nomads and certainly to two men, John T. Beeston and George Hamilton of Des Moines, that the song owes its fame.

The words of the Corn Song have had quite a time getting into their current shape and the exact order of events still is a little foggy. It is believed that the lyrical life of the song began one day back in 1921 when the Za-Ga-Zig Temple Shriners of Des Moines were en route to an international conclave at Los Angeles.

George E. Hamilton was with the group and put down a chorus to the music of the old song, "Traveling." The Iowans learned to sing it and before the convention was over "We're from Iowa . . ." had captured the convention.

Another Shriner, John T. Beeston, Des Moines pipe organ builder, also had been attending these conclaves and smarting every time he heard other delegations extol their home state in song. In 1914 he did something about it on the way to the national Shrine conclave in Atlanta, Georgia.

He was bandmaster of the newly organized Shrine band. He took Hamilton's chorus and scored it for a singing band, with solo cornet accompaniment. The Georgians took the singing Iowans to their hearts. Beeston recalls that he was besieged for copies of the band score and in 1919 arranged it in manuscript form. Still it was not published.

Following a Shrine conclave at Portland, Oregon, in 1920, the Iowa Corn Song leaped into popularity. Beeston was swamped with requests from places around the globe. At time time he wrote three verses and added a second chorus to the one Hamilton wrote. The first and third stanzas show the Shrine influence, but the second, Beeston says, was written "to poke fun" at other states bragging up their attractions. It reads:

You may think we blow our trumpets,
we don't mean to "throw the bull,"
Our horn's the horn of plenty and by gosh it's always full.
We do not boast of scenery tho we never heave a sigh,
But our farmers ride in limousines while the corn grows mountains high.

The chorus he added is the one for which the Corn Song is known. It is, in its original form:

We're from IOA, IOA
Best in all the land,
Joy on every hand,
We're from IOA, IOA,
That's where the tall corn grows.

When the Imperial Council of Shriners of North America met in Des Moines in 1921, the Corn Song rose to its grandest fame which has steadily grown with the years. The original song was printed exclusively for the Shrine Temple and copies privately sold by members, with receipts being turned over to the band. The song was copyrighted by Beeston in 1921.

A year before, however, two other Des Moines men had the song printed and offered for public sale. It differed in that its verses were devoid of the Shrine influence and the phrase changed from "We're from I-O-A" to "We're from I-O-Way." The tempo also changed from 6/8 time, as Beeston arranged it, to 4/4 time. This version was copyrighted in 1920.

The Corn Song lyrics sung today are a composite and which is the right set is a moot question. But if use makes the authenticity, then the words of John T. Beeston of Des Moines are the right words because they are most widely used.

National Debt

Our national debt is bigger than the comprehension of man. It stands at over $250 billion. Yet only a little more than one billion minutes have passed since the birth of Christ. — Boone News-Republican.

Wiping Out Gambling In Iowa

Without deviation, Attorney General Robert L. Larson of Iowa thus far in his term of office has stuck by the declaration that he is going to wipe out gambling in Iowa. He has been constantly bringing pressure on county attorneys and sheriffs to that end.

He reiterated that statement again last week, when the rumor went out that there might be a change of policy in the attorney general's office.

In view of the great assortment of attitudes on the part of Iowans in regard to gambling, his announcement will be received enthusiastically by those who are opposed to gambling in any form, to the other extreme of complete disapproval by those who want things to run "wide open."

Passing over the moral and legal aspects of the subject, The Monitor wishes to point out that gambling is thoroughly uneconomic. It seems that those who can afford to gamble know when to quit. But those who can ill afford to gamble are the ones who persist in doing so. Merchants know that the confirmed gambler is a poor risk in every respect. Money which should go for the material comforts of himself and his family, goes for the turn of the cards or the roll of the dice.—Wright County Monitor.

Wright County T. B. Assn. Contributes $100 To Streptomycin Research

Research to determine the value of the drug streptomycin in the treatment of tuberculosis is furthered by a contribution of $100.00 from its Christmas Seal funds by the Wright County Tuberculosis Association.

In announcing this action, Mr. C. W. Sankey, association president, stated that the research program will be directed by the American Trudeau Society, medical section of the National Tuberculosis Association.

The appropriation by the Wright County Association, with similar grants from other tuberculosis associations in Iowa, will help carry forward research begun with the discovery of streptomycin in 1944, but handicapped by lack of funds.

Through investigation carried on to date, the drug is known:

1. To have definite effect on the course of some forms of tuberculosis in man which no other drug has had.
2. To be effective for a limited period.
3. To prevent the growth of tubercle bacillus, the germ which causes tuberculosis, rather than kill it.
4. To have certain "toxic" effects on the patient.

With an enlarged national research program, it is hoped that information will be gained concerning streptomycin or a similar substance which will result in more effective treatment of tuberculous patients and will speed the eventual eradication of this communicable disease.

"Injun" Summer in Iowa

It's about time for "Injun" Summer in Iowa.

How we all enjoy those lazy, hazy days! Picnics in the woods. Bonfires for the kids at night. Warm, easy afternoons just sitting on the back porch.

"Everything seems to slow down for "Injun Summer", says my cousin Ed, who's slowed down most of the time, anyway.

Maybe that's the best thing about this time of year. It slows us down. We mellow a little; take everything more moderately.

That same principle of moderation is good in our daily lives and habits, too. It's one reason why a mild, temperate glass of beer or ale is my favorite beverage—and that of so many other Iowans.

Moderation in our habits, our opinions, and even in our prejudices, is good for all of us—in "Injun" Summer, and year 'round.

Social Security Benefits in Area Show Jump of 12%

Wright county recipients of federal old-age and survivors insurance benefits shared in total payments of $30,788 dispensed through the Fort Dodge Social Security office during June, the last month for which figures have been compiled by the Social Security Administration.

Counties in the Fort Dodge area, 11 in all, had a total of 1,830 active beneficiaries drawing checks in June, compared to 1,556 for the same month last year. Total payments for the month were up nearly $4,700 over those in 1948, a 12 per cent increase.

Bulk of the payments through the Fort Dodge office went to 778 retired workers, age 65 or older, who received $16,649. Other recipient groups were 279 retired workers' wives, 65 or older; 119 widows with children under 18; 513 children of retired or deceased workers; 138 widows, 65 or older; and three aged dependent parents.

An additional 291 persons who had established their eligibility for benefits were not paid in June because they had returned to work in employment covered by social security.

Besides the monthly benefits, during the last year lump sum payments were made to the survivors of 117 workers in the Fort Dodge area who died leaving no one immediately eligible for monthly payments.

Clifford W. Swedlund, manager of the Fort Dodge office, reminds Wright county residents that to avoid loss of benefits it is important to contact the social security office when a worker becomes 65, even if he doesn't intend to retire; and upon the death of a wage earner.

MAIN STREET

By George C. Hansen

R. E. Lee Aldrich, who says that next February he will have lived for 70 years on the home place five miles south and a mile east of Belmond, dropped into the office last weekend with an interesting sidelight on last Thursday's editorial account of the "Iowa Corn Song."

Lee recounts that he was a classmate of the song's author, George E. Hamilton, at Northern Iowa Normal School in Algona in 1889-90. He tells that Hamilton was quite a student leader and social light at the now defunct institution, and an amateur musician of considerable ability.

Whereas the Iowa Development Commission sets as the probable birthdate of the song the year 1914, Lee says he himself heard George Hamilton and student groups headed by Hamilton sing the renowned "Ioway" song 'way back in 1890. So it appears that the familiar words are nearly a quarter century older than the Development Commission credits them with being.

Not only Belmond fans, but larion partisans as well, com- nted Friday night on the ap- rent brevity of the second arter of the Cowboy-Bronco cas. Even one of the officials s heard to comment, "Golly, at seemed like a short first lf." Had they not felt so essed for time (they'd been in- rmed only seconds remained), e Belmond boys might have en more successful in their oring efforts in the closing oments of the half. We're not ying time was actually called o soon; but didn't those min- es go fast?

Clarion took three plays to score at the start of the third period — and Belmond's march down the field after the kickoff killed all the rest of the quarter. Maybe the fact that no time-outs were called, so only actual playing time was involved, made the stanza seem abbreviated.

Kanawha Farmer Fatally Hurt In Crash; Another Man Injured

Exact Cause of Accident Saturday Eve Not Known

Two Kanawha farmers sustained serious injuries in a head-on auto collision that occurred Saturday evening about two miles south of Kanawha about 9:45 o'clock. Gerald Johnson, driver of one of the cars, died of his injuries about 3:45 a. m. Wednesday.

Art Rietema, son of Fred Rietema of Kanawha, and Gerald Johnson were each driving alone when the accident took place. Just how the collision happened is not known, but it has been learned that the lights on Mr. Rietema's car were not on at the time the cars struck.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Prelip came upon the scene of the accident as they were returning from Kanawha to their farm home. Medical aid and an ambulance were summoned from Belmond and the two men were rushed to the hospital here.

Johnson sustained a fractured skull and a serious brain injury. Rietema, while his condition is not deemed critical, suffered multiple injuries which included a basal skull fracture, fractured jaw, crushed knee cap and fractured bones in his upper right leg and foot.

Mr. Rietema is a well known farmer of the Kanawha community. Mr. Johnson only recently moved here from South Dakota and had been working for Tom Whitty. Johnson, 22, was married and the father of three children. Fulton Funeral Home today is taking the body to Johnson's home, Gary, S. D, where last services will be held.

CORN GLEANERS NOTE

Supt. Don Faris announced Wednesday that there will be no further dismissal of school classes, starting Monday, to allow students to assist in picking up corn. With school closed today and tomorrow while teachers are attending their fall state convention in Des Moines, the students will have three days free this weekend that can be spent in the fields.

Corn Reseal Time Limit Extended to November 30

The Wright county PMA office has been notified that the 1948 corn reseal program has been extended until Nov. 30, 1949. This extension is due to the fact that storage bins were not erected early enough to take all the corn that farmers wished to have had delivered, necessitating more corn to be resealed on the farm.

Because of the busy season and large amount of corn to be resealed it was impossible to have this completed by Oct. 31, 1949. Wright county PMA now has sufficient storage in nearly all of the delivery points of the county that they can accept delivery from those who still wish to deliver.

Anyone who has 1948 corn under loan or Purchase Agreement that has not been resealed or delivered should contact the county PMA office at Clarion.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Mrs. Aeiko Blau entered Oct. 29 as a medical patient.

Arthur S. Rietema of Kanawha entered Oct. 29 as an accident patient.

Mrs. Harm Suntken of Meservey entered Nov. 2 for surgery.

Mrs. Hershel Morris of Kanawha entered Oct. 28 for surgery.

Arthur Jenison entered Oct. 29 as an accident patient.

Services at Goodell For Nora Christie Anderson

Nora Christie Anderson, once a Belmond resident a number of years ago, passed away last Friday at New York City. She was a daughter of Bruce and Mary Jane Christie and sister of the late Mrs. Fred Bachman and late Mrs. Leonard Lathrop.

Relatives of Mrs. Anderson now living in this vicinity are nieces Mrs. Ed Nuehring of Belmond and Mrs. Robert Roths of Klemme and nephew Harty Lathrop.

Following cremation, Mrs. Anderson's remains were to be shipped to Belmond, followed by burial in Amsterdam cemetery at Goodell. Persons wishing to learn the time of the graveside services should call Fulton Funeral Home.

Colts Scored 137 Points, Held Foes to 14 to Keep Card Clean

At the conclusion of the third year of junior high football, the success of the program is very apparent in the unbeaten record compiled by the Colts this fall. Coach Jim Scott's lightweights amassed a total of 137 points in racking up their five victories and allowed their opponents only 14.

Garner was the only team that succeeded in crossing the Colts' goal line, and the Cardinal Chicks could find small consolation in their two tallies when compared with the 11 TD's pushed over by the Belmond team in their two meetings.

The Colts' season sums up as follows:

Belmond 20, Britt 0
Belmond 31, Garner 0
Belmond 27, Britt 0
Belmond 47, Garner 14
Belmond 12, Forest City 0

Coach Scott will lose some key men from his squad by graduation to the 9th grade, but expects some of the smaller boys to develop sufficiently by next to fill the gaps capably.

Three outstanding backs will advance to the varsity squad: Arnette TerHark, Gary Brothers and Gene Mehl. Next year's Colts will also particularly miss the presence of Larry Nelson, guard; Dick Kling, tackle; Malcom O'Connor, end; and Ray Busick, center.

Funeral Held on Monday For Mrs. Emma Smith, 77

Funeral services for Mrs. Smith of Meservey were held Monday from the Reformed Church of that community. Born Oct. 9, 1872, Mrs. Smith had lived just 20 days past her seventy-seventh birthday at the time of her death lasts Saturday.

Rev. E. Kampmann was in charge of the services, which were conducted by Fulton Funeral Home. Burial was in Meservey cemetery.

Mrs. Smith was a former resident of Meservey, where her husband was postmaster for many years. She is survived by four sons: Hugh of Wisconsin; Senor of Mason City, Harry of Chicago and Mel of Meservey; and two daughters: Ruth of Wisconsin and Esther—Mrs. Arnold Groen—of Meservey.

Gambling Devices In County "Out" By Sheriff Order

Wright county law enforcement officials are cooperating 100 per cent with Attorney General Robert L. Larson's statewide crackdown on gambling, according to Sheriff Roy Wilson.

Sheriff Wilson informs The Independent that he has sent an order to all peace officers of the county directing them to make arrests in all cases of gambling violations and guaranteeing that prosecution will follow.

"This order covers slot machines, punch boards, 'joy jars' and all other types of gambling devices," the sheriff states.

He adds that merchants and clubs of the county have been complying with the shut-down without exception and there has been no evidence of any gambling devices since the "full compliance" order went out the first of the week.

AT COUNTY MEETING

Mrs. August Berghefer, Mrs. Jane Svendsen, Miss Cecelia Holtzbauer, Mrs. Violet Wagner, Mrs. Lorraine Myers and Mrs. Jean Bamford attended the Wright county American Legion Auxiliary meeting at Dows last week Tuesday. There was a potluck dinner at noon followed by a business meeting and program.

Educator Tells PTA of Need For Reorganization of Schools

Needs for school reorganization were impressively outlined to a small but interested audience at Monday's Parent-Teachers association meeting at the high school by Cameron M. Ross of the state department of education.

As director of the department's division of administration and finance, Mr. Ross is keenly aware of the shortcomings of Iowa's present system of drawing school districts; and he expressed the opinion that the state's present total of 4750 districts "is about 4,000 too many."

In the above total are included rural, township, consolidated, and town and city independent districts. Members of the boards of education in these over-lapping districts actually outnumber the teachers, said Mr. Ross; and the jealousy shown by many of these board members in regard to their authority is one of the big stumbling blocks facing effective reorganization.

Considering the familiar one-room rural schools—which have diminished in number from 12,000 to 4,000 in the past 15 years—Mr. Ross said many or the major faults of Iowa education lay with them.

Small rural schools with near the minimum of five pupils are economically inefficient because the teachers could properly teach more children; and large ones of 25 to 30 students present the instructor with the discouraging task of training more youngsters than they have time for.

Basic skills tests which have been presented throughout the state to grade school students in the last year or so reveal that rural school students trail their town and city cousins in learning by an average of eight to 10 months. Consequently, country students entering town and consolidated high schools are often overwhelmed by the seemingly advanced nature of the study they are then introduced to and many drop out.

Still other country students

Clarion Comes From Behind Twice To Beat Belmond in 19-12 Thriller

A couple of speed merchants named Dick Rohrer and Jerry Wion proved too rough for the Bronco defense to handle last Friday night with the result that Clarion chalked up another in its long series of victories over Belmond, 19 to 12.

It was a hard-fought tussle in which the visitors twice had to come from behind, but they had the zip when it was needed. Bob Redmond, Duane Trager and Jack Riggs kept the Cowboys on edge with their own running demonstrations, and Bob Berns hit for eight out of 13 passes. However, the Broncs lacked the push to complete one long drive and that proved the margin of defeat.

On the fourth play of the game, Wion angled off his left tackle to go all the way from his own 42-yard line, but an offside penalty nullified the score. On the very next play George Mechem fumbled and Belmond recovered the ball on the Clarion 45.

Aided by a pair of spot passes, Berns to Watermiller and later to Riggs, the Broncos drove downfield for a tally. Trager punched the last nine yards on a couple of slashes at the line but failed to get the pigskin over on a run for the extra point. So just past midway of the first period, Belmond led 6-0.

After Trager's kickoff, the Cowboys demonstrated their determination to square accounts by smashing to pay dirt in a series of 10 consecutive plays. Rohrer carried six times in this series and culminated his exhibition by going 13 yards on his two final totes to reach scoring territory. Mechem's kick split the uprights to put Clarion in front 7-6.

Pat Porter's kickoff was downed by Riggs on the

Ballots Piling Up For Marlys Jean In Beauty Contest

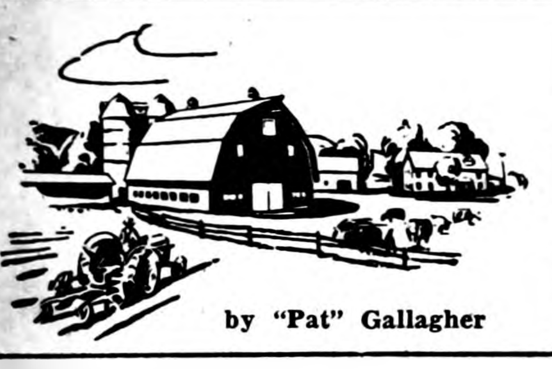
Ballots for Marlys Jean Thompson, Belmond's entry in the Lux soap contest to select the nation's most beautiful 15-year-old miss, are flowing in at a good rate. Her father, Ray Thompson, reports that a number of new voting locations have been added to the list published last week—and that relatives of the family from as far away as California, Washing and Montana are rallying to the cause.

Besides Ray's Body Shop, Spurling's cafe and C. C. Benson' office, Lux wrappers with Marlys Jean's name on the back can be left at the New Belmond theatre, Dr. A. M. Nelson's office or any of the grocery stores in town. Ray's private contest provides for award of a free auto wax and polish job to the person casting the most votes for Marlys Jean at the Body Shop.

The youthful Belmond beauty is competing against six other misses from this area for the honor of representing radio station KGLO, Mason City, in the national contest. Ballots must be cast by Saturday, Nov. 14, to receive consideration.

CONES FOR VOTES

Spurling's Cafe is climbing aboard the Marlys Jean Thompson bandwagon by offering its own special inducement to bring in votes for their beauteous part-time waitress. The cafe promises a free ice cream cone for every voter placing three wrapper-ballots in the restaurant's box—with a half-gallon of ice cream going to the individual casting the largest total number of votes.



Reporting Farm Doings

by "Pat" Gallagher

The Independent is inaugurating with this issue a column of news and "gossip" expressly for its farm readers. Its success or failure is going to depend in some part upon the readiness or refusal of its farmer friends to contribute bits of information that might be of general interest to rural subscribers. We'll try to get about the countryside and call on as many farms as possible as the weeks go by — but we won't be able to see everybody; and it might be one of you we miss who has a right good story to tell. So if you know of anything or hear of anything that might be of general interest in this column—won't you please tip us off by postal card or by dropping in at the office your next time in town?

Stopped by the Rammer Goeman farm last Friday morning and found both Mr. and Mrs. Goeman busy in their east cornfield picking up down ears. As they had been at it since 8:00 o'clock they seemed to welcome the reporter's arrival as an excuse to leave off their labors for a few minutes. Mr. Goeman says he had 50 acres in corn this year and he estimates the down ears average about 20 bushels to the acre. He and his wife were finding that there are a lot of "stoops per acre" involved in recovering even a fair per cent of that much down corn. Of course, their son has been lending a hand outside of school hours — but Rammer and "the missus" have been picking up the bulk of it.

—RFD—

We discussed just how worthwhile — or otherwise— it might be to hire the corn picked up. Rammer said the two of them can recover about 65 bushels in a day. Allowing themselves 60 cents an hour for an eight-hour day in the field (the price paid high school students) and assuming the corn price to be $1.30 per bushel, that makes $84.50 worth of corn salvaged at a cost of $9.60—or nearly $75 for their day's work. Not too bad!

—RFD—

Rammer points out that he and his wife probably pick up and husk quite a few more ears per hour than most of the youngsters would. Still and all, the kids' efforts in the cornfields should save the farmers quite a chunk of money.

—RFD—

Incidentally, the Goeman brothers (Rammer and Hio) and their late father Tobias, together, have been farming in the same section east of Belmond for some 50 years. And Rammer says he doesn't recall his father ever telling of such a "spoiler" wind as the recent costly gale occurring in all his years of Wright county farming.

—RFD—

Turning stock into fields of down corn is no better than a makeshift answer to the down-corn problem. Good deal of wastage and too much weight walked off. Rammer points that few farmers, at this time of year, have hogs of the proper weight to feed off the fields. His own, he admits, are either sold or too big. Only way to make the weight stick, anyway—he says—would be to have shelter and water in the middle of the field and then hope the critters wouldn't do too much running with their eating.

OVER FOUR BUSHELS PER HOUR was the clip at which both Mr. and Mrs. Rammer Goeman were recovering down corn in their east field last Friday when The Independent photographer interrupted their labors. Rammer figured the two of them were netting about $75 a day on their efforts —as explained in an adjacent column.

—RFD—

Dropped on up the road to see Harold A. Smith and get some dope for a story about his mink for a later issue of the paper. Found him "batching it" since Mrs. Smith was in the hospital following the birth of their third son. Bob is 9 and Jim is 5; the newcomer was born a week ago Tuesday and last Friday was still nameless. Mrs. Smith had told Harold, "Naming boys is in your department. Harold hadn't been able to produce, so far . . He hinted that he was getting a bit tired of eating eggs—apparently he's a chef of limited range.

—RFD—

Talked to Joe Duea about his luck at the Waterloo Meat Animal Livestock Show last week. He had two place-winners and was pretty well satisfied with his showing. According to Joe, the Waterloo show is about as tough as they come. The champion Hereford steer from Kansas City Royal Livestock show could only win the reserve title at Waterloo; and the Angus reserve champion in 4-H club competition at this year's state fair was only good enough for ninth in its weight class.

—RFD—

It's the matter of showing strictly by weight class, rather than breed, that makes the competition so stiff at Waterloo, Joe says. And that's why he was well satisfied with a ninth in the lightweight class (under 950) and a seventh in the 950-to-1050 class. The first entry competed against 43 other animals and the second against 26—of all breeds. Both of Joe's calves were Shorthorns and were tops for their breed in each of their classes.

—RFD—

Alan Duea, Joe's niny-year-old son, made his stock show debut with a little, white Shorthorn calf in the junior lightweight division. Didn't pull down placing prize money, but he came home with a $10 bill and a firm conviction that before too long he'll show 'em a thing or two. He had to buck about 50 competitors with an animal 200 pounds short of the weight limit. Dad thinks he did O. K.

—RFD—

Mrs. Duea's father and brother were also exhibitors. Her brother, Robert Fincham, at present a student at Iowa State, pulled down an 8th place with his Shorthorn entry.

—RFD—

Joe is readying a group of five, including his Waterloo winners, for showing at the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago in December. He doesn't feel he has anything on hand that will repeat the success of Tomahawk" at the 1945 show, in which he walked off with the Grand Champion blue ribbon. But with his animals competing entirely against their own breed he expects they'll do all right—and he has quite high hopes for the group entry.

New '49 Certified Seed Directory Now Available At Request of Farmers

"Know the Seed You Plant," the 1949 Iowa certified seed directory, is now available to farmers on request to the certification office at Iowa State college or from county extension directors.

The directory includes a list of all growers of certified seed in Iowa, their addresses, and the number of acres of each crop which was field-inspected for certification this summer. Its purpose is to help prospective buyers locate sources of certified crop seed.

According to the directory, supplies of certified seed for 1950 planting in Iowa will be available in large quantity.

About 5,500 acres of soybeans were inspected for certification. That includes about 2,000 acres of Adams, the new variety being distributed to farmers for seed increase purposes through county seed distribution committees.

Thirty-nine varieties of corn were certified this year. A total of 14,031 acres passed field inspection. U. S. 13, Ohio C 92, Iowa 4316 and Iowa 4297 were among the corn varieties having the largest acreage inspection.

More than 7,000 acres of reselect Clinton oats and 1,222 acres of Moore barley were inspected.

Real Roses in the Cheeks — You Call That a Handicap?

By BILLY ROSE

When Eleanor and I first moved up to Mt. Kisco, some of our neighbors dropped by to pay their respects, but I didn't encourage these visits. The landed gentry of Westchester are nice enough folk, but they don't talk my lingo. Besides, I see no point in cultivating people who think it's smart to chase a fox.

But a little down the road from us live a couple I cultivate as often as they'll have me. Their names are Fred and Jane Newell. I met them through Eleanor two years ago, and I'll never forget the first night we had dinner at their house.

Jane answered the doorbell. She was pretty all over, and I liked her right away. "Excuse the peasant skirt," she said. "I have a baby penciled in for the fall."

Billy Rose

Fred was in the living room listening to the radio. He had the tweedy look of the good guy in the women's magazine stories. We talked for a couple of minutes before I realized he was blind. He told me he was a writer, and answered my unspoken question by explaining he dictated his stuff to his wife.

It was a fine dinner and a fine evening. Jane carried her child as if baby-having were some kind of party. Around eleven o'clock, Fred said to Jane, "Maybe the Roses would like ice cream."

"Maybe they would," said Jane, "but we haven't any. I'll drive down to the village and get some."

"I'll go with you," I said, "just to make sure you don't forget chocolate."

ON THE WAY to the ice-cream parlor I said, "Tell me something. What makes you kids act as if you had a gold mine in the cellar?"

Jane smiled. "I don't know. I guess we've been pretty lucky."

"Lucky!" I said, and then stopped, embarrassed.

"It's all right," said Jane. "Of course, it would be nicer if Fred could see, but neither of us thinks that's very important."

"How'd it happen?"

"War stuff," said Jane. "Fragments of a land mine on Okinawa. We weren't married then. Fred was moved to a hospital in San Francisco. The first letters he sent me weren't in his own handwriting. He explained that he was dictating to a nurse because he'd been wounded in the right hand.

"At the time, he still had some hope that a special operation might restore his sight. He didn't want to tell me about his eyes until he knew for sure.

"WELL, THE OPERATION was a complete miss-out. When Fred knew he'd never see again, the darn fool wrote me that I was free to marry anybody I liked. Of course, I hopped a plane to San Francisco and got my fella."

"Atta girl," I said. "Now tell me to shut my face if I'm out of line, but doesn't it ever bother you—I mean, making this sacrifice?"

"Sacrifice, my foot," said Jane softly. "Look at it this way. I'm two years away from 30. In 10 years, I'll be two away from 40. When Fred went off to war, I was 23. Real roses in cheeks. Probably the best I ever looked in my life.

"From here in, no matter what happens to me—wrinkles, dry skin, gray hairs, babies—Fred will always see me as the fresh-faced kid he kissed goodbye at Penn station in '42. For the guy I'm crazy about, I'll be 23 the rest of my life. Is that bad?"

"No," I said. "That isn't bad at all."

SERVICE STATION

I WAS SO BUSY GETTING READY FOR WINTER I FORGOT ABOUT MY CAR! !

Ferdie (in the fur coat) would have saved himself a small bank account if he'd REMEMBERED to bring his car in for winterizing.

A few minutes spent in checking tires...battery...putting in anti-freeze...checking water and heater hose...changing oil...ending up with a lubrication job and the first real cold snap would not have bothered him.

Don't tread in Ferdie's footsteps. Drive in for winterizing today.

Belmond Could Use A Community Chest, Too

Right now, while other cities and towns are engaged in their annual Community Chest drives, would be a good time for Belmond to analyze its own need for such a yearly campaign. The Community Chest idea must be a sound one, otherwise it would not be in such widespread use.

Offhand, we can think of three local projects that could logically share in funds derived through a Belmond Community Chest — namely, the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and the Summer Recreation Program. Very possibly there are others that might be added to the list.

Basically, a Community Chest is a cooperative project shared in by citizens of the community and such local youth, welfare and recreational agencies as have to resort to public campaigns for funds during the course of each year.

On the basis of experience, each agency drafts its budgetary needs for the coming year prior to the Community Chest drive and the sum total of their needs approximates the goal which should be set for the campaign.

If Belmond employed the Community Chest it would eliminate inequities involved in fund-raising methods and fund-disbursal policies now followed.

For example, although the several organizations and churches from which the Girl Scouts obtained their funds for the year no doubt made their contributions willingly, there is no reason why the community-at-large should not shoulder the expense of maintaining Girl Scout activities.

Further, it seems logical that — if the Boy Scout financial quota assigned to Belmond by the Winnebago Council was less than the local troop's actual share in Community Chest receipts, it should be permissable for the balance to be retained in Belmond to meet local Scouting needs. Under the present setup, the entire proceeds of the annual Scout drive made in the name of the Council goes to the Council, regardless of whether the amount obtained exceeds the assigned goal.

The Community Chest is not intended to shield individuals from solicitations in behalf of state and national welfare agencies, such as the cancer and heart foundations, crippled children's fund, March of Dimes, etc. etc. Contributions to these causes are a matter for personal consideration.

But meeting the financial needs of community-wide youth and welfare agencies is a community-wide responsibility; and a town greatly simplifies its problem if it coordinates the fund-raising campaigns and fulfills the needs of all such agencies at one time — through the medium of a Communty Chest campaign.

Not only that, but the proceeds of a single drive might easily exceed the total of three separate campaigns. For instance, habitual gifts of "a buck a throw" might be supplanted by a single five dollar donation in the knowledge that the appeal represented the only one to be made for the local projects during the year.

We repeat, right now is the time that some study and thought should be devoted to organization of a Community Chest here. Next fall will be too late. Of course, first of all, the idea requires some proper sponsorship . . . Looks like a good opportunity for the Chamber of Commerce to add to its civic laurels.

Who Invented the A-Bomb?

The new game the Russians have been playing in recent years entitled "We Invented It First" has some interesting possibilities which we wonder if Stalin and Co. have considered.

Ivan Awfulitch, we now know, invented the automobile; yet, during the recent unpleasantness, Uncle Sam had to ship trucks and jeeps by the thousands over to Uncle Joe to help him keep the Nazis from over-running his home town.

And Igor Bevar first dreamed up the airplane; but it was U. S. planes, rushed to the Reds in the nick of time, which finally routed the German air invaders.

So far there has been no claim from Moscow that a Russian first solved the mystery of atomic fission. Maybe Joe is fearful that, in event of another fracas, Uncle Sam might send a wholesale lot of A-bombs — without order.

Hobbies Can Be Important To Lifelong Happiness

The Modern Millwheel, monthly publication of General Mills for their employees, has in its October issue the story of a G. M. employee who retired a year ago under the company's pension plan. The thing that most impresses a reader of this article is how full and satisfactory a life this old-timer is living, despite his "retirement." He's busy every moment, it seems, doing something he LIKES to do.

There is quite a moral in that story, particularly in these days of Social Security and company pension plans when a large share of working people can actually look forward to retirement some day.

Retiremen tcan be a blessing—or it can be the worst bore in the world. Which it turns out to be depends upon the individual and the breadth of interests he has developed during his working years.

We know of a professional man who has been ordered to abandon his practice because of a heart condition. Properly conserving his strength and maintaining reasonable peace of mind, he easily could live for a number of years in contentment and happiness.

From a financial standpoint, he doesn't need to work. Yet he's worrying himself nearly sick these days trying to decide just how many hours he can continue to spend in the office without promptly killing himself off. Why isn't he satisfied to take his doctor's advice, sit back and enjoy the fruits of his labors and seek the contentment that could be his for a number of years to come? He simply doesn't know what to do with himself.

This man has centered his entire life around his profession—has developed no hobbies that would bring him welcome distraction "after hours." Now he is paying a tremendous price for having been too wrapped up in his work.

It doesn't stretch the imagination too far to suspect that his present health, even, might be better if he had made a habit of enjoying the distraction and relaxation of some interesting avocation during his earning years.

Says the Millwheel article: "Selecting the right hobby could be a very important insurance move for prospective retirees. It could make the difference between a productive, happy retirement and a slow withering of mind and body."

More and more men are going to be able to look forward to retirement as the years go by. Whether that retirement will be pleasurable or a problem depends upon how each one prepares for it. During productive years is the time to develop interests other than "the job."

There are endless hobbies than can make free hours pleasant: photography, gardening, music, social service, church work, civic affairs, reading, collecting, cabinet making. Make your own list. The choices are almost limitless.

Busy old men are happy old men. And women certainly are not exempt from the need for outside interests, either. There comes a time to every woman when children are gone, household responsibilities have dwindled — and a hobby can be a godsend.

Give it some thought. If you are simply living your job, you need to broaden your horizons.

D .M. Bowling Experts Defeat Two Belmond Teams 2514-2165

Two picked teams of Belmond kelgers discovered Saturday night—and not to their surprise —that lack of practice is a rather severe handicap. But despite their creaky hinges and foggy eyes, they had a lot of fun bowing to East Des Moines Bowling Center's all-star aggregation in a three-game match, 2514 to 2165, as the new Bowlmor Lanes were thrown open to the public.

A good crowd jammed managers Jack Lansing's and B. O. Kinseth's recreation center to see bowling return to Belmond as a wintertime sport. First-nighters enjoyed coffee and doughnuts "on the house" and, although the new lanes did not give up a single 200 game in the course of the match, saw some top-flight pin toppling, nevertheless.

Belmond's pin busters were divided into two teams for the first two games, and the five high scores took on the visitors in the final session. Scores for the first line were: Jim Mariga 155, Dr. A. M. Larson 124; George Hansen 153; Fred Johnson 155 and Ed Thompson 132.

Local second-game scores were Steve Dorenkamp 176, Kenneth LaVelle 168, A. J. Meints 152, Claude Larkins 120 and Tom Greenwood 147. Scoring in the third game: Johnson 147, Hansen 106, Mariga 152, LaVelle 161 and Dorenkamp 117.

LaVelle's 329 was top two-game total for Belmond, followed by Mariga's 307 and Johnson's 302. For Des Moines, each score being total for three lines, Wayne Knight was the leader with 533, Capt. Art Kress had a 524, Howard Whitaker 519, Matt Bailey 480 and Jack Engstrom 458.

Belmond's series total of 2165 was made up by game scores of 719, 763 and 683; while the capital city squad turned in game totals of 822. 847 and 845 for their 2514 series.

Educator Tells - -

end their education with eighth grade because they are so dismayed by the social adjustments in a relatively large school, when up to that time they have been a "class" all by themselves or have had only one or two other classmates.

Mr. Ross believes that reorganization of rural districts to permit larger student bodies and enable the hiring of several teachers rather than one is the rural policy that must be adopted..

Equally serious, though somewhat different problems, are faced by the small high schools. Ideally, a high school student body should total 200 to 300 pupils. From an economic standpoint, said Mr. Ross, efficiency diminishes in relation to the margin by which the student total falls below 300.

In small high schools, teachers have to be jacks-of-all-trades and specialization in specific subjects is impossible. Moreover, studies have to be restricted to those of a basic nature—readin', writin', rithmetic and social studies. In the larger schools cultural and vocational subjects can be added to the great benefit of the students.

Competition between the smaller schools for tuition pupils often leads to costly rivalry when extra-curricular attractions are held out as inducements at the expense of unduly high tax assessments, without corresponding improvements in the schools' curricula.

In many cases, Mr. Ross emphasized, reorganization may not result in cheaper education—but it will most invariably provide better education; and that is the proper goal of such planning.

Under the present state law, responsibility for school reorganization is assigned to the county boards of education. They are expected to analyze their own areas and ascertain where reorganization would be practical and improve educational standards.

All school districts involved in the proposed consolidation have the privilege of voting acceptance or rejection. If 80 per cent or more approve the step, a new administrative unit is organized to include those districts consenting to the plan. No district can be forced into a reorganization project.

When the county boards get seriously down to the business of examining their areas with an eye to promoting proper reorganization, and when local boards become less jealous of their rights of local control, Iowa will be on its way to a thorough revamping of its present antiquated district system, Mr. Ross concluded.

Farm Bureau Will Pick New Officers Next Monday Eve

Election of officers at the Wright County Farm Bureau annual meeting next Monday evening will bring high interest this year, as the nomination committee will have to present new names for both the office of president and vice president. The incumbents, Laurence Woodley and Raynard Richardson, have asked their names not be presented because of the length of time they have already served.

The meeting at Clarion will be held in the Methodist church basement starting at 7:30 p. m. All 1,400 Farm Bureau families in the county have been invited to take part in the business meeting and enjoy the entertainment that has been arranged.

One of the most important items of business will be adoption of the county resolutions. Mr. Richardson is chairman of the resolutions committee, which also includes: Floyd Robie, Mel Thorson, Oscar Holmes, Cornelius Thompson, Willis Kurtz, Mrs. Gerhard Thompson, Mrs. Nels Lindvall and Mrs. Don Martin.

On the committee to nominate new officers are Homer McGrath, Dewey Woodin, Laurence Maxon, Joe Tokheim and Harold Yanney.

Besides election of officers and drafting of resolutions, several brief reports will be given by committee chairmen, extension personnel and service company officials.

Highlight of the entertainment program will be an illustrated talk, "Our Iowa", presented by Prof. H. D. Hughes, former head of Iowa State college's agronomy department.

Musical numbers will be offered by "The Sugar-Cured Four," a YMCA quartet from Iowa State, and by the Rural Women's Chorus, led by Mrs. Howard Berry.

Clarion Comes - -

Broncs' 24. Then, in four plays, Belmond advanced to the 48. A comedy of errors ensued which found everybody but the officials in possession of the ball in the next few seconds. Mechem intercepted a long heave by Berns and started a gallop southward. On the Clarion 36 he fumbled and Riggs recovered to produce a 16-yard gain for Belmond on the play.

Riggs almost returned the complement a half-dozen plays later when he topped off a nice run to the six-yard stripe by bobbling one himself. However, he snatched the pigskin back and the Broncs had a first down and goal to go.

Two plunges netted three yards and then Clarion pushed the home-towners back to the eight when Riggs fumbled again on a pitch-out. Another smash by Riggs was piled up on the five as half-time was called.

After the rest period both teams saw drives sputter out, forcing punts. Belmond received the opening kick and gained only a couple of yards in three efforts. Berns kicked to Clarion's 38 where Watermiller dropped Rohrer with a nice tackle.

Clarion's one pass of the evening, from Mechem to Rohrer, almost paid dividends — but with the ball right in his hands on Belmond's 30, the receiver dropped the ball and on the next play Mechem got off a nice end-over-end that rolled clear down to the six.

Redmond, Riggs and Trager combined efforts, considerably aided by a pair of Berns' passes to the first two, and seven plays later the ball rested on Clarion's four. With it first and 10 at that point, Trager was tackled for a six yard loss and Redmond recouped to the five. A Clarion offside advanced the ball to the one-yard stripe, from which Redmond plunged over. Again a crack at the line for extra point failed and Belmond led 12-7.

A Clarion march, abetted by a 15-yard penalty on the Broncs for "unsportsmanlike conduct" and topped by a 16-yard gallop by Capt. Chester Henry, set the stage for a 23-yard sweep to the left by Rohrer for the Cowboys' second counter. Six plays, following the kick-off, did the trick. A fumble spoiled Mechem's point kick and Clarion was in front 13-12 with the last stanza just started.

Belmond's offense bogged down after receiving Clarion's kickoff from the 50-yard marker. Twice Belmond was offside as play was resumed with the result that Porter booted the kickoff from the mid-stripe rather than the 40.

Three plays left the Broncs with too far to go and Berns lofted a beautiful punt to the visitors' 18. On the next play Rohrer loped to the 30, but Wion followed with a fumble which Belmond recovered. The Broncos' good fortune was short-lived, however; two plays later John Eilers grabbed a Berns pass and it was Clarion's ball in their own 32.

Rohrer and Wion joined forces to add 22 yards in three plays, but Belmond's hopes rose when Trager spilled Henry for a four-yard loss. With the ball on the 50, Henry almost got away on the next carry but a desperation tackle by Howard Wagner dropped him after a 17-yard advance.

A line punch gained four yards, then Wion spun, twisted and turned to go all the way from the 29. Two or three Belmond tacklers had their arms around the shifty Cowboy's legs, but they seemed unable to keep their grip as the carrier pivoted and dug in. Again Mechem's point attempt failed, but Clarion's lead had swollen to 19-12.

Belmond received on their 34 and two plays netted seven yards. Rigg added 14 more when he snatched the ball off Berns' upraised palm in a nice execution of the old "statue of Liberty" play. But Ronald Carter, who was frequently a thorn in the Broncos' hide, dropped Trager for no gain, a pass to Riggs was n. g., and a rushed toss by Berns ended in the ineligible arms of Tackle Curtis Mennenga to give Belmond a 15-yard penalty.

That settled the game, as only seconds remained and Clarion froze the ball to kill all hopes of another Bronco tally.

Notwithstanding the outcome, the game gave Belmond fans a thrill for their money — and a little more effective tackling in the clinches by the Broncos could have tipped the victory scales the other way.

Garner's Defeat by Britt Leaves Cardinals Alone In North Iowa Cellar

Britt left Garner alone in the cellar and yanked itself into fifth place in the North Iowa conference standings last Friday by nosing out the Cardinals 6-0. It was the Eagles' lone score and only win of the year and left Belmond's final opponent of the season still looking for a victory.

Forest City clinched undisputed claim to third rung on the loop ladder by warping Lake Mills, 33 to 0. Eddie Fox, the Indians' one-man gang, toted the ball across for five of Forest City's seven touchdowns.

Buffalo Center, like Belmond, was engaged in non-conference play last week. The Bison eleven traveled to Elmore, Minn., and came home with a 20-0 win. Buffalo Center's 3-3 loop record put them in fourth place.

Water Trees In Autumn To Protect For Winter

Due to the recent dry weather this year, many trees and shrubs around the home, and especially evergreens, require a good soaking with water in order to help prevent them from injury during the winter months, according to nursery experts. This year, many trees and shrubs are approaching the winter season with insufficient moisture about their roots.

Don't just spray your evergreens, trees and shrubs with the hose, say the nurserymen, but soak the ground thoroughly, letting the hose run for a while. Do this several times, until you are sure the ground is well saturated.

Generally speaking, evergreens will be most susceptible to damage this winter, but most other shrubs and shade trees will require water too. The watering should be done at once, or any time before the ground freezes solidly for winter.

Roy E. Wilson Resigns as Sheriff, Effective January 1

MAIN STREET

By George C. Hansen

In a letter received from Dave Erickson, former Belmond business man now living in Los Angeles, is the warning, "If anyone is planning to come out here and immediately get a job, tell them to think twice. Jobs are just as scarce here as anywhere and these people are twice as tough to deal with."

A while back Dave thought he was all fixed with a job as parts man for a new Nash agency. He got the position over 162 other applicants and spent hours setting up the new department. With things all squared away, a man showed up one day to take over. He'd been on vacation and not until then did Dave learn he was simply a fill-in. See what he means by "tough to deal with"?

—M-S—

Of all the candidates for backfield positions on this year's North Iowa all-conference team, Keith Greenfield received the most coaches' votes. Same can be said of Duane Trager among the tackle candidates . . . Naming of four members of the victory-less Garner team to the second eleven, and only one man from the Broncos' once-beaten aggregation, resulted in raised eyebrows among some of Belmond's sports followers.

—M-S—

Instead of "an awful lot of coffee in Brazil" there's only going to be a modest amount from this year's crop, according to the experts, with the result that coffee prices have taken a couple of jumps in the past 30 days. Retail prices advanced from 57 cents to 61—then to 69. Which brings us to our point.

"Coffee fiends, unite!" may become the cry if further price advances prompt local java dispensers—by-the-cup variety—to seriously consider doubling the ante to a dime per dose. We see by the papers that Burlington brewers of the bean tried it last week, only to be met by a united front on the part of the river city's coffee addicts. Back down came the price to a nickel-per.

Keith, Ed and their fellow restaurateurs may mutter, "Blackmail!" when they see this. Simply for their own good we want to impress them with the fact that, to the Belmond Brotherhood of Coffee Hounds, java is strictly a five-cent beverage. . .

—M-S—

Soon Belmond will cease to invite motorists passing through on the highway to "Write your own ticket." At last Thursday's Chamber of Commerce meeting the members decided the sign doesn't show the proper spirit of hospitality. A committee headed by Gene Woolley had been appointed to study the matter over and their suggestion was that "$1.00 for every mile per hour over 25" be retained, but that the passing gentry not be dared to exceed the speed limit.

The repaintetd signs will bid the motoring public "Welcome to Belmond" and urge observance of the speed limit to save lives and save money. In the original draft of the proposed sign, the passers-by were urged first to "Save Money" and then "Save Lives." After some discussion it was agreed that the lives might appropriately be put first.

—M-S—

Score one for Keith Chandler . . . We were in at his eating emporium a few nights ago grabbing a pre-bowling snack. Wishing a dish of ice cream to top off the meal we inquired what varieties were available. "Vanilla, cherry-nut and orange sherbet," we were informed.

"That's not a very wide choice," we complained, wanting something a little on the exotic side.

Keith gave us a semi-stony stare, considered the matter for a moment, then gave us a most appropriate retort. "Well, this is not a very wide place," Keith replied.

FFA Organization Taps Three Honor Members Tuesday

Three honorary members were inducted by the Belmond chaptetr of Future Farmers of America at a public meeting held Tuesday evening at the high school gymnasium. Each was cited for contributions made to the success and development of the boys' organization.

The men honored were:

R. B. Thompson, president of the Thompson Hybrid Corn company, who furnished popcorn seed for a plot the FFA planted as a money-raising project.

L. B. Oberhauser, prominent Belmond farmer, who served on night school and FFA advisory councils, frequently provided free use of his pick-up truck and loaned the FFA a purebred Columbian ram—without charge—for breeding purposes.

Lloyd Lerdal, another well-known Belmond farmer, who furnished an acre of land for popcorn and potato plots and provided machinery to cultivate them.

Mr. Oberhauser has two sons active in the FFA, Louis and Sherman; and Mr. Lerdal's son, Kenneth, was a member last year.

Sixteen "Green Hands"—new new members of the organization—were initiated at the meeting in an impressive candlelight ceremony. They were Marlyn Watermiller, a junior; Calvin Dorenkamp, a sophomore; and the following freshmen:

Sheriff Co-Inventor of Device To Control Traffic at Accidents

A portable traffic-control signal which should be a great boon to law enforcement officers has been invented by Sheriff Roy Wilson and A. H. Tracy, Clarion electrical engineer, and will go into regular production in about three weeks.

Sheriff Wilson first got his inspiration for the safety beacon two years ago after giving considerable thought to the inadequacy of traffic control methods available to peace officers endeavoring to keep clear the scene of an accident or establish a road block to apprehend a fleeing criminal.

What was needed, he decided, was a portable stop signal which would identify the enforcement officials in charge of operations. He then proceeded to draft a signal, with the help of his partner, which would meet specifications.

Since then, four complete working models have been made—each succeeding one with a number of refinements which made it superior to its predecessor. Still a fifth model is now in process of construction. It will represent the finished product which will be placed on the market.

To be known as the "Royal Safety Beacon", the apparatus will consist of a compact steel case into which slides a collapsable stainless steel standard bearing a sign inscribed "STOP-Sheriff" on the front and "Slow" on the back, in Scotchlite reflecting tape.

On the front of the case is a red lens through which flashes a warning light at the rate of 52 times per minute. The blinker is operated by a non-spillable wet storage battery which will keep the signal in operation for 11 hours without re-charging.

The "Stop" sign is interchangeable and can show that police, patrol or other officers are on the scene. It is this illuminated sign which really brings traffic to a halt, Sheriff Wilson says. Motorists may ignore a simple stop signal, but not one informing them that a law enforcement officer is at hand.

The production model of the signal can be assembled and put in operation in a matter of seconds—which couldn't be said of some of the more complicated earlier models. It will sell for $147.50 per pair, and a great deal of interest has already been evidenced by prospective purchasers.

According to the sheriff, his signal has been tested by day and night, in city traffic and highway traffic and in all sorts of weather conditions. Only in

Above are A. H. Tracy (left) and Sheriff Roy Wilson, both of Clarion, displaying the traffic-control signal of which they are co-inventors. Signs held by the two men are interchangeable with the one attached to the standard, so the signal will properly identify the officer in charge.

Friends Pick Up Corn For Collision Victim

Forty-five neighbors, friends and relatives of Art Rietema, who is still a patient at Belmond hospital recovering from injuries suffered in a recent auto collision, gathered at the injured man's farm near Kanawha last week to pick up his corn. Six hundred bushels were gathered during the day. Ladies of the "good Samaritans'" families served dinners and lunches, to contribute to the occasion.

WRECK KILLS UNCLE OF R. A. HENDERSON; FATHER IS INJURED

Harry McFadzen of Plover, uncle of Attorney Roy A. Henderson of this city, was instantly killed and John Henderson of Plover, Mr. Henderson's father, was injured in an auto mishap near Plover about 3:30 p. m. Monday. Mr. Henderson, who was taken to the Lutheran hospital at Fort Dodge, is 79 and his brother-in-law, Mr. McFadzen, was 78.

According to information received by the injured man's son, Mr. Henderson was leaving the drive of the family farm about a mile south of Plover and for some reason failed to make the turn onto the road, plunging the car into a ditch.

After examination, the attending physician at Fort Dodge reported Mr. Henderson suffering from chest bruises and shock but said the x-ray showed no fractures and there was no evidence of internal injuries.

Cemetery Assn. Wants City to Shoulder Job

Can't Finance Purchase Of Any Additional Land

Members of the Belmond Cemetery association, at a meeting held last Friday evening at the home of Mrs. E. W. Luick, agreed that no steps would be taken in regard to adding land to the cemetery's holdings so long as the present corporate organization is responsible for the cemetery's management.

According to Mrs. Luick, the association's president, this decision has been forced upon the organization by financial necessity. Expense of cemetery upkeep has gone steadily higher in recent years, with no corresponding increase in income, eliminating any possibility of establishing a sinking fund to provide for later land purchase.

At present only 53 full lots, 28 half lots—allowing for six and three graves, respectively—and 44 two-grave lots remain unsold. The association foresees that the problem of additional land

Board of Review Member Resigns Monday Evening

Harry Sumners of Clarion, since January 1948 a member of the Wright county board of review, tendered his resignation at the Monday meeting of the board of supervisors.

Mr. Sumners gave poor health as the reason for his decision. No successor to the board has as yet been appointed by the supervisors.

"GOOD NEIGHBORS" HELP

A large corps of workers from the Lutheran church at Kanawha gathered Monday at the Paul Hasty farm near there to pick up corn. Mr. Hasty, who'd been unable to get the corn in because of a recent back injury, offered his share of the corn to the local churches. Members of the Ladies Aid served dinners and lunches in the church parlors while the men, assisted by a handful of women, gathered the corn.

AFTER RAISING 'EM 31 YEARS, MRS. HEDGES SAYS—

Turkeys Still Seem More Problem Children Than Pets

Turkeys are about as contrary creatures as one can imagine dealing with, but in 31 years of raising the traditional holiday birds Mrs. Alice Hedges has learned how to get along with them—even if she hasn't learned to like them.

Away back in 1918 Mrs. Hedges, who lives on the highway about two miles south of Belmond, made her first venture in turkey raising with the purchase of a hen and 28 poults. Her experience was sufficiently profitable so that the next year she raised between 200 and 300.

Since 1930, when her husband died, she has shouldered responsibilities of the farm and gradually increased her annual "crop" of fowls. Since 1939 she has raised flocks averaging about 2,000 birds each year.

Notwithstanding the trend toward smaller turkeys for the holiday market, Mrs. Hedges has stuck with the regal broad-breasted bronze variety. She admits that produce buyers "holler a bit" over the huge size of the birds they buy from her, but she says that individual local buyers "like 'em big!"

In recent years she has been selling between two and three hundred of her birds annually to individual buyers in and around Belmond; and she says the number of sales of this kind is gradually increasing. The rest go to produce houses, from which the bulk of the fowls are shipped to New York.

This year Mrs. Hedges bought 2500 poults, 1500 of them on March 25 and the remainder on May 27. She paid 95 cents each for the poults. This was as much as 50 cents over the price in some years past. She figures her losses

NO PUBLIC CEREMONY PLANNED THIS YEAR FOR ARMISTICE DAY

No formal observance of Armistice Day is planned this year, according to VFW Commander George Jenison. Because of the very small turnout for the ceremony held last year, and the fact that open pheasant season starts Nov. 11 this year, it was decided to forego a program this fall.

There will, however, be a brief program for students at the high school auditorium Friday at 10:30 a. m. The girls trio of Marilyn Madsen, Darlene Rierson and Nancy Johnson will present a vocal number and a short address will be given by Rev. J. Heber Miller of the Methodist church. A prayer by Rev. A. T. Rollene of the Baptist church and sounding of taps by Duane Cunning will conclude the ceremony.

The Chamber of Commerce has ordered all Belmond stores to close Friday in memory of the war dead, and Commander Jenison urges all merchants to see that their flags are out during the day.

Lynn Thompson Farm Bureau's New President

Grant Township Farmer Elected Monday Evening

Lynn Thompson of Grant township was elected president of the Wright county Farm Bureau at its annual fall meeting held Monday evening in the Methodist church basement at Clarion. Rammer Goeman of Pleasant was elected vice president.

Other officers, all of whom served in the same posts last year, were named as follows: secretary, Bernard Collins of Lincoln township; treasurer, Charlie Trask of Boone; boys' 4-H club chairman, Craig Nelson of Eagle Grove; girls' 4-H club chairman, Mrs. Clarence McBride of Lake.

Women's chairman and voting delegate, Mrs. Gerhard Thompson of Norway; women's vice chairman, Mrs. Don Martin of Woolstock. Mrs. Thomas Mathre of Norway was named women's alternate voting delegate.

Election of 10 new township directors and reappointment of six incumbent directors was ratified at the meeting. Those held over were Olaf Watne of Wayne; Floyd Dahlgren, Lake; John Stith, Troy; Raymond Clerk, Vernon; Wendell Swanson, Wall Lake; Clarence Hikinson, Woolstock.

New directors are: Roy McClure, Belmond; Emery Engh, Boone; Casper Hahn, Dayton; Frank Christensen, Eagle Grove; Jack Ketchum, Grant; Donald Smith, Iowa; Robert Marshall, Lincoln; Harold Roseland, Liberty; Gerhard Thompson, Norway and Ernest Kalkwarf, Pleasant.

ASKED TO RECEPTION

Members of Belmond I. O. O. F. lodge 265 and Golden Rod Rebekah lodge 162 have been invited to attend a reception in honor of Vivian Nelson, vice president of the Rebekah Assembly, this coming Sunday from 2:00 to 4:00 p. m. at the I. O. O. F. hall at Clear Lake.

Legionnaire Guest

Marshall F. Camp of Creston, (above) Commander of the Iowa Department of the American Legion, will be a guest at the Wright county Legion meeting to be held next Tuesday evening at the local Legion hall. The parley will begin at 8:00 p. m. Several state Legion officials, in addition to Commander Camp, will be present. The Belmond Auxiliary will serve lunch at the close of the meeting. Post Commander Mac Jensen urges a good local turnout.

Alexander Church Choir To Sponsor Benefit Game

A benefit "basketball game"—and the term is advisably printed in quotes—will be held at Alexander high school gymnasium at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, Nov. 17, under sponsorship of the choir of Alexander Community Methodist church.

Combatants in the fray will be members of the community in costume. One team will be composed of men and the other of women, in each case their garb being that of the opposite sex.

The choir will add proceeds of the game to a fund being accumulated to obtain recorded chimes and a loud speaker system for church use.

Pheasant Season Starts Tomorrow; Open Till Dec. 5

Twelve o'clock noon Nov. 11 will hear the opening boom of the 1949 pheasant season, and the state conservation commission expects almost 100,000 licensed hunters to be in the fields in pursuit of the spectacular ringneck the first day. Wright county is in the long season zone, with pheasant hunting permitted through Dec. 5.

Census returns indicate a much better pheasant population than a year ago, when many hunters were agreeably surprised with the ease with which they secured their limit of two cock birds. Pheasant surveys indicate heaviest pheasant populations in the northwest and north central sections of the open territory.

In a last minute plea to sportsmen, the conservation commission asked all hunters to observe the "Kill No Hens" regulation, and pointed out that part of the success of this year's pheasant season is due to the fact that hunters refrained from shooting hen birds last year. The commission also reminded hunters to secure permission of the landowner before hunting on private property, to follow the simple safety rules of firearms handling, and to abide by the game laws and ethics of sportsmanship. Hunting hours end daily at 4:30 p. m.

Was Unopposed For Office In Five Elections

Served as Peace Officer Over Period of 21 Years

Sheriff Roy Wilson announced Monday at Clarion that he is resigning his county office, effective Jan. 1, 1950. His resignation will end a period 21 years' service to Wright county, four as deputy and 17 as sheriff. The popularity of the veteran official is vouched for by the fact that he was unopposed for reelection in the last five campaigns in which he was a candidate.

"Lefty", as he is known to his host of friends, entered the county's employ as deputy sheriff in 1929. He was first elected to the office of sheriff in 1932. He is a past president of the Iowa State Sheriffs' association, having held that post in 1939.

In 1945 he was selected by J. Edgar Hoover for special training in the FBI National Police Academy in Washington, D. C. and is one of only some 1,300 to 1,400 peace officers in the entire nation to be graduated from the three-and-a-half month course.

Practically every type of crime in the book has been faced by Sheriff Wilson sometime during his lengthy career. One oddity is the fact that there never was a murder conviction during his regime. There was a corpus delecti on a few occasions, but a conviction for murder never developed out of any of the cases.

The sheriff will devote a good share of his time to promotion of the traffic-control signal he recently invented in collaboration with A. H. Tracy of Clarion, and which is described elsewhere in this issue. However, it was not business reasons that prompted his decision to resign.

"For 17 years my family and I have lived in the jail house, and I decided that my family deserved a change of environment," Sheriff Wilson explains. "My daughter Lois, who is 15 and a high school sophomore, was born in the jail building and it has been her home ever since.

"My wife has been 'chief cook and bottle washer' for the jail since I first became sheriff, and the work is both strenuous and none too pleasant. She badly needs a rest and can't get one while she carries her present responsibilities."

Mrs. Wilson has been in rather poor health for about a year, and her husband hopes that the change to a normal home environment will expedite her complete recovery. The Wilsons tentatively plan to move to Waterloo, where the traffic signals will be manufactured, but this decision is not yet definite.

"I do want", says Sheriff Wilson, "to express my deep appreciation to the people of Wright county for their cooperation and innumerable courtesies and for the confidence they have shown in me during the years. It has made serving them a pleasure as well as an honor."

Sports Reporter Brad Wilson Will Speak at Banquet

Brad Wilson, popular high school sports editor on the Des Moines Register staff, will be main speaker at the annual football banquet of the Gridiron club next Monday evening. The dinner honoring Belmond's varsity and junior high squads will be held at the high school lunch room starting promptly at 7:00 p. m.

A Gridiron committee headed by Dan Dannewitz and including C. C. Christie and Gene Woolley has arranged an interesting program, which will include movies of a recent Iowa U. game—probably the Northwestern or Oregon contest.

Bud Sutter, KGLO sports announcer, and Jim Van Heel, editor of the Mason City Globe-Gazette sports section, have been invited to attend the banquet.

Dr. A. M. Nelson, Gridiron president, will present Coaches "Pat" Patterson and Jim Scott, who in turn will introduce the members of their varsity and junior high football squads. Patterson will award letters to the gridders who earned them during the season just concluded.

Beautiful Wedding Service United Maurice Conwell To Dubuque Girl

A wedding of interest to local folks took place at Dubuque Saturday morning at 8 o'clock, Oct. 29, when Maurice Conwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Conwell of Clear Lake, and Janet Weber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Weber, were united in marriage. The service was read by the Rev. Joseph Dunn in the St. Columbkille's Catholic church, with Mrs. Arthur Rastatter providing the organ music for the soloist, Miss Dorotyh Christ of Marinette, Wis.

The bride was attired in white slipper satin, fashioned with a fitted plastron bodice, brocaded with seed pearls and long sleeves that tapered to points at the wrists. The fully gathered skirt of the gown folded into a cathedral train. A satin cap encrusted with seed pearls held her fingertip veil of illusion net in place. Her bouquet was fashioned of a white orchid arranged with French carnations into a cascade style.

She was given in marriage by her brother, James L. Weber and in the bridal party were Mrs. Fred Aschenbrener, sister of the bride as matron of honor and Mrs. Ralph Rolling and Miss Jeanne Heitkamp as bridesmaids. Owen F. Six Basketball Lettermen Out For First Drill

Pair of Veterans Missing As Squad Begins Practice

Six lettermen responded to Jim Scott's call for basketball candidates as the first cage practice of the season was held Monday evening. Another experienced veteran from last season's squad, who fell short of letter requirements, and four boys advanced from the frosh-soph squad of a year ago complete the varsity aggregation.

Two regulars from the 1948-49 squad did not report for practice. They are Bob Berns, veteran guard, and Curt Mennenga, forward. Coach Scott says he does not know if the boys have permanently decided not to participate in basketball. He hopes not, as their absence will greatly diminish the prospesct of a successful Bronco season—particularly with Keith Greenfield sidelined with a leg injury sustained in football.

The lettermen who answered the call to practice Monday were Duane Trager, Jerry Hanson, Richard Kriens, Roland Kinseth, Don Faris and Jack Riggs. Though he failed to win his "B" last year, Marlyn Watermiller saw plenty of action and "Scotty" expects him to be a valuable alternate forward this season. Dick Elliott, Clelan Redmond, Bill Trees and Roy Ellingston complete the varsity.

Coach Scott has Duane Trager tabbed for the center assignment. The other five-letter-winners will likely be alternated between the front line and back, according to demand.

Eleven boys showed up for the freshman-sophomore squad and three others — Lowell Fleming, Dean Gunderson and Arlen Pals —will report if satisfactory transportation arrangements can be made to get them to their farm homes after practice.

Those "Scotty" is presently counting on for this underclass aquad are: Claude Larkin, Dave Helland, Allan Madsen, Vernon Meyers, Oral VanSickle, Fred Loats, James Reikens, Alfred McLaughlin, Odean Severseike, Mike O' Connor and David Hauge.

BELMOND GIRL SCOUTS TO CANVASS SATURDAY FOR CHILDREN'S HOME

Belmond's Girl Scouts next Saturday will conduct a house to house canvass for funds for the Iowa Children's Home society, under sponsorship of the Century and Progress clubs. Wright county's quota is $1,320, and Belmond's, $210.

According to Mrs. Dorothy McNeal, a member of the Progress club and chairman of the drive, the society since its organization in 1888 has cared for more than 10,000 neglected or helpless children through adoptive or boarding home placement or solution of the problems causing the plight of the children who came under its care.

The demands of the society have increased each year until, during the first six months of 1948, more than 500 children came under its supervision and placement services. Children cared for by the society come from every county in Iowa.

"The society's goal," says Mrs. McNeal, "is good care and understanding for all dependent, neglected and potentially delinquent children in Iowa. With the help of the people of the state, that goal can be attained. This is a challenge to Iowans to translate dollars into lives for the greater good of community and state."

Murray Reports on Parking Survey For State Legislative Committee

Expense involved in the biggest obstacle to meeting the problem of off-street parking in Iowa communities, L. W. Murray of Belmond told a state legislative sub-committee meeting at Ames a week ago.

Mr. Murray, of the engineering firm Rowat and Murray, is one of a board of eight men appointed to study the various problems of municipalities with a view to bringing up to date Iowa's legislation governing the matters.

Murray's report recommended that existing laws be changed to broaden and perfect methods of finance and extend existing zoning laws to permit control of land for off-street parking and enable legislation which would create official authorities or commissions to deal with off-street parking facilities.

Regulation of traffic in business districts is influenced more by the attitude of merchants than by the needs of vehicle owners, Murray pointed out. He added that street widening, as an answer to the parking problem, is outrageously expensive.

"The parking bugbear is no respecter of the size of the city or town." Murray told the committee, "And the curb-parking habit is so strong that extensive education will be required to effect any proposed change."

Space for parking is becoming an increasing problem because the number of cars is growing more rapidly than population is increasing according to Murray, and unless parking facilities can be provided the utility of the automobile will be reduced. He conceded that parking meters help but don't offer a full solution to the problem.

Reports of the committeemen are to be summarized and used by the Municiple Statute Study committee, an interim committee established by the fifty-third assembly to recommend revision and amendments to laws pertaing to municipalities.

License Plates For Cars in '50 Will Run Higher

If you remember the cost of your 1949 license plates and plan to send the county treasurer a check in the same amount this year, don't do it. That probably won't be enough to buy your 1950 plates because the price is up.

Leslie B. Chase, director of vehicle registration for the Iowa department of public safety, today reminded drivers that the last legislature gave the registration fee structure a complete overhauling, the first it's had in years.

This will result in the higher cost of all truck, all farm trailer and virtually all automobile license plates when they go on sale December 1. Chase said county treasurers have already computed the new fees for each vehicle registered in their counties.

That means that if you wish to mail in a check by December 1 and receive your new license plates by mail, you should contact the treasurer's office first and learn the exact amount of your new fee.

Chase said county treasurers handle a part of their registration work in this manner through the mail. This year, however, an influx of checks written in the wrong amounts could create a clerical snarl that would double the work and time involved in getting out many licenses.

For certain type vehicles the department has been able to announce a flat registration fee for this year. The fee for three ton trucks (class A) will be $25 and for five ton trucks (class B) $40. Fees for all trucks of higher tonnage have been increased.

The flat fee for registering a farm trailer this year will be $5. The new definition of a farm trailer reads: "Wagon box trailer used by a farmer in transporting produce, farm products or supplies hauled to or from market."

Jimmy, Billy and Joe Hammer of Parkersburg spent several days at the home of their grandmother, Mrs. Anna Barry.

Another Bowling League Added to Those Entered In Bowl-Mor Competition

Two changes had been made in the team membership of the Board-Splitters League and one new league had been added as organized pin-smashing at the Bowl-Mor Lanes opened its second week.

Belmond Auto company has cancelled its sponsorship and Latimer Legion withdrew from the Board-Splitters and was replaced by Finn's Skelly Service. Skelly was to roll a make-up game with Quig's Grill this week to catch up with the rest of the league.

Six new teams were entering competition this week as a sixth league was organized. In the new combine are the following aggregations: Spurling's Cafe, Belmond Bakery, Wendel Hardware (Meservey), Doctor Leinbach's quintet, a team sponsored by Elmer Jacobson and the Latimer Legion, transferred from the Board-Splitters.

Women's Bowling Under Way With 12 Teams Entered

Twelve teams were lined up for competition as play in the women's bowling league got under way Tuesday evening. Team membership was bolstered by the addition of two outfits from Clarion, in addition to the 10 teams being sponsored by Belmond business establishments.

Two shifts will be run each Tuesday evening, according to League Secretary Mary Gordon, with the first one starting promptly at 6:45 o'clock.

Team sponsors and captains in the women's league follows:

Thompson Hybrid — Phyllis Braner: Mello Maid—Loretta Anderson; Woodward's — Linnie Dahm; McNeal-Courson — Eva Hansen; Belmond Greenhouse—Mary Gordon; Gunderson Market—Jeanne Bamford.

Belmond Auto Co.—Lois Hammond; P & G Grocery—Phyllis Pals; Bowl-Mor—Grace Landon; Jensen's Grocery—Irene Kelley.

BRONCOS END UP 2ND IN LOOP STANDINGS; DOWN GARNER, 26-13

Belmond closed out a successful football season last week by downing Garner 26-13 to clinch second place in the North Iowa conference with a 5-1 record.

Most of the scoring came in the first half, which saw the Broncos sporting a 20-7 advantage. Bob Redmond opened the scoring with a tally from the 11-yard line and soon afterward Bob Berns plunged over from the eight.

Jack Riggs completed Belmond's scoring for the half on a 12-yard jaunt after the Broncs had recovered a Garner fumble on the latter's 18. A 78-yard unbroken drive brought Garner's first TD before halftime was called.

In the third period Riggs broke loose for a 78-yard gallop to give Belmond its final score. Beers later climaxed another Garner drive of 78 yards with an 18-yard sprint for the closing touchdown.

Northwood, the North Iowa champs, concluded their card with a clean slate by smashing Manly to the tune of 39-6. The Vikings had a record of eight straight wins for the season.

Reporting Farm Doings

by "Pat" Gallagher

Glenn Slining, out on Route 2 near Morse Lake, had remarkable good fortune with his fall pigs this year. He had only five brood sows, but the five presented him with 51 pigs and 47 of them are well started and going strong. In the spring he had 13 sows but raised only 72 pigs from their litters, so this fall's better than 10-to-a-litter average and less than eight per cent loss has him well satisfied with his luck.

—RFD—

One of Glenn's sows had a litter of 11, including one very definite runt. However, when feeding time came the little fellow always firmly established himself at a source of supply and it was one of his more rugged brethren who was always left wanting. The Slinings tried to save the outcast by hand-feeding, but they failed and lost the pig. On the other hand, the tiny fellow is gaining rapidly and promises to make a good market pig. Score another one for the runts of the world!

—RFD—

Stopped at the Chuck Norris farm, right on the shore of Morse Lake, and found Chuck, Chet Hake and Chink Norris taking time out for coffee and some freshly baked cookies (they were good, incidentally). Chuck reported the three of them, with Doug Sharp, had taken about 17 ducks off "the east forty"—which is the lake, in the case of the Norris farm. The four hunters also have 21 geese to their credit since the season opened, but few of them from the lake.

—RFD—

One member of the Norrises' flock of geese is a blue goose which stopped over last spring during migration time and liked it so well she's still there. Since the geese started flying this fall, the folks have expected practically every morning to find the visitor gone, but the call of the wild seems to have no attraction for her. The geese, Chuck reports, really scurry toward the barnyard when any hunters appear on the fringe of the lake. They know what they're doing!

That Norris farm really abounds with livestock of every nature — from 200 mink to one, small, discouraged-looking white mouse. One animal member that caught our eye was a handsome German short-haired pointer, which we were told, belongs to Jack Lobdell. Chuck says she's got papers "a mile long" and although still very young she holds a point like a veteran. The men are anxious for the pheasant season to arrive so they can give her a try.

—RFD—

Chet Hake's particular pride is a registered two-year-old Palomino stallion which he bought about 18 months ago. It's a beautiful horse, and a smart one, too. Chet had her going through her paces for us. She "says her prayers", counts, lays down on command, mounts a pedestal—and makes a perfectly horrible face to get a nibble of smoking tobacco. She's a three-gaiter already, Chet says, and is making pretty fair progress on racking.

—RFD—

—RFD—

After lavishing care on a flock of geese and ducks ever since last spring, Mrs. Harold Johnson of Route 2 finds she's become so attached to them she hates to part with them now that the holiday season is approaching. She has 68 fine looking ducks and 35 plump geese. Harold just says, "Sell 'em and I'll start you over fresh in the spring with a couple of hundred ducklings." So it looks like they're all headed toward the hatchet, with the exception of eight older geese Mrs. Johnson intends to keep.

Luther Johnson is one farmer amply equipped with pigs to turn loose in down corn. He has about 550 spring pigs and around 70 in his fall litters All the pigs are hybrids, but the springs arrived so late that they need a good deal of finishing before they'll be ready to market. Luther has been running the smaller ones in the corn during the past week or so but doesn't think they've shown very much progress. He has one 30-acre field of corn which he doesn't plan to pick up at all, just turning it over to the pigs.

—RFD—

This is the first year Luther has experimented with hybrids. He's withholding judgment on the value of employing hybrid boars until he's had more opportunity to see what the pigs do. He feels that his present pig crop is little if any better than last year's and that they haven't been gaining as fast as his 1947 pigs, which were bred by Durocs out of Poland Chinas. However, he admits that be pushed the 1947 pigs to beat the band to catch the peak prices and that this year he had his pigs on pasture a lot more than those of two years ago. He's still entirely open to conviction where the hybrids are concerned; not dissatisfied — just "waiting to see."

—RFD—

Mr. and Mrs. Burdell Busick are among the farming families in this vicinity who have decided to give Hy-Line poultry a try. They bought 350 this summer and they're a fine looking lot right now. But Mrs. Busick says they're just starting to lay, so she has yet to discover if "it's true what they say about Hy-Lines." One thing is sure; both the pig and chicken hybrids certainly show their mixed parentage in their colors. Seems as if no two are alike.

Visiting around Iowa

/by Joe Marsh

Iowa Welcomes D.P.'s

Last week Joe Edwards took a European displaced couple to help on his farm.

"Isn't it wonderful," says Edith.

Well, I couldn't see anything amazing about it. Where does she think all our native Iowa families came from? (Check the names in your phone book.)

People came here from scores of foreign lands, with different customs, different ideas. But they worked together; built a great state.

It required neighborliness, tolerance, lots of give and take. And it requires that same spirit to KEEP Iowa great. No place here for bigotry. No room for neighborhood dictators or petty agitators.

Neighbor Bill can be a Socialist; that's his privilege. If Mary joins the sewing circle, it doesn't mean she's against people who don't belong to sewing circles. And if I enjoy a mild glass of beer, it doesn't array me against the fellow who prefers coffee.

We've built a great State by living together with freedom of ideas, tolerance, good will. Let's hold onto those principles.

Armistice Day

Tomorrow, at exactly eleven o'clock, everyone should pause from daily activities, to pay homage to those who gave their lives in two great wars, that the rest of us might LIVE to enjoy the privileges of peace and democracy.

A moment's pause once a year, is not uch. But if in that moment, we all resolve to strive unceasingly for adherence to the democratic principles for which our soldiers died . . . and if we practice those principles—without compromise—without relaxation . . . then perhaps, we shall have given purpose to their supreme sacrifice.

Armistice Day

Our first impulse on Armistice Day is quite properly, to bow our heads in sorrow for the loss of those valiant men who made the supreme sacrifice during two world wars. We remember Chateau Thierry and the Marne. We recall Guadacanal, Anzio and Normandy. We sigh and recall that Victory was achieved in both wars and yet there is still no true victory of peace.

Thus it is that no memorial to these valiant men can ever express the honor that is due them, unless it is a living memorial expressed in terms of achieving the principles for which they gave their lives. So, when we pause on this day to try to do them honor by parades that pass in the moment and speeches that vanish from memory on their own winged words, let us resolve anew to oppose intolerance and demagoguery with every one of the cherished democratic instruments at command.

"Balanced Budget"—A Nasty Tearm

Recall years back when a tobacco company's advertising campaign stressed the slogan, "SPIT is a nasty word — particularly on the end of a cigar"? Today it might be modified, "Balanced budget is a nasty term—especially in Washington."

Edward G. Nourse, recent chairman of the president's council of economic advisers, had the poor tact last month at what he thought to be a closed meeting to decry the government's deficit spending. But murder will out, and the boss learned about it.

The papers last weekend announced that Nourse has "stepped out" as chairman of the economic advisers council. Let there be no misunderstanding over a choice of phrases. "Stepped out" nothin' —the man was PUSHED!

School Reorganization Outlook Doesn't Appear Promising

Prospects for reorganization of school districts in Iowa are not very bright. That was the impression obtained by members of the scant PTA audience who heard the recent discussion of the subject presented here by Cameron M. Ross of the state department of education.

According to the present state law, county boards of education have through 1952 to analyze needs for reorganization in their respective counties and recommend a vote on the question by the school districts involved. We haven't ascertained if the Wright county board is working on any concrete recommendations -- but if the members aren't we can't say we blame them too much.

Parents in rural school districts—or any type of school district—are more apt to get their backs up at a hint that their school could be improved and their children could be better provided for than they are to act favorably on a recommendation to correct faults in their school organization. We don't say this is right; but we fear it's human nature.

It appears to us that the best chance of reorganizing the schools lies in awakened interest of parents and individual school boards in the problem and cooperative action amongst them. Of course, the state board of education will say, "We've been waiting for years for this to happen; but faults are simply overlooked and nothing is done."

Although the initiative is supposed to come from the county boards, we're sure if several school districts went together to find a solution to the common weaknesses of their schools and worked out a reorganization plan for their combined good, they would have no trouble obtaining from the county board a recommendation to the state department of education that a vote on the issue be approved.

In the event of such a ballot, only such districts as vote "aye" are included in the reorganization—so no district can be forced to participate against the will of the majority of its voters.

Whatever the ultimate answer to the problem of school reorganization may be, we don't think the present approach through the county boards is the right one. But under present circumstances it's going to take until 1953 to prove that this is the case.

Set 'Em Up in the Other Alley

Belmond should be a pleasanter, better-natured town than ever now that bowling facilities are available to the general public. Wonderful pastime, bowling, for simmering off.

Along comes a bad day — the boss was grumpy; or the help was sassy; or the wife bawled you out for forgetting to mail that letter; or you've gotten word that Aunt Matilda is going to pay you a "brief" visit of four weeks.

Just try to work off steam over a bridge table, shooting a game of pool or popping a batch of popcorn. Fine chance! But smacking those maple pins for a loop—that's something different. It does something for a man or woman to let fly and make things tumble. So take our recommendation. Next time you near the end of a wrong-side-of-the-bed day, just top it off with a couple of lines of bowling.

Very therapeutic!

Editorially Speaking--

The Stork and the School Board

First we wondered why there was such a housing shortage and now we are wondering why our elementary schools are so crowded It is all connected. The stork has been extra busy during recent years—delivering a lot more precious little bundles then he ever averaged before.

The first of these are beginning to storm the schoolhouse doors right now, and their little brothers and sisters will follow them before we know it.

Members of the school board know this all too well. They know that this additional enrollment means more classrooms, more teachers in the elementary grades, more textbooks and supplies. They've already had to so something about it in Clear Lake. We now have two kindergarten teachers where we only had one three years ago. The crowding of the schools has become a major problem. There's some talk about adding on to the Lincoln building.

It isn't just the school board's problem, it is yours and mine, all parents, professional people and business people. If you don't have children or they are grownup, you are a taxpayer, you are interested in having good citizens and well educated neighbors. That's America.—Clear Lake Mirror.

Students Selling Tickets Now For Coming Jr. Play

Tickets for the annual junior class play can now be obtained from any member of the class, or can be obtained at the door before curtain time next Wednesday evening, Nov. 16. This year's play is a mystery-comedy by Elnora Olmstead, "The Curse of the Incas," and is directed by Charline Miller. The show will start at 8:00 p. m. at the high school auditorium.

Entre act music, under direction of Eldoris Kintzi, will include a solo by Mary Lou Baker and songs by the girls' sextet.

Rivalry between two young men over a rich relative's estate provides the base of the play's plot; the scene is laid in a deserted house which was owned by said relative. Matters are complicated when the hero's ex-fiancee, her brother, aunt and the latter's maid, to escape a rain storm, take refuge in the house where the two estate claimants are disputing each other's rights.

When it is discovered that precious jewels are hidden in the house, there is a frantic search to gain their possession. The hunt is spiced by the appearance of the ghost of an Inca priest and a white wraith. A professor supplies scientific explanation, in due time, for all the mysterious happenings— except one.

A colored chauffer helps capture the crooks, when he isn't otherwise engaged courting the aunt's maid; and everything is ironed out to general satisfaction by time for the final curtain.

will be a forced issue before very many more years have passed, but declares that solution of the problem is beyond the financial means of the present organization.

A committee headed by A. C. Lieuwen, cemetery superintendent, and including Ed Bailey and Mrs. D. L. Rankins was appointed to confer with an attorney in regard to dissolution of the incorporated cemetery association and leaving responsibility for cemetery management and upkeep to the city.

Growth of Belmond's population in late years has changed consideration of cemetery expansion from a matter for proper consideration at some future time to one which requires prompt study, Mrs. Luick says.

Concensus of opinion among the association members was that the whole cemetery problem should be shouldered by city authorities, since the financial quandry could then at least in part be solved by taxation. Further, she added, the active personnel of the cemetery association has remained the same for many years and those who have been bearing the responsibility feel that it should be shared.

Mrs. Luick, for example, has been president of the association for 24 years.

Fourteen members of the association attended the meeting Friday, representing the largest attendance at a meeing in a number of years, according to Mrs. Luick.

At the meeting the need for widening the cemetery gates was discussed. A project to this end was approved and the work, to be financed by the Cemetery Aid association, is to be completed within the next few weeks.

for the season ran about 200 birds—mainly from blackhead disease and cannibalism.

Mrs. Hedges estimates some 110 birds have been killed by vicious flock-mates. With hens selling at 45 cents a pound and averaging 14 to 15 pounds in weight, and toms selling at 40 cents and having a mature weight of nearly 28 pounds, such a loss falls considerably short of being a laughing matter.

She says it is very difficult to detect the offenders; she just knows that cannibalism has been going on when she finds a bird pecked to death. From experience, though she knows what a "homicidal" hen or tom can do in a feathered friend with about 15 minutes of concentrated pecking.

All but about 900 of this year's flock has been sold. Hens require about six months to mature and toms about seven. To raise her turkeys to adulthood, Mrs. Hedges feeds a flock the size of this year's some $6000 worth of commercial mash about $1200 worth of corn.

Her farm includes 84 acres and she had 18 acres of corn, raised for her on shares by Vernon McLaughlin. The turkeys, themselves, require a good deal of space because their feeding plot ideally should be about an acre for every 100 birds — and the flock has to be moved to clean feeding grounds nearly every week to avoid disease.

Incidentally, Mrs. Hedges isn't so disturbed about down corn as most farmers in this locality are. She says, "I'll just lift the fence and let the birds into the field. That will take care of the corn."

She does all the feeding and watering herself. The only help she hires is occasional day labor to look after such things as repair of feeders and shelters.

Although turkeys are notoriously temperamental and given to mass suicide by piling when frightened, Mrs. Hedges has never suffered any heavy losses from such causes. She credits this good fortune to the fact that her flocks have ample feeding space and therefor aren't crowded.

She recalls the famous "Armistice Day freeze" of some years back with no great delight, but she was not badly hit by losses because of it. Many turkey breeders were wiped out by the freeze, but Mrs. Hedges—with some assistance—worked until 2:00 a. m. getting her birds into warm cover and lost only two.

She confesses that after 31 years of association with turkeys their personality still leaves her cold. She has a flock of 26 sheep —Columbias—and she is quite attached to them. They pay for themselves through the sale of lambs and wool.

"I like to have the sheep around," Mrs. Hedges says. "I get a lot of pleasure out of them. The turkeys? . . They're strictly for profit."

one instance did any of the thousands of cars confronted with the warning sign fail to stop.

On that occasion a patrolman who was helping Sheriff Wilson with a test chased the violator three miles only to be informed by the motorist, when the latter was stopped, that he simply didn't see the beacon.

Examination of the violator's driving license showed that he had very poor eyesight and was restricted to driving only when wearing his glasses. At the time he didn't have them on — and, literally, he had not seen the signal clearly enough to know what it was. With that one exception, the signal has been effective in tests, 100 per cent.

At accident scenes, the signals will be used in pairs, one at either edge of the conjested area. Placed in the middle of the highway or street, they cannot be overlooked. As road blocks, they can be used singly.

"I'll swear it's a big improvement over the railroad fusees we used to use," says the sheriff. "I've been run right off the road, standing in the middle of the highway with a fusee in my hand. Much better one of these beacons should be sitting there."

Deceased

TO: Loran Hadley, Administrator of the Estate of Sarah Hadley, Deceased; Lyle Hartness; Ryle Hartness; Rex Hartness; and to any and all persons interested in the Estate of B. P. Hadley, Deceased.

You and each of you are hereby notified that there is now on file in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of Wright County, Iowa, in the above entitled estate proceeding, the application of Herb Hadley, Executor of the Estate of B. P. Hadley, Deceased, asking the court to construe and interpret the terms and provisions of the Last Will and Testament of B. P. FUNERAL RITES HELD HERE ON SUNDAY FOR MARY OLIVE WEBB, 81

Final services were held Sunday afternoon from the Methodist church for Mary Olive Webb, 81, who passed away at the I. O. O. F. Home at Mason City last Thursday. The funeral was conducted by Rev. J. Heber Miller.

Mrs. Webb was born Mary Olive Barrickman on Feb. 1, 1868 at Memphis, Mo. She wed Robert E. Webb on Aug. 26, 1888. To them were born four children, two of whom preceded their mother in death.

In 1900 the Webbs moved from Missouri to a farm near Alexander and four years later to one near Belmond. In 1908 Mr. Webb established a dairy in Belmond which he operated for 20 years. The couple celebrated their Golden Wedding aniversary in 1938. Mr. Webb died in 1940.

Mrs. Webb was active here in the Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors and Rebekah lodge. At an early age she united with the M. E. Church, South, and while living in Belmond served loyally the Methodist church. She served as president of the Ladies Aid at the time the parsonage was built in 1915 and for some years held the position of superintendent of the adult home department.

The last three years of her life she spent at the I. O. O. F. Home. She is survived by a half-brother, Elra Barrickman of Memphis, Mo.; her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Christie of Belmond; and a son, Rev. Harry L. Webb of Carrezozo, N. M. She also leaves four grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Pall bearers for the funeral were James Trees, Ed Riggs, Andrew Lieuwen, Andrew Loats, Otto Hanson and Glenn Baker. Interment was in Belmond cemetery. Boone Funeral home was in charge of the services.

BROADWAY AND MAIN STREET

If the Brakes Don't Work Just Hit Something Cheap

By BILLY ROSE

A fellow tried to sell me a helicopter the other day. He told me I could hop from the roof of my theatre to my place in Westchester in 20 minutes, and added that it was as easy to drive as a car. I told him I wasn't interested because I couldn't drive a car.

How come? Didn't I ever try and learn? Just once. And here's what happened. . . .

One day several summers ago, my wife said, "I wish you'd learn how to drive. Every time you want a paper or a pack of cigarettes, I've got to stop what I'm doing and chauffeur you into the village."

"Okay," I said, "if you'll play teacher."

Next morning I crawled into the car beside Eleanor. "Just turn this jigger over," she began, "push in this dingus, pull out this doohickey, step on this wingdoodle, press down on this thing-amabob, and you're all set to go."

Billy Rose

"What's this gizmo?" I asked.

"The hand brake," she said. "You throw it on quickly in case of emergency."

"What happens if the brakes don't work?"

"Hit something cheap," advised my spouse.

A MOMENT LATER the car went hiccuping down the road. Then for a mile it went smooth as you please. A feeling of confidence came over me, the same feeling all new drivers get just before the lights go out. I pressed down on the gas.

"The pistons seem to be knocking," I said professionally.

"Pistons nothing," said Eleanor. "Those are my knees."

Everything went fine until we got to the traffic light in the village. I forgot to press the hickeymadoodle on the gilhooley and the car stalled. The lights changed from green to red, and from red back to green. A cop came over.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Haven't we got any colors you like?"

After switching the radio on and off, I suddenly pressed the right thing. In the order of the way it happened, I grazed the cop, skidded through the safety zone, clipped the fender on a bus, and came to rest with my bumper against a fire plug. The cop stalked over, took a handkerchief out of his pocket and dropped it in front of the car.

"Lookit, Gene Autry," he said. "I wana see you do that all over again, and this time pick up the handkerchief with your teeth."

Eleanor gave him the smile that used to make the front cover of "Life." "He's learning to drive," she said.

"No kidding!" said the cop. "How long is this class going to last? Some other drivers would like to use this road when Sonny Boy gets through with it."

"What did I do wrong?" I asked the officer.

"Didn't you hear my whistle? Didn't you see my signal?" he demanded.

I shook my head.

The cop sighed. "You'd better go home," he said. "You don't seem to be doing much good around here."

I THREW THE CAR into reverse and backed away from the fire plug.

"If you're going to drive much," yelled the cop, "I'd have the car painted red on one side and blue on the other, so the witnesses will contradict each other."

I had only one more mishap getting home. I scraped a guy's fender. He was pretty nice about it. "It's my fault," he said. "I saw you coming. I should have driven into the fields and avoided you."

There are two stone posts flanking the drive which leads up to our home. I got past them without a scratch—also without the rear bumper. That did it.

Since then, I've never been behind a wheel. When Eleanor and I go driving I sit in the back seat and read the Burma Shave signs. The only concession I've made to the Automotive Age is to learn how to fold a road map.

Corn Borer Problem Constitutes 'Powder Keg' For Wright Farmers

County Has Third Highest Count in State -- Bowman

Wright county farmers are sitting on a powder keg as far as next year's corn borer situation is concerned, according to Aaron R. Bowman, county extension director. Bowman bases his statement on the annual fall corn borer count taken cooperatively by federal and state entomologists.

This survey shows that Wright county corn fields are harboring an average of 1824 borers per 100 stalks this fall. This is the third heaviest infestation in the state exceeded only by Sioux county with 2425, and Bremer with 1850 borers per 100 stalks.

Wright county corn fields are harboring over five times as many borers this fall as compared to last fall. Last fall Wright county had 361 borers compared to the 1824 borers this year.

Borer counts have been increasing steadily every year, since they were first found in the county. Borer counts have been made every fall by state and federal entomologists at about the same time. The borer count per 100 stalks for the last five years shows 1945—3; 1946—25; 1947—109; 1948—361; and 1824 this year.

While the corn borer count isn't as high in the surrounding counties, they also show heavy increases in the number of borers. Comparing the last two years: Franklin had 172 borers per 100 stalks in 1948 and 855 this year; Hamilton 211 and 458; Hancock 233 and 1019; Humboldt 265 and 1467; Webster 348 and 957.

While the area count is likely more accurate than any individual count, one thing is certain. The potential borer population for next summer and the potential damage to next year's crop is great. Last year's overwintering population of 361 borers per 100 stalks produced a crop of borers this past summer that reduced yields by 20 percent, in controlled experiments in the county.

Leaf and stalk damage reduced feeding area of the corn plant and increased the damage by drought in many sections of the county. In addition to the loss in yields is the dropped ear and broken stalks damage that made it impossible to harvest the entire crop by mechanical pickers. From six to 40 bushels of corn has been left in fields of the county, making back breaking hand picking necessary in many cases following the mechanical picker.

The right kind of weather (wrong for the corn borer) this winter and next spring during egg laying could reduce the borer population. Also, things farmers do from now until May 15 to destroy borers will help.

Clean plowing is the most practical thing farmers can do now to reduce borer numbers, Bowman said. Stalk crushers will help but, are not the complete answer. Bowman doesn't recommend burning because it costs too much, doesn't kill enough borers, destroys organic matter and nitrogen and promotes erosion.

But the borer population this fall means one thing for sure. Farmers are going to have to learn how to use chemicals to prevent losses. H. M. Harris, head of the entomology department of Iowa State college and state entomologist, puts it this way:

"Our corn borer population is such that Iowa farmers are going to have to think in terms of chemical treatment as an added operation in corn growing, just like cultivation. From here on out, a farmer will lose more often than he wins, if he skips treatment."

EDITORIAL

Hallowe'en is once more past, with its ghosts and goblins.

Hallowe'en is an eve of the Christian Festival of "All Saints." The name Halloween means "Holly Eve" a time originally set apart to honor the memory of all Saints. About 13 centuries ago, Pagans celebrated "All Saints Day"; when spirits, both good and evil, were believed to be on the earth.

Now Halloween has changed to a name meaning "Let's see how much damage I can do." The young people in their teens go out to soap windows, steal pumpkins, and destroy people's personal property.

Around town here there are many things misplaced. Instead of the Holy Eve that we should have, Halloween has turned into an evening mishaps. The young children enjoy dressing up and going around scaring their neighbors and best friends, they like to have parties with popcorn and apples. So next year at Hallowe'en time I hope that everyone will try to be sensible and celebrate the Holy Eve as it should be celebrated.

Last Tuesday evening, Nov. 1, the Hec Mec Club held a Hallowe'en party at the school house, in the music room. They decorated it up for a Hallowe'en masquerade, they used candles and jack-o-lanterns for light.

There was one incident about this party that was interesting. After the group got back from a Scavenger Hunt, they all walked into the music room and found the place on fire, and I mean on fire! They had left a few candles burning, one was on the piano and the other was on the window sill. The one on the piano burned a hole in the top of it and the one on the window sill caught the shade and part of the window sill on fire. They finally got it out but I don't think it will ever be forgotten, at least for a long while.

Although despite this incident the party was very much enjoyed by all.

SENIOR NEWS

The Juniors are finally back in class with the seniors again. They are starting with the daily routine of Government and Speech classes.

The Seniors have been all together for a while, now that corn picking has let up some. But I know they would all enjoy another vacation. Their wish will probably come true for there will be held Teachers Convention the end of this week.

In business arithmetic, they are now working on division problems

JUNIOR NEWS

The Juniors have been trying to get their minds on their studies after giving the class play. The play turned out very well after many days and nights of giving practice.

The Juniors are planning to have a party next Tuesday night. At the party we plan to go to Hampton and have an early supper and then go to the first show. The name of the show is "You're My Everything."

The Junior class wishes to thank everyone for their attendance at our play and those who helped to make it the success that it was. Again thank you.

SOPHOMORE NEWS

The Sophomores have all been doing very well in all subjects.

In home economics the girls are learning how to cook and prepare foods.

In manual training the boys are now working in the workshop.

In English they are studying the Reader's Digest. This is the first time they have studied the Digest this year.

The Sophomores are planning a party for Nov. 9.

FRESHMAN NEWS

Freshman Science

Our present study is concerned with the foods we eat and digestive systems. You know, we found out that although you may eat a lot of food and become over-stuffed, these bodies of ours have unique ways of using all this food energy.

This system of ours has such oddly named things as: pancreas, esophagus, and more could be named. Oddly enough, each part of the digestive system is extremely important.

The digestive system will be our course of study for the next few days at least.

Freshmen Algebra

In algebra we are at present studying "adding signed numbers". An example of such numbers is as follows:

- 5 plus 2 - 1 = ?
- 5 - 2 plus 7 ½ ?

By the looks of things we will be on it for a while.

Freshman English

During the past few days, we have been engaged in the study compound predicates, compound subjects. Do you know what these are? We found it out through a lot of hard work.

Following this study we spent quite some time on the correct ways in which to use a library. There's quite a bit to learning about the working of a library.

At present most of the class is concerned with telling simple stories, and it's not so simple either. There are quite a few items to consider when undertaking to tell a story. First, a good title, then the beginning and ending of the story. We are studying too, how to make a story more interesting, and this is quite a job.

Maybe by next week, we can tell a story partially as it should

7th and 8th Grade News

In history we have been making special reports on the following subjects, Civil War generals, the Republican party, Abraham Lincoln, dictionary study, definitions.

Added is study from textbooks on slavery.

Once a week we have current event study from a paper called "Junior Review." This paper is received and used once a week throughout the entire school year. Recent study from this paper has been on the United Nations 4th birthday. The B36 controversy and the old age pensions.

In 7th history we have been making maps of Indian Territory in early America. These maps are drawn free hand and colored.

Textbook study has been done on the early years of the French in America. Further study has been done on our weekly current events paper the "young citizen." Recent subjects are as follows: Oil progress in the United States, Study of West Germany as it is today, Causes of forest fires this year, and the study of China.

We also had the quarterly examination covering the aforementioned subject. Most of us did quite poorly on this test, the reason being we failed to actually study the material. We shall try harder next time.

A party was held by the 7th grade Monday afternoon and the 8th grade Wednesday afternoon.

The 7th grade is reading about radio sound effects and how they are made.

The Alkan highway is the subject for 8th reading.

In Science the 8th grade is drawing the digestive tract while the 7th grade is studying sound, its pitch and how it is carried.

Margery Barkema, Thersa Abel and Oliver Olsen have had perfect spelling all year thus far.

SIXTH GRADE NEWS

For our Hallowe'en party we had committees to take care of different things. We all had a swell time.

In science we have made weather reports and then compare them with the ones in the newspapers. It proves very interesting and yet educational.

Our new chapter in arithmetic deals with decimals and their use.

In our P. T. A. contest we have 22 members.

FIFTH GRADE NEWS

The news this week is taken from our studies of the past two weeks, due to the fact that there wasn't any new last week.

Last Friday we had our Hallowe'en party. We all helped in decorating our room and then we all enjoyed the treats and games.

In geography we are studying the west, south central states. We then had a test over them.

Benjamin Franklin is our principal subject in history. He must have had a very interesting life.

In science we are studying force and its benefits.

The blood and its circulation, and the heart, and our pulse is what we've been studying in health.

We have twenty-one members in our P. T. A. contest at the moment.

3rd and 4th Grade News

Our much looked forward to Hallowe'en party is over.

Everyone had a wonderful time.

On Thursday Jimmie Barkema treated us to ice cream. "Happy birthday, Jimmie!"

The fourth grade is working on long division in arithmetic.

In third grade we are learning to add numbers in columns.

2nd Grade News

Last week was Gilbert Schulte's birthday. He treated the class to Hershey candy bars.

In art we are learning to make book covers. In these we will put worksheets covering the holidays

Donna Weirs brought a plant to school Tuesday. Frances Burger brought a bean plant which is just beginning to grow.

1st Grade News

Learning our numbers is more enjoyable with our new books, "Numbers We See." All of us have learned the difference of "Many and Few."

In reading, we have been just reviewing our preprimers, while others are finishing the preprimers.

Hallowe'en will soon be here so we have been decorating our room. Today we're making jack-o-lanterns from the pumpkins which the children brought.

Everyone enjoys the six new reading books which we have in our library.

Kindergarten News

We have started making a farm unit, also have some animals and fences made, and a barn. Mrs. Boyington has read some farm books to us and showed us some farm pictures.

Jerry Modderman and Norman Bohning brought birthday treats to our room.

We enjoyed Edward's book of Little Brown Koko stories and Linda's book of stories.

Each week we have two helpers in our room. We have some very good ones.

The past week our class has been fixing over our nursery room. Each of us have helped in changing it.

Mr. Tinkey brought us a nice new table which is enjoyed very much.

Mary Ann Winfield has been very ill this week. We hope she will soon be better and can come back to school.

We made new window decorations for our room. They are squash and green leaves.

Thomas Mitchell brought us some nice birthday treats last Thursday.

On Friday afternoon we first enjoyed seeing the Junior play. After this we had our Hallowe'en party. Each of us had a mask to wear. We hunted for hidden jelly beans and first prize went to Linda Greenfield and second prize to Jerry Johnson.

We attempted to put a tail on a cat blindfolded then bobbed for apples. We ate popcorn balls and apples, while we enjoyed looking at the jack-o-lanterns burn. The shades were pulled.

In our P. T. A. contest we have 18 members.

VOL. 31 NO. 5 OFFICIAL CITY PAPER Belmond, Wright County, Iowa Thursday, November 17, 1949 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER The Family Newspaper

MAIN STREET

By George C. Hansen

Believers in hard work, clean living and abstinence might find some cause for reflection upon reading in last week's issue of the Britt News-Tribune a story clipped from the New York World-Telegram regarding the recent death of Dan O'Brien, the Hobo King.

Dan died at the ripe old age of 91 at Bellevue hospital in the big city. Commented a brother Knight of the Road, attending O'Brien's funeral, "He's got a thousand wrinkles, but not one from worry. They was all done by time and weather."

The same pal also commented, "If it hadn't been for booze, Dan would have lived a hundred years, easy! Not only did he drink it, normally—but when he was disgusted he'd take a bath in the stuff."

An old friend of Dan's, a mortgage banker, paid for the funeral, and another guaranteed that the spirit of Dan O'Brien would be escorted directly to Paradise. "I'll see to that," he promised. "I have relatives at the gate."

We've summed up the tale's significance like this. Hard work? Phooie! Clean living? Don't worry! Abstinence? Just don't BATHE in your liquor, bud.

—M-S—

While conventional-size colors fluttered from flag-poles up and down Main Street last Friday, from the staff in front of Charley Studebaker's pool palace flipped a petite copy of Old Glory about 10 inches in dimension. As we hear it, Charley is almost fresh out of flags and had none in fitting condition to exhibit in honor of Armistice Day. So Mr. Studebaker's patriotism and civic pride will not be questioned in years to come, a "flag fund" was started by that public-spirited citizen, Keith Chandler. As of 1:12 p. m. Friday, $1.64 had been accumulated.

—M-S—

Down in Des Moines,
The story goes,
Gamblers by the score
Had handed out
"Protection" cash
When the knock came
At the door.
But now the "clippers"
Are getting "clipped",
Even as you and I.
And what do they say
With the tables turned?
"Grand Larsony!"
Is their cry!

—Bard of Belmond

—M-S—

We can't vouch for the truth of the rumor, but we hear that a number of teams in the men's bowling leagues are dickering with Mary Gordon in an effort to induce her to desert the Greenhouse women's team and join up with them.

Last week, while many a brawny he-man was sweating over splits and misses and battling to hit 120, tiny Mrs. Gordon was committing mayhem among the maple pins. With a high game of 188 and a series of 492, she made about 90 per cent of the male keglers look more than a little ineffectual . . . Brawn can't be the answer, men. Could it be brains?

—M-S—

What say — are you, or are you not enjoying the columns which have appeared in the last three issues penned by the redoubtable Billy Rose? If you want 'em to continue, speak up, ladies and gentlemen. Remember, we've engaged Mr. Rose's services for only a six-week trial. From there on, continuation of the Rose prose in The Independent depends upon reader response.

—M-S—

While on the subject of reader response, we'd also like your reaction to The Independent's new policy of editorials from a local viewpoint.

If you haven't been reading them, we urge you to peek at today's editorial columns for a sample. You'll not find them high-brow. (Ed's note: got no high-brows on OUR staff!) But they are aimed at Belmond and not Buenos Aires; and we hope, through them, to induce a little thought in regard to problems that are distinctly THIS community's.

If they inspire you to talk back—either pro or con—don't hesitate. We'll welcome your comments, critical or otherwise.

Bronc Cagers Open Their Card With League Jamboree Friday

First Regular Game Next Tuesday Night at Klemme

Bolstered by return to the squad of veterans Bob Berns and Curt Mennenga and the addition of Sid Swenson, the Belmond high basketball squad is hard at it this week preparing for their opening appearance of the year in the annual North Iowa Conference Jamboree this Friday evening. Pair of Goodell Youths Escape Serious Injuries As Car Skids and Rolls

Roger and Keith Halfpap, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Halfpap of the Goodell neighborhood, escaped serious injury last Friday about noon, when their Ford car skidded on loose gravel and rolled over three times.

They were going to Goodell when the mishap occurred between the Burke and Dewey farms west of that community. When the car was rolling over, Roger was thrown some 25 feet clear of the wreck and was knocked unconscious.

Keith remained in the car, which ended up in the roadside ditch. Donald Burke hurried to the scene and administered first aid, pending arrival of medical assistance from Belmond.

Keith escaped practically unhurt. Roger was painfully bruised but is recovering nicely. The car was badly wrecked.

O'Connor Youth Seriously Hurt In Gun Mishap

Simpson Boy Praised for Quickly Giving First Aid

Malcom O'Connor, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. James O'Connor, was seriously wounded in the left leg about 4:00 p. m. Tuesday when he fell and a shotgun he was carrying accidentally discharged. Quick thinking on the part of Donald Simpson, a 14-year-old companion, in applying a tourniquet prevented the mishap from being a possibly fatal one.

At the Belmond hospital it was reported that young O'Connor lost a good deal of flesh from the front of his leg above the knee by the blast and that many pellets were imbedded in the flesh, but that the bone was not harmed.

A transfusion was administered and the boy appeared to be recovering in good shape. He will, however, be hospitalized for quite a lengthy period of time. A skin graft will be required to mend the wound.

The two grade school boys were hunting north of town by the gravel pit in company with Gordon Hildebrand, a high school senior, and Dwight Whelan, a junior. Having spotted no pheasants, the group became somewhat excited when at length a duck flew over and landed in the pit.

Young O'Connor started running down a hill, hoping to get a shot at the duck, when he tripped and fell, discharging his 12-gauge gun. Shortly afterward George Hinman drove by in his car and O'Connor's companions dispatched him to get medical assistance.

By the time Dr. G. J. Hruska and Fulton's ambulance had arrived from town, the wound's bleeding had been largely stopped by the tourniquet the Simpson boy had applied, fashioned out of his scarf.

Doctors at the clinic had the highest praise for Simpson's presence of mind, saying O'Connor's condition could easily have been critical by the time medical help arrived if the flow of blood had not been promptly staunched.

Mrs. Fred Vestweber and Mrs. Art Hill accompanied by Mrs. Ralph Watts of Clarion, spent Tuesday in Fort Dodge.

Greenfield Operated On; May Yet Play Basketball

Keith Greenfield, co-captain of the 1949 high school football team and basketball regular last year, was operated upon yesterday to patch up a knee injury sustained in a game this fall.

According to Dr. S. P. Leinbach, Greenfield will be hospitalized for only five or six days. It will take the knee a number of weeks to get back into normal condition, but Doctor Leinbach anticipates that the star athlete will be able to see action on the basketball court before the season is over.

Football Honor Emblems Given To Sixteen Men

Broncos Pick Greenfield, Berns as '49 Co-Captains

Sixteen varisty gridders and 11 members of the freshman-sophomore footaball squad were awarded letters at the annual Gridiron club banquet for the boys, held Monday evening at the high school hot lunch room. Coach "Pat" Patterson announced that Keith Greenfield and Bob Berns were elected by the varsity squad as honorary captains of the 1949 Broncos.

Nine of the varsity letter-winners are seniors, indicating that Patterson has a man-sized job of rebuilding to face when the football season rolls around again next fall. Graduating veterans are: Duane Trager, Jerry Hanson, Richard Kriens, Robert Redmond, Curtis Mennenga, Jim Thompsen, Vernon Dipple, and Co-Captains Greenfield and Berns.

Six monogram winners are juniors: Jack Riggs, Clelan Redmond, Bill Trees, Dick Elliott, Dick Simpson and Marlyn Watermiller. The only underclassman to win a "B" was Howard Wagner, a sophomore.

One sophomore was among the 11 frosh-soph boys winning emblems; he was Odean Severseike. Ten preps were honored: Eddie Reno, Allen Shahan, Vernon Myer, Kenneth White, Claude Larkin, Sherman Oberhauser, David Helland, Wilbur Daniels, Allen Madsen and Kenneth Eccles. This is the first year that minor letters have been awarded.

In reviewing the season, which saw the Broncos win six out of eight contests, and five out of six North Iowa conference games, Coach Patterson remarked that Belmond scored 209 points to their opponents' 97.

Although he was out of play the last two games due to an injury, Keith Greenfield was the leading touchdown-maker for the Broncos with 12 to his credit. Jack Riggs followed with nine, Bob Redmond tallied five and Bob Berns three. Watermiller, Trager and Clelan Redmond each accounted for one. In the extra-point department, Belmond made good on only 17 out of 32 tries—which "Pat" conceded was not exactly a record to brag about.

Two Days Remain To Cast Ballots For Marlys Jean

Time still remains to cast final ballots in behalf of Marlys Jean Thompson in Lux beauty contest sponsored by radio station KGLO. When Mrs. Ray Thompson, the candidate's mother, made delivery of a bundle of wrapper-votes at Mason City last weekend, she was informed that the deadline for accepting ballots had been extended from Monday to this Friday night.

Consequently, Marly Jean fans can still express preference for their candidate by depositing votes at any of the numerous downtown polling places by tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Thompson reports that she has taken some 300 ballots, collected in Belmond, to the Mason City station. She adds that a great number more have been mailed in, and that heavy voting during the last few days of the contest should materially increase the total number cast for the Belmond entry.

Warden Nabs 16 Hunters; Law Violations Cost 'em Total of $405 in Fines

Sixteen hunters apprehended by Game Warden Bill Ayers over the weekend, mainly on charges of carrying loaded or assembled guns in a vehicle on the public highway, paid a total of $405 in fines plus costs in the courts of Justice R. J. Fritsch in Garner and Justice O. E. McGahey in Clarion.

None of the law violators was from this immediate vicinity. One hunter paid a fine of $100 and costs for having a hen pheasant in his possession. Ten men, appearing before Justice Fritsch, were fined $25, plus, on the loaded or assembled gun charge.

For the same violation, Justice McGahey fined three men $15 apiece and two others $5 each, plus costs.

Pheasants For Vets

HUNT NEXT SUNDAY

Belmond war veterans will be given an opportunity to give their less fortunate buddies a break next Sunday when a pheasant hunt will be conducted jointly by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion for the benefit of VA hospital patients at Des Moines and Knoxville.

All hunters, regardless of whether they belong to either service organization, are cordially invited to contribute to the very worthy cause. All participants are free to form their own parties. For the benefit of any sportsmen without partners to hunt with, a party will form at the Legion hall at 11:30 a. m.

Birds should be turned in at the Legion hall by 5:00 p. m. George Jenison, VFW commander, is making arrangements for transporting the pheasants to Des Moines Sunday evening.

This year the Pheasants-for-Veterans movement plans to include patients at the Knoxville hospital for the first time. Consequently some 400 more pheasants are needed than were required last year.

"It's a small thing to do for the hospitalized vets, many of whom would give a right arm to be out after their own birds," says Commander Jenison. "So let's turn out strong for the hunt, knock down plenty of pheasants and see that they're turned in by the deadline."

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wolters and Larry visited at the Teddy Pals home in Sheffield Sunday night.

Beverly Riekens and Tommy Downs were Saturday afternoon guests at the Klaas Steenhard home near Clarion.

Deputy Blecker Named As New County Sheriff

Officer Election Slated By Chamber of Commerce

Fifty Football Players Guests Monday Night

Gene Woolley Named New Gridiron Club President

As a festive crowd of 121 members and guests gathered Monday evening at the school hot lunch room for the annual Gridiron club banquet, all appeared in perfect agreement that Belmond's football players of '49 had every reason to be proud of the success of their season. Fifty boys belonging to the varsity, freshman-sophomore and junior high squads were guests or honor.

Before the evening's activities got under way, Gridiron officer nominees for the coming year were announced by Dr. A. M. Larson, chairman of the nominating committee.

The men named were Gene Woolley for president, Jim Mariga for vice president and Wes Boller for secretary-treasurer; and their election by acclamation promptly followed.

Club president Dr. A. M. Nelson then turned the meeting over to Clark McNeal, whom C. C. Christie of the program committee had appointed as master of ceremonies. After an official welcome by President Nelson, the banqueters heard Coach Jim Scott of the junior high squad and Coach "Pat" Patterson of the varsity review their seasons.

Coach Patterson presented minor letters to members of the frosh-soph squad and major monograms to the varsity players who had qualified, along with Student Managers Jim Faris and Duane Nelson. Names of the letter-winners can be found elsewhere in this issue.

Dr. R. T. Coe of Ames, former Belmond mayor, spoke to the boys on the importance of building athletic tradition in a school and commended their record for the year.

Main speaker was Brad Wilson of the Des Moines Register and Tribune sports staff. He had a number of interesting stories to relate and gave his listeners some insight into the mechanics of picking the Iowa all-state players and the coach-of-the-year.

Club members and guests enjoyed a turkey dinner served by St. Elizabeth's club of St. Francis church. The lunch room was given a gala appearance by generous use of streamers displaying the Belmond school colors and banquets of fall flowers on the tables, and the diners — and waitresses, too — all received novelty football pins as a memento of the occasion.

Will Succeed Roy Wilson In Office on January 1st

Deputy Bob Blecker was appointed yesterday by the county board of supervisors to succeed Sheriff Roy E. Wilson Jan. 1, when the latter's recent resignation becomes effective.

Supervisor Alex Smith of Belmond moved acceptance of Blecker's application for the appointment and the motion was seconded by Henry Pinkham of Goldfield. The appointment was made by unanimous vote of the board.

Bob has been deputy to Sheriff Wilson since June of 1947 and in that time has proved himself a competent law enforcement official. His application for appointment as sheriff was cordially approved by his superior, who expresses confidence that Blecker will prove both capable and popular in his new job.

Blecker gained valuable experience for a career in law enforcement during the 20 months he served in the U. S. Army during the war. For 10 months he was a member of the Military Police staff in Chicago.

The new sheriff is a native of Clarion and a graduate of Clarion high school. He is married and has three children: Timmy, who is four; Tommy, age two; and Nancy, a two-month-old.

In a statement to The Independent, Bob said, "I deeply appreciate the public backing that my application received and which undoubtedly influenced the board in making my appointment. I will do my very best to uphold the standards that have always been maintained by Sheriff Wilson so that the office will be respected in the future as it always has been in the past."

MUSICALE-CARNIVAL AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH DECEMBER 1

On Thursday evening, Dec. 1, the Congo club of the Congregational church will sponsor a musical program and Mexican carnival. The program will begin at 8 o'clock and will offer selections under the title "American Music." There will be vocal and instrumental numbers by guest artists.

"The Ballad for Amercans" will be sung by a mixed chorus, with George Infelt as baritone soloist. This is a story in song of the history of our country, written to combat intolerance and misunderstanding.

The church parlors will be made into a Mexican street market with roadside booths. Along the "Escaporate" (midway) will be booths displaying silver work, linens, basket and leather work and many other articles made by Mexicans.

There will also be the "Marketa Par Senoritas" which will offer for sale articles made by the Women's Circle.

The recreation center will offer games of skill and entertainment items, including the Mexican Hat Dance .

Rehearsals for the program were begun some time ago. The music used is of high order, but is entertaining and "The Ballad for American" is said to offer a message which is needed in these times.

—ONLY TWO MORE WEEKS TO GO—

THANKS TO SOME 650 MILES OF NEW WIRE STRUNG, OVER 3,000 NEW POLES SET, DIALS NEARLY READY

After nearly nine years of intermittent preparation, Belmond will see its first dial telephones in operation in about two weeks. This announcement was made Tuesday by Toral Duckett of Sioux Falls, S. D., division manager of the Central Telephone company. He was in town with K. L. Rasmus, area manager from Sioux Falls, conferring with Lloyd Bruner, local manager, on final conversion plans.

It's taken not only lots of time—thanks to interruption during the war—but miles of wire (about 650), a virtual forest of poles (more than 3,000), and a pile of money to get ready for the switch to dials.

According to Mr. Duckett, improvement and conversion costs in Belmond alone will run about $200,000, and another $125,000 can be added as the expense of converting the Goodell, Meservey, Rowan and Alexander exchanges, which terminate here.

Conversion was started in 1940, and the Goodell exchange was changed over in that year. Then came the war — and all the equipment set aside for the local change-over departed to go into fighting ships. Work was resumed in 1946 and in 1947-48 the exchanges at Alexander, Meservey and Rowan switched to the dial system.

Belmond's exchange, with 1,080 phones in town and on the rural lines, was left to last. All aerial cable in the north half of town had to be replaced; rural poles, too, had to be replaced and mile upon mile of new wire strung. Drop wire (leading from pole to house) alone involved nearly 60 miles of new wiring. Now it's all completed except for wiring for 17 more phones.

About the first of next month the workmen will begin "cutting in" approximately 300 new dial phones per week. Manager Bruner says that at that rate the conversion should be completed by around the first of the year. A temporary directory will be delivered in each case as soon as a new phone is cut in. All the new phones will be hand-sets.

Just how telephone communication will be maintained during the conversion period looks more than a little perplexing to the layman, but Manager Bruner assures that there will be no break in service.

All dial numbers will be of three or four digits, and alphabet letters will go by the board. New, permanent directories will be published after all phones out of the local exchange have been switched to dial.

The new telephone building here will house not only local exchange equipment, but toll lines to outlying exchanges and long-distance toll lines to Clarion.

Gradual Increase Lately Reported In Scarlet Fever Cases Over State

A gradual increase in the number of cases of scarlet fever being reported to the State Department of Health during the past two months indicates that the seasonal increase usually experienced in Iowa this time of the year is underway. While the increase being experienced this year is not as sharp as last year at this time, it is well to bring attention to precautionary measures that should be taken to prevent the spread of scarlet fever.

Dr. Ralph Heeren, director of the division of preventable diseases of the Iowa State Department of Health, points out that the chief precaution is for parents to cooperate with their physicians and health officers in having cases reported and in observing isolation regulations to prevent spread to others. Children or adults who have the disease should be isolated for a period of 14 days from the onset of symptoms and for a longer time if complications develop.

Scarlet fever is a dangerous disease because the mild case as well as the severe case can spread the infection to others. For this reason the child who does not seem very ill should not be allowed to play with others. A sore throat is frequently the first sign of scarlet fever and the disease can be spread from the first day on.

Some people who are infected by scarlet fever germs do not have a rash because they have developed an immunity to the rash-producing toxin. They have a sore throat, fever, and other symptoms which are usual with a bad cold or tonsilitis. Scarlet fever without a rash is just as contagious as scarlet fever with a rash—perhaps more so, because it is not recognized as scarlet fever, and nothing is done to keep the infection from spreading.

Another Effort Slated To Effect Organization Of County Legionnaires

One last effort to form a Wright county American Legion organization was agreed upon Tuesday evening as state and district officials met with representatives of the Belmond and Clarion posts at the local Legion hall.

For the past year the county organization has been inactive. Pat Gallagher, Independent editor, agreed to accept the county commandership on a pro tem basis to see if cooperation would be forthcoming from posts in the county other than Clarion. Dick Hoyt of Clarion was named vice commander.

An interesting talk on the range and importance of national Legion activities was presented by Ward M. Loftin of Tama, Third District vice commander. District Commander P. Hope Overturf of Toledo conducted the meeting.

Only about a dozen and a half Legionnaires from the Belmond and Clarion posts turned out for the meeting, which was honored by the presence of Marshall F. Camp of Creston, Iowa Department commander and Department Vice Commander Ralph Ihrig of Waterloo.

LOCAL FUND CAMPAIGN FOR CHILDREN'S HOME OFF TO SLOW START

Since its founding in 1888, the Iowa Children's Home Society has cared for more than 18,000 neglected or abandoned children of which 157 were either from or were cared for in Wright county, it was stated this week by Mrs. H. M. Groves and Mrs. William Young Jr. of Eagle Grove, joint county chairmen of the campaign which, in Belmond, is to raise $210 for the work of the society.

Mrs. Clark McNeal and Mrs. Luin Cox, heading the local drive, announced on Tuesday that the canvass conducted last Saturday by the Girl Scouts had netted only $60 of the sum assigned to Belmond and that solicitation would continue until the goal is reached.

The drive is part of a statewide effort to raise $135,000 for present and future needs of the Society. The county's quota is $1320, Mrs. H. M. Groves states.

Reporting Farm Doings

By "Pat" Gallagher

Last Saturday was a big day in the life of Bernard Collins of Lincoln township, secretary of the Wright County Farm Bureau—and in the life of his father, L. W. Collins of Clarion. At a breakfast, to which many of their neighbors and friends had been invited, the two men were jointly presented the W. G. Skelly award for superior achievement in agriculture.

—RFD—

The entire nation got in on the party, as the story of the Collins' achievements was broadcast coincidentally over the NBC radio network by Lloyd Burlingham on his program, "This Farming Business".

—RFD—

When Bernard was notified of his unanimous nomination for the honor by a board of 10 midwestern farm leaders who had carefully studied his records and accomplishments, he informed them he would be obliged to decline with thanks unless the recognition could be shared with his father. Rather than striking his name off their list, the committee—with further admiration for their electee—yielded to Bernard's request, recognizing the father-son partnership in which one member works on the farm while the other labors about as hard in the service of the community.

—RFD—

What Bernard pointed out to the selection committee in regard to his father's record of service was too impressive to disregard L. W. Collins has long been president of the Clarion Farmers Elevator, having been a director for 12 years. He has been both president and treasurer of the Wright County Farm Bureau and is a past president of the State Cooperative Livestock Marketing association. He is also a trustee of the Clarion Methodist church and has taught in the Sunday school.

—RFD—

Bernard, himself, runs the 465-acre family farm, of which the Collins own 400 acres and rent 65—operating on a stock-share lease from his father. In this sizeable undertaking he is assisted by two hired men, his father and his mother, and his wife Dorothy. His two daughters — Christie, age five, and Mary, who is two—put in their licks where they can.

—RFD—

Production on the Collins farm includes 17,400 bushels of corn, 84.6 of soybeans, 5,650 of oats, 96,390 pounds of pork and small totals of eggs and beef. Bernard has future plans for an annual crop of 750 to 800 hogs—enough to consume most of the feed grown. The acreage of legumes is to be increased and some beef calves used as a market for roughage.

—RFD—

The soil conservation district looks upon Bernard as one of its staunch supporters and advocates. He cooperates by following recommended rotations and fits crops to soil types on the farm and to drainage, to keep erosion to a minimum.

—RFD—

Perhaps it is as a pork production expert that Bernard is becoming most widely known. He has worked out new labor short-cuts and gives close attention to details sometimes neglected on other farms—particularly in swine sanitation. He was one of the first farmers in Iowa to receive a Master Swine Producers award.

—RFD—

In spite of the great demands made on his time by the farm, Bernard finds time for community service, also. Besides serving as Farm Bureau secretary, he is president of the Central Iowa Farm Business association, a member of the Farmers Elevator company at Clarion and—like his father—a member of the Methodist church of the county seat town.

—RFD—

During the large breakfast gathering Saturday morning, recognition of Bernard and his father for superior achievement in agriculture came in the form of a $100 U. S. Savings Bond, scroll and lapel pin, which were presented in behalf of W. G. Skelly, president of the Skelly Oil company. Their many friends join in offering congratulations for bringing this honor to themselves and to Wright county.

—RFD—

The report of Aaron R. Bowman, county Farm Bureau extension director, at last week's fall meeting of the county organization, suggested that Mr. Bowman had very little time during the last 12 months to get into mischief. He conducted 145 meetings attended by 12,372 persons; visited 415 farms; held 3,617 office interviews and made 2,461 phone calls.

Three radio programs were prepared and 214 press articles; 4,088 bulletins and pamphlets were distributed; he wrote 1879 personal letters and 344 circular letters. He spent 159 days in the field and 138 in the office.

This last item is where we believe we have Mr. Bowman. You'll note he accounts for only 297 days. That leaves 68—of which 52 were Sundays and 14 we'll concede to vacation. But that leaves two days unaccounted for! What do you suppose he did? Just loaf?

Patrolmen Finding 1949 Far Busiest Year In History

The Iowa highway patrol this year will complete the heaviest volume of highway safety work in its history, surpassing the record activity for the same period last year, Patrol Chief S. N. Jesperson reports.

In a report to State Safety Commissioner Alfred Kahl, Jespersen said that on a "per man" basis, individual patrolmen during the first nine months of this year spent more time on the highways, assisted more motorists, and arrested or warned more violators than ever before.

Jesperson's report, covering the period January 1 through September this year, listed these major results of the increased activity:

The patrol arrested 940 drunken drivers, 46 more than in the same time last year. A total of 22,465 summonses and 15,464 "warning" tickets were issued to violators, increases of 1,664 and 2,565 over a year ago.

More than 16,700 of the summonses were given for moving traffic violations, according to the report. Patrol safety inspections of vehicles brought out some 16,800 faulty equipment tickets.

During the nine-month period patrolmen gave assistance to 21,420 motorists who experienced trouble along the roads, nearly 2,460 more than last year.

In achieving the record activity the patrol traveled 5,671,054 miles for a total increase of 351,000 miles, or an average increase of more than 2,500 miles for each patrolman.

Jespersen said that, while the report indicates major trends in patrol work, it does not describe the patrolmen's complete routine which includes assistance at accidents, investigations, appearances in court, traffic control, criminal apprehension and safety education activity in schools and with local groups.

67 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Handson of Sioux Rapids recently observed their 67th wedding anniversary. The Hansons have not only been married a long time but all of it has been in the same house; even the mariage ceremony was performed in their present home, originally owned by Mrs. Hanson's parents.

Farm Housing Loans Now Available; $446,400 Awarded to Iowa for Year

Wright county farm owners, including small farm or acreage owners, needing loans for building, remodeling or repairing farm dwellings or other structures, and who are not able to get adequate credit, may now apply for loans under the new Housing Act. This announcement was made by Harry L. Ladman, Farmers Home Administration Supervisor for Wright county at Clarion .

Mr. Ladman said the Farmers Home Administration was named in the act to administer the loans to be made to farm owners. Applications are to be received at the county FHA offices. War veterans' applications will have preference.

Loans may be made only to farm owners, Ladman said, but landlords may obtain loans to improve tenants' housing. Most loans may be made for up to 33 years, but borrowers agree to shift to commercial credit as soon as it is practical for them to do so.

Applicants will submit their building or repair plans to the county supervisor and FHA engineers for approval as to general compliance with the housing law. Approval will also be obtained as to specific materials that will be sufficiently durable and practical to protect the government's investment and to bring structures up to a minimum construction standard.

Mr. Ladman anticipates that the bulk of the loans will go to farmers whose operations and assured incomes are such that they can see their way clear to retire the debt in an orderly way in 33 years or less.

Another class of borrowers will be those with farm and other income not now adequate to retire the debt, but who with definitely planned and improved operations which may be accomplished through the proposed building and farm changes can and will become able to repay. This particular type of borrower will receive, for the first five years, the same on-the-farm supervisory assistance that FHA has been offering regular farm ownership borrowers for the past several years.

While 25 million dollars has been appropriated for actual building and repairs for farm structures throughout the country during the months remaining until June 30, 1950, another two million dollars has been set up for land improvements and purchase, and for the grants. Most of this latter amount, or $1,350,000, will be used for the land improvements.

Loans from this source might be for terracing or other land erosion safeguards, for drainage or other means of bringing a farm into better production so as to help boost the farm income up to a level that will repay the housing and improvement debts. Such loans might, for the same reason, be to buy some additional land, according to Mr. Ladman.

The total amount allocated to Iowa, announced State Director B. W. Lodwick, for this fiscal year is $446,400. On a national basis, it is anticipated that the average loan will be about $2,200 and that the average number per county this year will be about five loans.

The regular three-farmer local county committee will have a most important part in the program, Ladman said. They are the men who know local farm conditions and values and who are best able to determine applicants' eligibility.

The Farm Housing Act, passed last August, authorized the basic appropriation of 25 million dollars for the first or 1950 fiscal year. That has now been appropriated. A basic 50 million dollars authorization is in the act for the 1951 fiscal year, 75 million dollars for 1952, and 100 million dollars for 1953.

County Bounties to Date For '49 Total About $250; Over 280 Foxes Reported

Through the end of last month, $248.90 had been paid out by the Wright county auditor's office in bounties on foxes, gophers and crows killed since the first of the year. Over half of the total, or $126.80, was paid in April and May.

Three hundred and two gophers and 107 crows were paid for at a dime apiece, and between 200 anod 250 foxes at $2.00 for an adult and $1.00 for cubs. Accurate count on the foxes was not possible, as no figures were kept on the number of cubs and adults. Total fox bounty paid amounted to $208.

Deputy Auditor George Sharp points out that the figures likely fail by a large margin to indicate the total number of pests actually done away with. Most of the claims, particularly on gophers and crows, come from the immediate vicinity of Clarion, as it's a profitless venture to drive very far to request bounty amounting to a few dimes.

Corn Picked

Milton Marting claims the "early" corn picking championship of Fayette county, with the corn from 85 acres all picked by October 3. Yield was 73 bushels per acre.

Popping

Things were popping in the Agnes Shound beauty shop at Britt recently. A bottle of hydrogen peroxide blew up in the supply room and shortly afterward two more blew up in the shop itself. No harm was done except to the interior of the shop.

Clarion Man's Holstein Makes High Test Record

Testing was supervised by Iowa State college, in cooperation with The Holstein-Friesian Association of America. This cow was milked two times daily and was four years one month old when she began her test period.

The Go-Getter Son Learned To Take It Easy, Live Awhile

By BILLY ROSE

It was one of those days. What with the phones going, a show rehearsing in my theatre, and people popping in and out, my office was like backstage at an Olsen and Johnson musical.

One of my appointments was with an ex-soldier who had recently returned from the Pacific. Like a thousand other kids, he was anxious to get a job in show business. I told him I'd get in touch with him if anything turned up, and asked him to excuse the short interview because I was rushed. He smiled and walked to the door.

"What are you grinning about?" I asked.

"Oh, nothing," he said. "I just happened to think of another fellow who was in a hurry.

The way he said it made me curious. "Tell me about the other fellow," I said.

Billy Rose

"He was nobody important," said the ex-G. I. "He and his father farmed a small piece of land, but except for their name and the patch of ground, they had little in common. The old man believed in taking it easy. The son was the go-getter type.

"One morning, they loaded the cart, hitched up the ox and set out for the city. The young fellow figured that if they kept going all day and night, they'd get to the market by next morning. So he walked alongside the ox and kept prodding it with a stick.

" 'Take it easy,' said the old man. 'You'll last longer.'

" 'If we get to market ahead of the others,' said his son, 'we have a better chance of getting good prices.'

"THE OLD MAN pulled his hat down over his eyes and went to sleep on the seat. Four miles and four hours down the road, they came to a little house. 'Here's your uncle's place,' said the father, waking up. 'Let's stop in and say hello.'

" 'We've lost an hour already,' complained the go-getter.

" 'Then a few minutes more won't matter,' said his father. 'My brother and I live so close, yet we see each other so seldom.'

"The young man fidgeted while the two old gentlemen gossiped away an hour.

"On the move again, the father took his turn leading the ox. When they came to a fork in the road, the old man directed the ox to the right. 'The left is the shorter way,' said the boy.

" 'I know it,' said the old man, 'but this way is prettier.'

" 'Have you no respect for time?' asked the impatient young man.

" 'I respect it very much,' said the older fellow. 'That's why I like to use it looking at flowers.'

"The right-hand path led through woodland and wild flowers. The young man was so busy watching the sun sink he didn't notice how lovely the sunset was. Twilight found them in what looked like one big garden. 'Let's sleep here,' said the old man.

" 'This is the last trip I take with you,' said his son. 'You're more interested in flowers than in making money.'

"'THAT'S THE NICEST thing you've said in a long time,' smiled the old fellow. A minute later, he was asleep.

"Before sunrise, the young man shook his father awake and they went on. A mile down the road, they came upon a farmer trying to pull his cart from a ditch. 'Let's give him a hand,' said the father.

" 'And lose more time?' asked the son.

" 'Relax,' said the old man. 'Some day you may be in a ditch yourself.'

"By the time the other cart was back on the road, it was eight o'clock. Suddenly a great flash of lightning split the sky. Then there was thunder. Beyond the hills, the heavens grew dark.

" 'Looks like a big rain in the city,' said the old man.

" 'If we had been on time, we'd be sold out by now,' grumbled his son.

" 'Take it easy,' said the old gentleman. You'll last longer.'

"It wasn't until afternoon that they got to the top of the hill overlooking the town. They looked down at it for a long time. Finally the young man who had been in such a hurry said, 'I see what you mean, father.'

"They turned their cart around and drove away from what had once been the city of Hiroshima."

Van Sickle Taking Part In Army-Navy Operation

Clifford A. Van Sickle, fireman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Van Sickle of Belmond, is serving as a crew member aboard the aircraft carrier USS Bairoko, which is one of the units of Vice Admiral Gerald F. Bogan's Western Task Force, now engaged in the joint Army-Navy exercise "Miki."

Primary objective assigned the 90 ships and 40,000 servicemen in the sea-air armada is the "retaking" of the Hawaiian islands, theoretically in the hands of an aggressor force, by amphibious assault troops of the Army's Second Infantry division.

EDITORIAL

This week for the Editorial I am passing on a speech on "How to Study" given by Denise Ainslie in speech class this week.

Mr. Hussong, Fellow classmates, I have chosen for my topic, "How to Study". No! I'm not telling any old dry way. Because I have found a grand way to study, and I'd like to tell everyone about it. My way makes studying turn into real fun.

When I go to class in the morning my teacher usually gives me about 15 pages to read and study. History always was rather dry and boring to me so I only read the introduction. With this off I only have 14½ pages to go. Here it is only 20 minutes and school will be closed for today. I hurry and grab my history book and read about one page maybe only a half, then I have 14 pages to go, so my best girl friend wants to speak to me. Well us two always are kind of windy when we get together, so, we talk until the last bell is rung.

I stick my book under my arm and run out to the bus. When I get home I toss my book on my bed and change clothes to do chores. I hurry through chores and gobble down half of my supper. After supper I take a bath and at seven o'clock I have a movie date, and I always did like Van Johnson. My history will have to wait. When I come home about midnight and see my book laying on my bed, I wailed "Oh dear what'll I do?" Well, I get ready for bed, and turn on my bed lamp ,and start to read, I read maybe one page, this leaves 13 pages to go! I start to get real sleepy, and decide that the sleep will do me just as much good as the studying. So I turn off my light, tuck my book under my pillow, and sleep hard all night.

By the time I get up in the morning all of the historv has soaked in, and I get an A in the drop quiz in class.

I think this a grand way to study. It really makes studying turn into real fun. Try it sometime.

What's Doin' In Music

Lately, we have gotten several new pieces of music for the mixed chorus and girls' glee club. We have been practicing real hard on these pieces in both groups.

Each week from now on I will review a section from the girls' glee club. We have nine soprano's There are three freshmen, Sharon Meints, Madonna Blau, and Gladys Olson. This is the first year for all three girls to be in glee club. Four soprano's come from the Sophomore class. They are Ruth Benson, Geraldine Jaacks, Jollene Tinkey and Iola Fekkers. These four girls have been with us for two years now and they seem to enjoy it. There are two sopranos from the Junior class. They are Phyllis Vestweber and Norma Madsen. Last year both of these girls sang second soprano. They both say they like first soprano better. There are no Senior girls in the Soprano section of our glee club.

Next week I will review another group so . . . so long for now.

ATHLETIC NEWS

The two basketball teams journeyed to Goldfield Thursday for a practice game. A game of this type gives the coach a chance to see weak spots in his team and work on them. The team it's self gets a chance to play another towns first team which means quite a difference from playing with the usual fellow players. It gives them a chance to try their stuff on a team who is not familiar with it's style.

It's better to find out these things ahead of time, than to awaken to the fact during game time.

The Senior's have now settled down with their studies. Except for some of them who are still out picking up corn.

Kansas, has been coming along pretty good in biology, while the rest of the class is banging their heads out on business arithmetic. In speech everyone has given two set speeches, but they have to give another one tomorrow. They aren't bad especially when you can read them off paper..

In government they are catching up on the American Obsrever's, they can hardly wait until they get back to the government books again. "Who said that?"

The Sophomores sold popcorn, pop, and apples. This food was excellent, in fact the whole evening was very enjoyable.

A school theatre party is something new for us, that is having a full length movie in school.

Has Armistice Day Become Simply a "Phony" Holiday?

Maybe we're sticklers for form, but it impresses us that Belmond should either abandon "observance" of Armistice Day or rededicate the occasion to the purpose for which it was established. We put the term "observance" in quotes, because it has deteriorated to a mere closing of stores and showing of flags.

Last year the American Legion endeavored to hold a public ceremony in honor of the war dead, and about a dozen persons showed up. We can't say we blame the VFW for not going through the formality this year. But is seems to us that the day dishonors rather than honors departed comrades of the first World War when it is used as a mere excuse to "close up shop" and no effort is made to recall the significance of the holiday.

If, due to the intervening World War II, the day has lost its significance, let's recognize the fact. Let calendar-makers emblazon the day in red ink and the schools observe the day with a brief ceremony that will recall to the coming generations that a war was fought "to make the world safe for democracy"; but let's not make a "phony" holiday out of a day so rich in tradition and meaning as Armistice Day once was.

We'd suggest one more effort to reestablish the occasion as one which justifies a holiday. Perhaps a ceremony on the downtown streets, which the public would find diffcult to disregard, is the answer. Anyway, if a last attempt to jar public apathy fails, we'd say the thing to do is resume "business as usual" and not cheapen a meaningful occasion by an empty gesture.

Hampton Tragedy Provides Three High-Priced Object Lessons

We hope that in last week's traffic tragedy near Hampton there existed an object lesson that will be taken to heart by 'teen-age drivers, their parents, and judicial authorities who are responsible for enforcing drivng rules and regulations. If such is the case, the sacrifice of those four young lives could, in the long run, result in saving many others.

The lesson to be derived by adolescents who have access to cars is too obvious to require emphasis. You might say it is simply this: if you flirt with death often enough, by the manner in which you handle a car, the Grim Reaper is certain to accept your challenge sooner or later . . . And don't forget, when you bet YOUR life against a thrill, INNOCENT lives may well be lost in the gamble.

Parents might learn from the tragedy the advisability of putting a youngster's car under lock and key—or withdrawing the privilege of driving the family car—for an extended time upon the FIRST known instance of careless driving. And make it stick! You'd raise a fine ruckus if you caught your child indulging in "dope." Opium or cocaine never killed anyone in a split second—but the habit of careless driving can!

Finally, we hope that judicial authorities will see in the Hampton episode complete justification for a "get tough" policy where juvenile traffic violators are involved. ONE proved charge of flagrant reckless driving should be adequate excuse for suspension of the driver's license. And a SECOND should be sufficient grounds for revocation of license until the young violator has grown old enough to acquire mature judgment. Sure, you may be accused of "picking on" an offender, at times. But where does judicial responsibility lie? In supporting the whim of an indulgent parent; or protecting the public and the parent's own child from his proven irresponsibility?

That "Cemetery Problem" Should Be The Entire Community's Concern

Last week's account of the meeting of the Belmond Cemetery association posed a problem which deserves the consideration of the entire community. It is not one which will solve itself.

First, the fact must be recognized that for many years responsibility for the cemetery's maintenance and future planning has been shouldered by a faithful few, and that the membership of the cemetery association —by and large— has refused to bear any part of the responsibilty.

Any person owning a cemetery lot is, by virtue of that fact, a member of the association. How many members are "active" is indicated by the fact that meetings of the association customarily attract a turnout of seven or eight individuals. Therein lies the crux of the association's problem. Fundamental though the need for an adequate and attractive community cemetery is, except for the aforementioned "faithful few", no one in Belmond has shown any concern as to whether the community burial place is an unkempt acreage or a fitting and proper resting place for departed members of the community.

Planning, management and responsibility for wrestling with the financial problem that is yearly becoming more acute should fall to the community as a whole. The handful of association members who have for years borne the brunt of responsibility for the cemetery is composed of elderly men and women—grown old "in the service"—who feel the burden has become too great for them to carry.

As a result, the loyal officers of the cemetery association have decided the time has come for that burden to become a civic responsibility and propose that the city authorities take over cemetery management and future planning.

This impresses us as a fair request. In later editorials we will consider how other communities have met the same problem and what legal avenues exist for its solution.

A Modern Gettysburg Address

One score and sixteen years ago our fathers brought forth upon this nation a new tax, conceived in desperation and dedicated to the proposition that all men are fair game.

Now we are engaged in a great mass of calculations, testing whether that taxpayer or any taxpayer so confused and so impoverished can long endure. We are met on form 1040. We have come to dedicate a large portion of our income to a final resting place with those men who here spend their lives that they may spend our money.

It is altogether anguish and torture that we should do this. But in the legal sense we can't evade—we cannot cheat—we cannot underestimate this tax. The collectors, clever and sly, who compute here, have gone far beyond our power to add and subtract.

Our creditors will little know nor long remember what we pay here, but the bureau of internal revenue can never forget what we report there: It is for us taxpayers, rather to be devoted here to the tax return which the government has thus far so nobly spent. It is rather ing before us—that from these vanishing dollars for us to be dedicated to the great task remain- we take increasing devotion to the few remaining; that we here highly resolve that next year will not find us in a higher income tax bracket.

That this taxpayer, underpaid, shall figure out more deductions; and that taxation of the people by Congress, for the government shall not cause our solvency to perish. — Toledo Chronicle.

MRS. EMMA SMITH

Mrs. Emma Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McAllister, was born Oct. 9, 1872, in Centerville, Iowa. She wed Melvin A. Smith in 1894 in St. Joseph, Mo. To them 10 children were born. She and her husband first lived in St. Joseph, Mo., and later moved to Troy, Kan., where they were engaged in the business of printing. Leaving Troy in 1911, they came to Meservey and continued in the occupation of printing. Upon leaving this occupation, Mr. Smith became postmaster, a position he occupied for 25 years.

Following her husband's death, Mrs. Smith lived in Meservey until about 12 years ago, when she went to Chicago and made her home with her son Harry.

Mrs. Smith's health began to fail about 10 years ago. While visiting in Wisconsin her condition became steadily worse and she entered the hospital in Edgerton. It was here that she passed away on Oct. 29 ,1949, having attained the age of 77 years and 20 days.

Economists Can't Reach Agreement On Outlook For 1950 Farm Prices

General Business State To Govern Crop Demands

Uncertainty sprinkled with varying degrees of optimism characterizes the farm outlook picture for 1950, says Francis Kutish, Iowa State college, extetnsion economist.

Here's why. By far the most important factor in the farm outlook picture is what happens to business. The catch to that is that business forecasters don't agree among themselves on what 1950 holds in store.

For example, the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics looks for a strong consumer demand for food and other farm products for the near future. But it feels that the story will be different in 1950. According to the BAE, total demand is likely to be somewhat less in 1950 than in 1940.

The reason: Spendable income —both total and per person—will decrease somewhat from this year. What is more, the BAE believes that the share of the weekly pay check going for food will shrink.

On the other hand, Purdue University economists are more optimistic about 1950. They say that the postwar recession in general business appears near its low.

By late 1949 or early 1950 business is expected to improve. At that time the Purdue economists look for general prices to level off or fluctuate around this point during most of next year.

The Purdue economists conclude that farm income will be a little lower because of a narrower profit spread and probably a little weaker demand for meat animals.

The State University of Iowa economists are a little more cautious than the Purdue economists —but they still are on the optimistic side. They say: "It would be rash to forecast that the recession is over in agriculture, but it does seem reasonable to conclude that barring a drastic overhauling of our farm legislation, the worst is past."

Farm Spending Reached High Point For All Time In 1948

Savings Decreased But Assets Total Most Ever

The nation's farmers did a record amount of spending in the aggregate on their farm plant and homes last year to improve their production efficiency and raise their living standards. As a result, their ownership of liquid assets—cash, bank deposits, and U. S. Savings Bonds—turned down for the first time since such figures were compiled in1940, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The decline, however, was only $300 millions for the year, and farmer's combined holdings of liquid assets on Jan. 1 this year, amounting to $19.8 billions, were still nearly five times the total owned at the beginning of 1940.

Furthermore, agriculture entered 1949 with record aggregate assets of $127.3 billions, up nearly $6 billions over the year before and 137 per cent above the total on Jan. 1, 1940.

Mechanization was a major area of farm spending in 1948. New purchases of farm machinery and motor vehicles during the year were estimated at well over $3 billions by the Department of Agriculture. This outlay brought the estimated net value of such assets to $11.1 billions on Jan. 1 this year, representing a gain of $8 billions or 258 per cent since the beginning of 1940.

The new 1948 purchases were made up of an estimated $800 millions for tractors; over $1.5 billions for other farm machinery such as corn huskers, hay balers and milking machines; more than $600 millions for new automobiles; and over $300 millions worth of motor trucks.

Farmers likewise were estimated to have spent about a billion dollars on additions and betterments to their homes and farm buildings in 1948, while the net value of their household furnishings and equipment increased approximately $600 millions for the year.

A byprodnct of this spending was the increase of over $2 billions in farmers' aggregate debts in 1948 to a total of $11.2 billions at the beginning of this year However, over half this increase represented price support loans of the Commodity Credit Corporation, and thus represents a different type of debt than mortgages, trade credit, etc.

Despite the drop in cash assets and rise in debt, farmers as a whole remained financially strong. One important indication is that on Jan. 1 this year farmers had in the aggregate $1.77 in cash for every dollar they owed. This was lower than the 1947 ratio of $2.21 in cash assets for every dollar of debt, but it was a marked contrast with the situation at the beginning of 1940 when farmers in the aggregate had only 41 cents in cash assets for every dollar they owed.

Old Papers

S. H. Grove of Humboldt discovered some interesting old legal documents recently, including Iowa land grants signed by James K. Polk and Zachery Taylor, dated 1848 and 1849. A deed to an 80-acre farm in Lynn county showed the sale price as $125 for the whole farm.

MAIN STREET

By George C. Hansen

Christmas came early this year for Mrs. Ed Spurling. Monday a beautiful spinet model Hammond electric organ was delivered to the cafe—with the result that a musical open house was in session until about 11:30 p. m. "Hap" Havinga, state restaurant inspector who lives at Cameron, was a visitor at the cafe and revealed himself an old master at the organ. Mrs. Spurling, needless to say, was thrilled with her gift.

Although she showed a little hesitancy at the console to start with—her organ experience having been limited in the past to choir accompaniments—Berniel was getting the knack at a rapid rate before the evening was over and should be doing the handsome instrument full justice in no time at all.

Here's the answer to that much discussed question in regard to a punt downed by a member of the kicking team INSIDE the opponent's 10-yard line.

The collegiate rule, according to Bill Bryson of the Des Moines Register sports staff, specifies that if a member of a punting team downs the ball beyond the line of scrimmage the ball automatically goes to the receiving team at that spot—BUT, if the ball is thus downed inside the receiver's 10-yard line it is a touchback and the receiving team gets the ball on its 20-yard line. This rule does not apply in high school football.

Discussion of this question was particularly widespread among local sports fans after the situation arose in the Iowa-Northwestern game this fall. At that time the official's decision was in accord with the rule book and the ball came out to the 20.

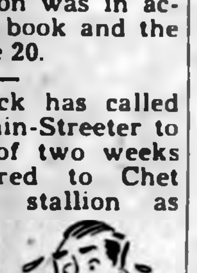
Dr. H. J. Classick has called attention of the Main-Streeter to the farm column of two weeks ago, which referred to Chet Hake's Palamino stallion as "she." At the right Pat is shown endeavoring to explain the slip. According to Farm Editor Gallagher, he was busy the day of the visit to the Chuck Norris farm, where Chet and "Flash" were interviewed. As a result, he had to send out "Sports Editor" J. R. Gallagher—and J. R. doesn't know a durned thing about farm he's and she's.



So he won't make such a blunder again, "Sports Editor" Gallagher was ordered to write 250 times, "A stallion ain't no she; she's a he."

We stand corrected on one item in last week's Main Street. Adolph "Duffy" Rierson informs us that not only was he co-instigator of the Studebaker "flag fund" but that he did most of the dirty work—for example, digging out the flag-pole hole in the sidewalk. We're sorry we were ill informed and omitted your name, "Duffy." Our motto is, "Give credit where credit is due."

—M-S—

Far from gloating over the fact that our neighbor, Clarion, got no mention in the IDPA all-state football selections, the Main-Sreeter feels pretty indignant.

At least in the Belmond game, that Jerry Wion appeared to be as nifty a high school back as one would care to see; and Dick Rohrer was only a shade less adept. In line play, the Cowboys' Ronald Carter was doing a mighty nice job that evening, too.

In fact, after looking over the IDPA list, we'd say that the whole North Central conference was slighted. Maybe the conference needs a good press agent.

—M-S—

Students in the Belmond high and—particularly—grade schools think they've found something this fall to really get puffed up about. Mumps! Talked briefly with School Nurse Hermia Shefveland at school Monday and inquired how many youngsters had succumbed to date.

"There's only about a half dozen out now, but there have been 56 cases altogether," she reported.

Just then a student approached Miss Shefveland to report that her brother wouldn't be at school that day—or for a while. That made 57. We decided to not even try to keep track.

—M-S—

The family of Pat Gallagher, editor of the Independent, moved to Belmond this past weekend and the Gallaghers are now at home in the upstairs apartment in the Mrs. Blenda Ahlstrom residence across from the City Hall. Since neither Nancy, 7, nor Denny, 5, have had mumps to date, Pat assumes that probably "it won't be long now."

TICKETS ON SALE

Season basketball tickets are now available for the Belmond home games from members of the student body. Adult tickets are $3.75 and high school tickets are $2.00 Single admission for conference games is 50 cents for both adults and students, and for non-conference games the ticket price is 65 cents for adults and 35 for students.

Klemme Spurt In Last Period Nets 31-21 Win

Third Quarter Ends With Broncos in Tie at 17-All

Belmond led Klemme at the end of the first quarter in its basketball opener Tuesday evening by a 5-4 count, and was tied with the Shamrocks 17-all at the end of the third period. But the 1949-50 rules still provide that the team leading at the end of the fourth quarter is the winner—and that was Klemme, by a healthy 31-21 edge.

It was a dog-eat-dog first half, with neither team able to solve its adversary's defense. Duane Trager opened the scoring with a free throw, then Calvin Josten tallied a basket and a couple of gift tosses to put Klemme ahead 4-1 before Dick Kriens and Don Faris retaliated with a pair of loopers to give the Broncs a one-point edge at the quarter.

Jack Riggs opened the second stanza with a short push shot to increase Belmond's advantage to 7-4; but that finished the Broncos scoring for the half. Pearson shortened the gap with a free shot, Marvin Schmidt and Merlin Brinkman each counted on a hook shot, and Josten netted a one-pointer to put Klemme in front 10-7 at at halftime.

Schmidt made it 11-7 on a free throw as play was resumed, but

Other numbers will be "The Breeze" a Mexican folk song by Martins sung by the women's chorus; "Strike up the Band" by Gershwin, sung by the male chorus, and the "Ballad for Americans" by the mixed chorus, with George Infelt soloist. The chorus is directed by Mrs. Inga Steele.

Mrs. Jay Vendelboe of Clarion, guest soloist, will sing "The Flower Song" from "Carmen," and "Summer Time" from "Porgy and Bess." Mrs. Ronald Courson, guest pianist, will play "Indian Summer" by Victor Herbert and "To a Water Lily" by McDowell.

Mrs. Fred Gordon, carnival chairman, assisted by various club committees will use the Mexican theme in decorations, entertainment and food. The carnival will be in the church parlors.

There will be a display booth featuring Mexican articles in great variety. The Women's Circle will sponsor the needle work booth, and Pilgrim Fellowship the candy counter.

Special entertainment and exhibits for the children are being arranged for the afternoon beginning at 4 o'clock. Tickets for the program can be secured from Congo. Club members.

FROSH-SOPH QUINTET TAKES OPENER 20-13

In the freshman-sophomore game that preceded the varsity fray between Belmond and Klemme Tuesday evening, the Bronco underclassmen bounded into a prompt lead and gradually extended their advantage to win 20-13.

At half time the Belmond boys held an 8-3 edge and the verdict was never in doubt after the rest period. The young Broncs showed a good deal of promise, handled the ball well for the most part and exhibited considerable poise.

Madsen and Reikens led the Belmond scorers with four points apiece, O'Connor and Meyer each counted three, Helland, Severseike and Loats two each. Laverne Schmidt of Klemme was top scorer with six points and Lyle Goll marked up four for the losers.

MOSIMAN IN NEW JOB

Rollin Mosiman last week was employed by Manager Gerhard Johnson to serve in capacity of clerk at the local liquor store. For a year prior to his change in jobs, Mosiman had been in the employ of Studebaker's pool parlor. The new clerk takes up duties handled for a little over a month by Larry Gunderson, until he left the liquor store after he purchased the former Cortner's Market—now Gunderson Market.

Township PMA Meetings Slated for Coming Week To Elect Committeemen

Farmers are reminded by O. J. Hanson of Clarion, chairman of the Wright county Production and Marketing Administration, that meetings to elect township committeemen and delegates to elect a county committee for the 1950 farm program will be held next week.

"It is almost certain that there will be corn acreage allotments for 1950," Mr. Hanson says, adding, "Your township and county committeemen will have a great part in establishing these bases, so go to the election meeting for your township and help select the men you want for the job."

Different phases of the farm program will be discussed at the meetings.

Dates when meetings will be held, in the Belmond vicinity, are: Nov. 30 — Belmond and Pleasant townships, Belmond township hall; Nov. 30 — Grant, Center school; Nov. 28 — Iowa, Rowan high school assembly room; Nov. 28—Norway, Center school.

Belmond Ind. School District Gets $19,511 in State Aid for 1949-50

Wright County Receives $127,109 Total Benefits

State aid to Wright county schools for the current year amounts to $127,109.94, according to figures recently received by County Superintendent C. W. Sankey from Jesse M. Parker, state superintendent of public instruction. Of that amount, $62,050.27—or nearly 49 per cent—went to the three largest independent school districts, Eagle Grove, Clarion and Belmond.

Eagle Grove received the largest sum, with $20,415.66 in general aid and $2,676.72 of supplemental aid for a total of $23,092.38. Recipient of the second largest amount in aid was Belmond with $19,511.48, made up of $12,826.58 in general aid and $6,684.90 supplemental. Clarion's total was $19,446.41—$16,932.61 general and $2,513.80 supplemental.

Supt. Don Faris explains that general aid is based largely on average daily attendance of non-tuition students in each school district. Supplemental aid considers attendance, too, but is modified by the total assessed valuation of property in the district, by taxes levied on monies and credits and other income received by pro rata shares of monies from other county and municipal sources—such as fines levied against law violators.

The state aid received for the 1949-50 school year is based on the above figures for the year 1948-49. Only 15 Wright county school districts received supple-

MARLYS JEAN LOSES BY NARROW MARGIN

Marlys Jean Thompson failed by a meagre margin of 138 votes to win the regional Lux beauty contest, sponsored by radio station KGLO, which closed last Friday night. Up until mid-day on Monday it appeared that the Belmond entry was the winner, but ballots mailed in behalf of the Sheffield contestant—and postmarked before the deadline—flocked in at the last moment to change the final result. Supporters of Marlys Jean turned in between 2,400 and 2,500 votes. The Belmond miss did not go entirely unrewarded, however. She received a very handsome make-up kit as runner-up prize.

Two-A-Day Mail Deliveries Now Policy of P. O.

New System in Effect, Started As of Yesterday

Starting yesterday, twice-a-day mail service—excepting Saturdays—was established as new policy of the Belmond post office, according to Postmaster C. J. Brady. However, to benefit by the new service, certain requirements must be met by local householders.

First of all, Belmond residents are requested to use their complete address—including street and house number — in future correspondence, and to urge that relatives, friends and business correspondents use the full address. Second, delivery will be contingent upon a mail recepticle being available to the carrier in which to deposit delivered mail.

In the event of a change of address within the city limits, the householder must complete a form at the post office specifying what the new street and house number is to be if further delivery is to be expected. Newcomers to town should also fill out this form.

In any cases in which the requirements are not met, mail will be placed in the recipient's post office box—if he has one—or will be held in general delivery, Mr. Brady says.

Morning deliveries will start at 8:00 a. m., and afternoon deliveries at 1:00 p. m. Mr. Brady says the carriers fully approve the new system because the lighter loads they will be required to carry will more than compensate for the extra time on the route.

Belmond was eligible to install the two-delivery policy when the local post office advanced from third to second class rating in the mid-'thirties, but mail volume did not justify abandonment of the former "village carrier system" of delivery until lately, according to the postmaster.

Up to this week, the post office sorting cases were set up simply by name; hereafter they will be arranged by street addresses, making future use of full address essential to efficient delivery.

Roy Marmon of Fort Dodge, post office inspector, was in Belmond Tuesday and Wednesday of this week assisting in installation of the new delivery system.

Auditor Expense In Wright County Very Reasonable

Ross Henry and Dave Erickson, former Wright county auditors who preceded the present Auditor Roger Charlson in that post, left Mr. Charlson with a pretty good record to shoot at in regard to expense of operating the office. This was illustrated by a table of comparative office costs for county auditors offices released this week by the Iowa Taxpayers association.

Only 13 of Iowa's 99 counties in 1947 showed a lower per person cost than Wright's per capita expense of 28 cents. And whereas the auditors' offices the state over averaged two and a half per cent higher expense in 1947 than 1946, Wright county's cost fell from 31 cents per capita to 28.

The 10 highest counties in auditor office expense, led by Johnson with 53 cents, averaged 47 cents per person. The 10 low, headed by Lee with 23 cents, averaged 25 cents.

There are nine other counties in Wright's population bracket of 19,000 to 21,000 and Wright's 28-cent average beat them all. Others in the group and their per capita averages were Washington 43, Buena Vista 40, Buchanan 37, Floyd and O'Brien 35, Crawford and Jones 34, Hamilton 31 and Cherokee 29. Average per capita auditor expense over the state was 35 cents.

The Taxpayers association points out that if the entire state maintained the average of the 10 low counties, it would effect an overall annual savings of $258,657.

Parents Invited To Attend Class At P.T.A Meeting

Parents of Belmond's high school students will have the chance to go back to school, themselves, for an evening this coming Monday. The program of the Parent-Teachers meeting, which starts at 8:00 p. m., will be in the form of classes covering 10-minute periods. Junior high teachers will conduct similar classes.

Parents will be informed, in advance, of the classes their children are currently attending and the adults will be invited to go through the same class schedules as their youngsters are following. Teachers will give an idea of what is being covered in the classes and answer any questions parents may wish to ask.

The present plan is for open house to be held in the various grade class rooms, to which parents with children attending school at those levels will be invited.

Duane Sandage, vocational agricultural teacher, is chairman of the program committee and was assisted in planning Monday's program by Mrs. Ira Studebaker, Jr., and Luin Cox.

At the conclusion of the six brief class periods a movie of special interest to parents will be shown.

MRS. WANT A FUR COAT? - -

You Just Run Horsemeat Through Mink Meat-Grinder -- and Presto!

- - IT STILL COSTS MONEY!

Harold A. Smith pointed to a small carcass hanging from a nail.

"Chewed the end of his tail off and bled to death," he stated.

That's just one of the small problems that face a mink rancher. Fortunately, among the approximately 400 mink that inhabit the pens at Harold's farm on Route 1, the business of committing suicide by tail-chewing has not become a craze -- and Harold's hoping that it stays that way.

This is Harold's eleventh year in the mink business. He got his start in 1939 with the purchase of three females and a male. They were the standard black variety. Now a majority of his stock is composed of the beautiful silver-blue mutations that in recent years have made such a hit in the fur trade.

For a time Mr. Smith was in partnership with Roger Leinbach. Then for seven years — up to last spring — he joined forces with Ed Schmalle. When he set up by himself this year he had breeding stock on hand consisting of 13 silver-blue males and four standards, 77 silver females and 20 blacks.

Harold Smith is shown above, trying to get one of his mink to "look pretty". He refused to cuddle one up by his ear so we could get a picture without the cage; said he likes his ears and wants to keep them.

Harold's personal entries won the High Point Ribbon at the mink show at Austin, Minn., last November by amassing the greatest point total in the various exhibit classes—an accomplishment of which he's pretty proud.

"It's not too large a show," he admits, "but there were over 200 mink entered, from five or six states. I plan to enter again this year and only hope my luck will be as good."

His experience on losses has been quite favorable, but he says a mink breeder always has to be on the lookout for a number of threats to his herd. Distemper can raise hob if it gets started and care has to be taken to avoid food poisoning. Screw flies are a danger during the breeding season. They plant grubs on the babies and the worms bore into the infant mink with fatal results.

Horsemeat is the main ingredient in the mink diet. Some breeders use fish extensively, but Harold prefers horsemeat. While his stock is at its peak, it requires about a horse a week for feed. One lasts about three weeks when he's down to breeding stock.

He buys the horses at three to three and a quarter cents per pound and does his own slaughtering. Harold says feed for the past year should run about $1,500, discounting what he realized on

Infelt Elected To Head C-of-C For Next Year

Letter of Commendation Will Go To Don Simpson

George Infelt was elected president of the Belmond Chamber of Commerce for the coming year at that organization's meeting held last Thursday in the library basement. E. J. Elliott was named vice president.

The following men were selected to form the board of directors: Jim Waddington, Eugene Bradley, Dr. H. J. Classick, R. B. Thompson and Clare Gagnon.

Those who will serve on the planning committee are: R. B. Thompson, chairman; K. C. Kickbush, Fred Dahm, Walter Hotvet and Dr. G. J. Hruska.

Closing hours for Christmas week were agreed upon by the members, as recommended by the planning committee. Stores will be open until 9:00 p. m. on the evening of Dec. 21, 22 and 23. On Christmas eve stores will close at 6:00 p. m. and all will, of course, be closed all day Monday, the 26th, which is observed as a legal holiday since Christmas falls on Sunday.

The planning committee announced that cards will be issued to all merchants showing holidays to be observed during the coming year and closing hours to be observed. The card will also contain a clause stating that no solicitations will be permitted in Belmond without approval of the Chamber of Commerce.

Members unanimously approved a suggestion by "Dutch" Thompsen that the Chamber of Commerce send a letter of commendation to Donald Simpson. The 14-year-old Boy Scout's quick thinking in applying a tourniquet may have saved the life of young Malcom O'Connor when he was accidentally injured last week by a shotgun blast.

Guests at the meeting included Belmond's beauty contest contender, Marlys Jean Thompson.

Heart Assn. Will Share In Funds From Seal Sales

This year the Iowa Heart Association will share with the Tuberculosis Association in the proceeds of the latter's annual Christmas Seal sale, according to C. W. Sankey of Clarion, president of the seal committee.

The fight against tuberculosis has been carried on so successfully that the disease once the nation's No. 1 killer —has fallen to sixth place as a death cause. In the meantime, heart disease has ascended to top position.

Financed by proceeds of seal sales, a statewide x-ray survey was initiated in Iowa in 1948 and it is planned that within a three to five-year period every citizen of the state will have an opportunity to be x-rayed without charge.

The forty-third annual sale of Christmas Seals opens in Wright county this week, and seals are being mailed to practically all residents of the county. According to Mrs. R. C. Packard, local chairman, seals will be sent out in Belmond immediately after Thanksgiving.

Highway No. 69—

IT'S A JINX

—Says D. M. Youth

"I'll be doggoned if I EVER drive north by way of Highway 69 again," Michael N. Cunningham, 17, of Des Moines told Deputy Sheriff Bob Blecker last Monday morning after the young man had rolled his father's new Ford into a ditch.

Cunningham came a-cropper about 9:15 a. m. when the '49 tudor sedan he was driving hit a patch of ice near the bridge six and a half miles south of Belmond. The car slithered off the road and rolled over to the clatter of $150 worth of damage.

The Drake freshman's prejudice against No. 69 is explained by the fact that it was not his first unhappy experience on that highway. About five months ago, some two miles farther south at the junction of 69 and No. 3 he was involved in a minor but costly collision.

"Next time," he resolved, "I'll go by the Fort Dodge route, no matter how far out of my way it is."

Three Broncs Mentioned On Press Association's Football Roll of Honor

Three Belmond players were awarded honorable mention in the Iowa Daily Press all-state football selections published last weekend: Duane Trager, tackle; and Keith Greenfield and Bob Redmond, backs.

North Iowa conference placed one man on the all-state teams, Russ Schaub of Northwood making guard on the third eleven.

Besides Belmond's three stars, seven other conference standouts were placed on the IDPA honor roll. They were Brown of Forest City, end; Reese of Forest City and Pangburn of Northwood, tackles; Hinds of Northwood and Anderson of Forest City, ends; Anderson of Northwood and Fox of Forest City, backs.

The three Broncos were the only Wright county representatives among the selections, neither Eagle Grove nor Clarion placing a man.

Conservation Commission Wants Leg Bands Sent In

Twenty thousand pheasants and 9,000 quail raised by sportsmen's groups cooperating with the state conservation commission have been banded with small numbered leg bands for identification. The birds were released on farms where seedstocks were needed and the farms posted for one year. Many of the birds have left the stocking point and spread out over adjacent territory, where they are fair game for hunters during the open season.

In order to study survival and migration of pen-raised birds, Commission biologists are anxious to get as many band returns as possible. Hunters killing banded birds are requested to send the bands or to copy the band number and send it along with the date and location the bird was killed to the Biology Section, State Conservation Commission, 914 Grand, Des Moines, Iowa. Information relative to where the bird was banded will be mailed to the senders.

Swine Producers Warned To Watch Carefully For Presence of Brucellosis

Des Moines, Iowa: In a special bulletin today, the American Foundation for Animal Health warned of brucellosis dangers in swine herds following the breeding season.

"The disease often is difficult to detect," the bulletin said, "because symptoms vary so widely. Some infected animals show hardly any external signs of having brucellosis.

"The most common symptom is premature loss of pigs or in birth of stillborn or weak pigs.

"But swine raisers should suspect brucellosis if sows fail to settle properly or if other breeding irregularities are noted. Vigilance should also be exercised in early detection of abnormalities in the herd boar.

"In such cases, a veterinarian should make blood tests to determine if the drove is infected.

"While the blood test is not as reliable in diagnosing swine brucellosis in individual animals as it is with cattle, it is reliable when used as a basis for determining herd infection, and is the surest way of determining the presence of the disease."

Course for Dairy Herd Supervisors Will Open At ISC 5th of December

A course to train men in dairy herd supervisory work will be held Dec. 5 to 24 at Iowa State college, according to a report from Joe Hineman, extension dairyman at Iowa State college, received this week by Aaron R. Bowman, county extension director. The course can accommodate up to 20 men with high school education and dairy farm background. Twelve to 15 of these men can be placed by Jan. 1.

A supervisor is hired by a dairy improvement association consisting of 25 or 26 members. The supervisor visits each farm one day each month to weigh and sample the milk and determine the amount of butterfat produced. Also, he weighs feed fed and figures feed costs, calculates grain mixtures and makes suggestions for improvement.

A supervisor's pay runs from $7 to $9 per day with free room and board. However, he needs to furnish his own car and pay traveling expenses. DHIA supervisory work also offers excellent training for jobs as herdsmen and dairy farming, according to Mr. Bowman.

Men interested may apply by writing Joe Hineman, Dairy Husbandry Extension Office, Iowa State college, or through County Extension Director Aaron R. Bowman. While at Ames, room and board for men taking the course will amount to $25 per week. There are no tuition costs.

Jack Jones and Clarence DeJager of Chatsworth returned recently from a 1,700 mile hunting trip to Canada. They didn't see a single deer. On the morning after their return to Iowa, Mr. DeJager saw a big buck deer, standing in his own back yard.

ung Musicians Concert Band rd At Practice

Fifty-two student musicians are hard at work these days under the direction of Duane Cunning preparing for the first appearance of the Belmond high school concert band. Practicing both by instrumental groups and as an ensemble, the band has about six or eight more weeks of work ahead of it before its first public appearance, after the first of the year.

Virgil Bunjer has been elected by the musicians as head of their organization. Lois Mehl is vice president and Aileen Kalkwarf is secretary-treasurer.

KLEMME BASKETBALL . .

Trager sliced the Shamrock's lead to a point with a nice tip-in and a free throw. The rest of the third period was nip-and-tuck, never more than two points separating the two teams. Belmond might have carried an advantage into the final stanza had the Broncos not missed six out of seven efforts from the charity line.

To increase the totals from the 11-10 count to the 17-17 tie at quarter's end, Trager hit a tip-in and free throw, and Kriens a pair of buckets for Belmond, Josten and Dick Kaduce tallied on charity efforts, while Brinkman and Schmidt hit from the floor for Klemme.

At that point, the wheel came off for Belmond. Although Kaduce retired from the game on fouls in the final seconds of the third period, Belmond still could not solve the Shamrocks' air-tight zone defense. On the other hand, in less than two minutes Klemme built up a 25-17 margin on a pair of hook shots by Brinkman, a lay-up by Pearson and a nifty one-handed push by Brinkman.

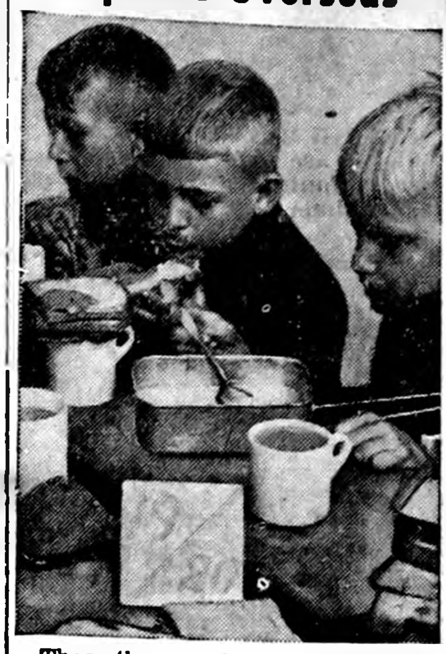
Kriens counted a basket for the fading Broncos, but eagle-eyed Brinkman promptly canceled that effort with another push shot. With three and a half minutes to go Trager cut the deficit to 27-21 on a successful push effort of his own, but Klemme then went into a stall and added two more points on foul shots as Belmond fought for control of the ball. As the Broncos' defense fell apart in the final seconds, Brinkman sifted in for a set-up to close the scoring.

Klemme presented a well-balanced and exceptionally seasoned team for so early in the year. Its defense had the Broncos stopped from start to finish. Never did Belmond penetrate it for a close-in shot other than a tip-in after a long effort had gone awry. It was the Shamrocks' fourth straight win and it was a deserved victory.

Belmond showed flashes of excellent basketball, but the quality of its play was not so consistently high as that of Klemme. The Broncos, however, will meet a number of teams this year who are not as tough as their opening foe.

Trager was high scorer for the losers with nine points, followed by Kriens with eight. Riggs and Faris each scored two. Belmond hit only four of 14 free throws—those four all by Trager. Brinkman counted 12 of Klemme's points, Josten nine, Schmidt five, Pearson four and Kaduce one. The Shamrocks netted nine of 13 efforts from the gratis line.

CROP Food Reaches Orphans Overseas



These three orphans are part of a group of 41,000 children being fed in a sector of Western Germany with food contributed by America's farm people through the Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP).

CROP is now shipping food to orphans, widows, the aged, and many others in great need, as fast as farm commodities are collected in America. A total of 35 states, including this one, are conducting campaigns to fill Friendship Food trains. Over 100,000 persons have volunteered their services to canvass for food from farm to farm.

A national goal of 3500 carloads of food has been set by CROP's sponsors: Catholic Rural Life, Church World Service (22 denominations), and Lutheran World Relief.

mental state aid for the current year. They received altogether $15,398.45, of which $6,684.90 was paid to Belmond. The total of general aid to all districts in the county amounted to $111,711.49.

Largest amounts of state aid to townships were received by Vernon and Lincoln—the only two in the county which do not have township districts as such, but are broken down into nine separate school districts each. Vernon received a total of $4,170 in state aid, of which $785 was supplemental; and Lincoln's total was $4,092.48, of which $1,120.81 was supplemental. Belmond township's $3,981 was the largest amount of general aid awarded any of the township districts.

General aid claims for the whole state was $13,188,437 and the appropriation was $12,000,000 even, so claims were paid at a rate of about 91 cents on the dollar applied for. Supplemental claims totaled $3,426,744, with only $2,000,000 having been appropriated for such aid—so supplemental claims were paid at a rate of a little over 58 cents on the dollar.

Following are the prorated amounts paid in state aid to the independent school districts in Wright county (cents omitted):

District	Gen.	Supp.	Total
Eagle G.	$20,415	2,676	23,092
Belmond	12,826	6,684	19,511
Clarion	16,932	2,513	19,446
Dows	4,915		4,915
Goldfield	4,673		4,673
Rowan Cons.	3,819		3,819
Woolstock	2,012	498	2,510
Galt	1,137	799	1,936

Payments listed below for township school districts include total payments to various school districts in Lincoln and Vernon townships, instead of listing each of those districts separately:

District	Gen.	Supp.	Total
Vernon	$3,385	785	4,170
Lincoln	2,971	1,120	4,092
Belmond	3,981		3,981
Grant	3,372	30	3,402
Boone	3,321		3,321
Dayton	3,270		3,270
Pleasant	3,238		3,238
Norway	3,148		3,148
Wall Lake	2,870		2,870
Troy	2,786		2,786
Lake	2,713		2,713
Woolstock	2,598		2,598
Liberty	2,516		2,516
Blaine	2,150		2,150
Eagle Grove	1,583		1,583
Iowa	1,071	289	1,361

In some cases above, in which the total of general and supplemental aid is a dollar more than the separate items, total of odd cents accounts for the difference.

George Sinclair, Corydon, nearly lost an eye last week when he stepped on a rake, which was lying teeth up, and the handle flew up, breaking his glasses. Doctors at the veterans hospital in Des Moines removed pieces of glass from the eye.

Warden Ayers Questions Using Duck Call for Hunting Rabbits

W. E. 'Bill" Ayers, game warden for Wright and Hancock counties, had the following letter in the Iowa Conservationist for Nov. 15 (we're happy to note that it involves a scoundrel from Benton county; naturally, no Wright county sportsman would be caught in such a predicament).

"I was checking a duck hunting area in Benton county when I noticed a gentleman walking along gazing skyward. As I came up I noticed that he had a duck call on a string around his neck, almost hidden by his coat.

"I introduced myself, checked his license, and he volunteered that he wasn't hunting ducks—never hunted ducks in his life, just rabbits. I told him I was glad of that, because it was long after duck shooting hours. He explained to me that he was a good conservationist and that if everyone obeyed the game laws as well as he did all the game wardens could be fired.

"About this point in the conversation I asked him to blow the rabbit call he had around his neck. He grew quite pinkish about the neck and ears, but he obliged by giving it a blow. I might add that it was a rather feeble toot.

"I suggested, 'You're in a darned poor spot to hunt rabbits, but if you ever decide to try your luck at duck hunting you might find this a pretty good flyway.'

"Evidently the gentleman decided to take my suggestion, because when I met him on the street later he insisted on showing me the new duck stamp."

town and township chairmen of the Wright County Tuberculosis and Health association attended a dinner meeting at Clarion a week ago Wednesday to plan the county sale of seals. Besides Mrs. Packard, Belmond representatives at the meeting included Ethel Brunes, secretary of the county association; Mrs. Charles Wilmarth and Hermia Shefveland.

A movie entitled "Be Your Age" shown by Berniece Beale of Mason City, district field representative of the Iowa Heart association, pointed out the importance of the work that organization is doing. Miss Beale provided further information in a talk that followed.

Alice Moore, Wright county health nurse, told of rheumatic fever among school children in this county and of the case-finding tuberculosis clinic held during the summer. She stated that this county at present has four patients in the state tuberculosis sanitarium at Oakdale.

Training School Put Off That Was Planned Dec. 6

The County Family Living Training school that was scheduled for all county and township chairmen for Tuesday, Dec. 6, has been canceled, because Miss Dee Maier, extension district supervisor, is unable to take charge of the meeting.

There will be a committee meeting in the REA office in Clarion on Tuesday, Dec. 6, for the county committee, township chairmen, publicity chairmen, and health chairmen. An interesting program has been planned. A letter will be sent to those who should attend this meeting.

Guns

..W. E. Kahler,Denison lawyer, has a collection of 200 pistols and 170 shot guns. He started collecting as a hobby while quite young, starting with birds eggs. Prize of his present impressive collection is a French dueling pistol, built by Lepage of Paris in 1837.

the horse hides. Besides the meat, the mink get cereal and their food has to be fortified with concentrates of vitamins A and D.

This year Harold will sell about 270 pelts, starting his skinning right about now. The skinning operation extends over about 10 days, as the furs naturally don't all reach prime condition right at the same time.

He anticipates that good silver-blues will bring as high as $30 this year, with standards selling at $15 and $18. This is a considerable drop from two years ago when blues were bringing as high as $55.

Still, the "critters" are valuable enough that Harold was more than a little disturbed when the big wind blew over some of his cages and enabled several of the little fellows to get loose. He thinks he captured all but a couple or so, however.

Besides his mink operations, Harold farms 55 acres and is active in 4-H work. At present he's 4-H leader for Pleasant township.

When asked if his wife has a mink coat, he gave the reporter a sharp look and then grinned.

"Well . . no," he replied. "The price of a mink coat runs a little high for the Smiths. Maybe — some day —a jacket, perhaps, but . ."

Even where the jacket's concerned, we'd suggest Mrs. Smith not try holding her breath till she gets it. It may be a year or two.

"AMERICAN" FOR GIFTS
So Easy To Give . . . So Nice To Get

There are many ways to settle your difficult gift problems. But none easier than selecting "American." For here is a crystalware pattern that has fascinated many generations. It sparkled once upon a time in ancestral homes. Recreated, by Fostoria, it sparkles again in modern homes which are sympathetic to colonial traditions.

Rightly, "American" has proved to be America's most popular pattern. Its fascination derives from sheer simplicity of design, and its jewel-like capacity for reflecting light and color.

You will be proud to give "American" gifts to everyone. Prices are exceedingly attractive; some individual pieces costing as little as 50c each. And, in our displays, you will find a great variety for your selection.

Reporting Farm Doings

by "Pat" Gallagher

With snow flying in these parts lately, it seems rather inappropriate to take up the subject of fruit tree grafting. But maybe a little chit-chat on the subject will serve as a reminder that, "If winter comes, can spring be far away?" We were out at the Glenn Morris farm over the weekend to look over the experimental orchard he planted 'way back in 1937 in cooperation with the Iowa State college extension department. After hearing Glenn's enthusiasm over the project, we couldn't help but wonder why more farmers around here haven't set out small orchards of their own in the same manner.

—RFD—

Crab trees—Virginia or Siberian—are used as stock for these orchards because the varieties are hardy, long-lived and generally adaptable to grafting. Glenn set out five Virginias and the first grafts were made in the spring of 1938. Except for one limb graft, all of the new varieties have been added to his trees by bud graft—which is about as simple a procedure as imaginable.

—RFD—

The graft is made on a stock branch, about 18 inches from the body of the tree. A T-shaped cut is made in the bark, and the corners of bark where the lines adjoin are peeled back but left attached. A leaf bud on a branch of the desired variety is cut around so there is a bit of bark left attached to it, then the bud and shaving of bark is pinched from the branch. The bud-bark is slipped under the flaps of bark on the graft tree and then the flaps are taped down to secure the bud against the bare wood of the graft limb. The limb, beyond the point of graft, is cut off—and if the operation is successful, you've got a new variety of apples to enjoy a few years hence.

—RFD—

Mr. Morris thinks this system has it all over the old-fashioned orchard, composed of several dozen trees. You can have all the varieties of apples you want, on just a few trees. There's not the waste or the labor (if the trees were properly looked after) involved in the old orchards—nor the expense, if the owner sprays the trees as he should. Glenn admits that some of his farmer friends are inclined to look down their noses at his experimental orchard, but he thinks he'll have the last laugh as his orchard matures and begins to bear heavily.

—RFD—

As the years have gone by, extension men from Iowa State have dropped around each spring to graft new varieties to Glenn's trees. They are now bearing Sharons, Melbas, Yellow Transparents, Red Delicious and Joannes. Glenn says his wife has always thought that there wasn't an apple that could match Delicious for flavor—but she amended her opinion after enjoying some Sharons this year. They are even sweeter and have better flavor than Delicious, she's decided.

—RFD—

Glenn bought a crab tree from Sears and Roebuck three years ago and has gone into grafting on his own. He now has about six varieties on this one tree. The grafts don't always take, he admits; but his luck has been pretty good.

—RFD—

All the experimental trees came through the Armistice Day freeze of nine years ago in good shape, and also survived the heavy freeze that followed an early spring thaw a couple of years ago — which played hob with many fine fruit trees.

—RFD—

Personally, we can't see why a lot more farmers don't go in for these grafted orchards, on their own. With a half-dozen trees they can have a dozen and a half varieties of apples to munch on, if they wish. And the grafting process looks so simple, even your city-bred "farm editor" is confident he could make a successful graft — if he had an apple tree.

—RFD—

Glenn and his brothers, Francis and Duane, are all firm believers in the wisdom of having a flock of sheep on the farm. Glenn has a fine batch of Hampshire-Shropshire crosses— about 30 or 40. He looks on his sheep as a good method of deriving profit from pasture land. And with no feed expense, he feels that a farmer's profits on sheep compare very favorably with what he can make on cattle or hogs.

—RFD—

He recently tried a Suffolk ram for breeding, but felt that the Suffolk fleece wasn't as heavy as he obtained with a Hampshire buck. Perhaps it was just the particular ram he had, Glenn concedes—but, at any rate, this fall he acquired a new Hampshire to father his spring lambs. He keeps most of his older ewes each spring, since their maturity guarantees a larger crop of lambs the following year. However, he's done quite a bit of culling lately in an effort to breed a strain that is free from wool on the face.

—RFD—

Before he started this selective breeding, he says, many of the sheep had so much wool around their eyes they could hardly see unless he trimmed 'em up — and even then they had trouble seeing straight ahead. But after several years of selective breeding, he's beginning to get this problem whipped

—RFD—

That Glenn is not raising sheep to the exclusion of cattle and hogs is very evident from a look around his farm, which is located four miles south and a mile east of Belmond. He has a nice drove of 92 spring pigs and is getting quite a start on a herd of Holsteins. He recently added eight new heifers and now has 10 cows, in all. Glenn admits that, with his growing dairy herd along with the sheep, his 168 acres is running a little short on pasture land. He says the limit on corn acreage next year may solve his problem. If it doesn't, he may have to look around for some pasture to rent this coming spring.

—RFD—

E. L. Quaife, animal husbandman at Iowa State college, has a bit of advice to offer which farmers hereabout should bear in mind. Hogs that have been turned into the field to clean up corn still need the good housing and management they would require under any other conditions, he stresses. For this time of year he recommends that hogs be provided with a clean, dry house that is well ventilated, but free from drafts.

—RFD—

Quaife points out that flu is always a danger in hogs that don't have adequate sleeping quarters during the cold season. In view of the winter weather with us this week, he says' it's especially important that hogs foraging out in the field in the next few weeks have a comfortable house.

—RFD—

Mrs. Margrette DeWall of Foreston, Ill. and Mrs. Fannie Ludwig and son of Polo, Ill., visited a few days recently at the home of their sister, Mrs. Mike Halfwassen. They reported the corn crop much better out there than here in Iowa, with not much borer damage, especially on those farms whose operators were foresighted enough to spray their corn against borers. They reported more damage was done by corn borer two and three years ago in Illinois than this year.

Shirer Explains Drivers License Renewal System

Your present Iowa chauffeurs license will expire on your birthday in 1950 unless it is a new one issued since July 5 this year, according to Clarence Shirer, chief examiner of the highway patrol.

Shirer said that after December 1, patrol examining teams will begin renewing chauffeurs licenses under provisions of the birthdate renewal law. This means you must renew your chauffeurs license anytime within 30 days before your 1950 birthday. The same procedure will be followed each year thereafter.

For example, the examiners during December will renew chauffeurs licenses for persons with birthdays in January. In January they will renew permits for chauffeurs with birthdays in February and so on through the year.

To let the renewal work start and continue smoothly, the birthdate law provides extensions for all 1949 chauffeurs licenses bearing green 1949 renewal receipts and for all 1949 chauffeurs licenses bearing a December 31 expiration date. You may use one of these licenses until your birthday next year when it will expire.

Since July 5 examiners have been issuing to new applicants chauffeurs licenses which are keyed into the birthday renewal procedure. These licenses are marked with the date on which they expire in 1951 and need not be renewed next year.

Chauffeurs licenses cannot be renewed by mail, Shirer said, and each applicant must pass a vision test. Any driver who has lost his license should apply for a duplicate, he said.

Kanawha, Meservey Boys Teams Turn in Victories

Kanawha's boys basketball team defeated Goodell's on the latter's floor last Thursday evening, 32 to 25—in spite of flashy new suits which the home quintet was sporting. Goodell's girls evened things up by trimming the Kanawha lassies 25-22.

Friday evening the Meservey boys trounced Chapin 55 to 18. The Meservey girls also were victors. Both Meservey teams chalked up wins over Hamlonton on Saturday. (Ed's Note: Our correspondent kept the scores a secret.)

Wright County 4-H Girl Among 25 to Represent Iowa at 1949 Congress

A Wright county 4-H club girl, Charlene Edwards of Goldfield, has been named one of 25 4-H'ers to represent the Hawkeye state at the National 4-H club congress in Chicago, Nov. 27 to Dec. 1. According to the announcement received today at the Wright county extension office from Miss Esther Whetstone, state girls' 4-H club leader, Charlene's trip came as a result of her outstanding achievements in better grooming.

Her award is furnished by the Iowa 4-H girls' organization. She plans to leave Nov. 25 for the national event which annually draws about 1,400 outstanding club members and leaders to the windy city for inspirational talks by national leaders and educational tours of the city.

Charlene has been an active 4-H club member for seven years and has served as vice-president of the Wright county girls 4-H organization. She was named county personality girl and modeled the new girls' 4-H uniform at the 1948 Iowa State Fair.

A member of a blue ribbon demonstration team at the Iowa State Fair, Charlene has been active in demonstration work throughout her club career. She also has received awards on her record book and expense account book in the state and district.

Good Farm Management Pays Well Survey By Iowa State Indicates

Farmers who managed their farms well in 1948 were amply paid for that skill. This is shown in a summary of records on 779 Iowa farms compiled by the agricultural economics department of Iowa State college.

The difference in management income between the 256 "high profit" farms and the 256 "low profit" farms of the 779 who kept records was $9,573 in 1948. High profit farms received an average income for management of $9,325 while low profit farms showed up with a management loss of $248.

Several important factors contributed to this wide difference in profits, according to H. B. Howell, farm management specialist at the college. He classified these factors in four ways: size of business, crop production, livestock production and operating expenses.

High profit farms produced $11,936 in gross profits or production per man, but these farms were only 10 acres larger than low profit farms. This compares with $6,854 gross profits on the low profit farms.

Crop yield per acre as well as crop selection was better on the high profit farms. High farms averaged 77 bushels of corn per acre; gross value of crops per acre was $67. Low farms averaged 68 bushels of corn per acre and $58 gross value of crops per acre. Howell says that some of the difference may be due to the quality of the land but it also reflects management.

High profit farms handled a larger volume of business and livestock, and also did it more efficiently. Returns for $100 of feed fed on high profit farms were $46 higher than on low profit farms. High farms averaged $162 and the low farms $116.

Howell says this difference indicates a better job of management, feeding, sanitation, breeding, selection of kind and type of livestock, and marketing.

A Few Observations On The Passing of the Crank

Each time Webster's International Dictionary comes out in a new edition, there are numerous additions to the ever-growing list of words that are identified by an italic "Obs." as obsolete. Reflecting upon the imminent advent of dial phones in Belmond and environs, it struck us that "crank" as a noun has about seen its day.

"Crank" as a "crotchety person" will probably linger with us indefinitely. But as "an arm keyed at right angles to the end of a shaft, by which motion is imparted to or received from it," and the transitive verb form, "to move, as the engine of an automobile, by use of a crank", the old familiar word appears doomed to join the horse and buggy, hooped skirt and celluloid collar in limbo.

How many broken arms and lost tempers were the yearly toll of the old automobile crank! How many blisters and aching backs were the price of a few hundred bushels of corn shelled by the old hand-operated sheller. Women had their crosses to bear in the form of the old-fashioned egg beater—to which the modern mixer has struck a near-fatal blow—the old clothes ringer, and . . . you name 'em, ladies.

We foresee the day when the pencil sharpener will be the last rampart remaining in the hands of the "crank"; although it wouldn't surprise us too much if even electrically operated sharpeners are available to concerns doing a sufficient volume of clerical work that the saving of seconds at the pencil sharpener would add up to several hours of work time in the course of a week.

Frankly, we shed no tears over the passing of the telephone crank and all it connotes. Not that much labor was involved in twisting the crank, and not that telephone service under the old system has been notably inefficient. But there's something a bit lordly about beckoning a party by telephone dial; sort of like an executive summoning a minor functionary by pressing a button. Does something for the ego.

So this removal of one more crank from our lives meets with our entire approval . Cranks, like the vestige of tail at the end of the human spine, are declining evidence of a by-gone day.

Iowa Law Would Clearly Permit City to Accept Cemetery Management

Continuing consideration of the problem of local cemetery management, which was broached in last week's editorial column, let us examine the legality of the cemetery association's proposal that the city take over responsibility for the Belmond burial plot.

The Code of Iowa clearly sets forth ways and means for such a step to be taken. The fact that the cemetery is outside the city limits has no bearing so long as it is recognized as the community burial place.

Further, the Code specifies that a city ordinance proclaiming acceptance of transfer from the cemetery association is sufficient to make that step an accomplished fact. The city would thereby not only accede to management of the cemetery but would become the trustee of the perpetual care fund.

One of the big problems facing the cemetery association is that of establishing a sinking fund to provide for purchase of additional land, which in due time will have to be added to its holdings. This, normally, would be derived from sale of lots; but currently a large portion of such income has to be devoted to care and upkeep, because fees for perpetual care and annual care are inadequate to cover the cost of grave care and cemetery upkeep.

This problem could more easily be solved if the city was in charge of the cemetery, as it could levy a tax up to one-quarter mill for the purpose of land purchase and thereby spread the expense over the entire community. On the other hand, if fees for annual care and future fees for perpetual care were increased this might not be necessary. Of course, nothing can be done in the case of lot owners who have paid the present modest fee of $50 for perpetual care.

In view of the association's declaration that it intends to lay no plans for acquisition of more land—which it can hardly be censured for making—it is advisable that transfer of cemetery management to the city be made promptly to allow for sound, long-range planning.

As pointed out last week, cemetery management at present is a burden which simply has been "inherited" by the faithful officers of the association and which is not—and never has been—shared by the community.

In recognition of the many years of loyal, unstinting service these officers have given the community in decades past, the least the city can do at this time is to show its appreciation by accepting future responsibility.

Just What Do You Mean, "Things Are Tough All Over"?

One hears plenty of complaining these days about high prices, mumblings about a business recession, and belly-aching about conditions in general. Then comes a story like the one in this issue of the paper on auto registrations for 1949 to make all the grousing appear pretty silly.

We took that total increase of new car and truck registrations in Wright county — amounting to 879 units more than in 1948 — and did a little pencil work. Taking the modest figure of $1,750 as the average purchase price of each of those vehicles we get $1,538,250 MORE "rolling stock" on our highways than a year ago.

Of course, value of traded-in cars and trucks would have to be deducted from that million-and-a-half to arrive at the true outlay of cash for the new jobs—but even the net, if we had means of determining it—would be a plenty impressive figure, we warrant. And presumably most of those trade-ins were in turn sold, to pile up that total increase.

All of which leads us to the conclusion that conditions aren't so doggoned tough but what they could be a whale of a lot worse.

An Editor's Mistake

Just Imagine

The 1949 corn crop is a bundle of statistics that add to a bumper harvest. To visualize what the yield means, let us imagine that Indiana, Illinois and Ohio were one enormous cornfield. It would cover 583 miles east to west, 385 miles north to south. This would be the acreage of corn grown this year. A fast train, going west, through this cornfield, would enter it at sundown and not leave it until sunrise. Now, if you could bring all of the shelled corn to a single loading platform, it would require 1,934,246 box-cars to hold it. The same amount, weighing in short tons, would be far greater than the gross tonnage of the entire merchant fleet of the whole world. Some corn crop!

We wish to correct a slight error of the Dows Advocate which stated that Dr. D. G. Hoxie had moved to Garner. We are glad to state that the docor has no intention of leaving Belmond. It was his brother, W. H., who has settled at Garner.

Season of Year Again on Hand To Watch for Carbon Monoxide

"Extra precautions against carbon monoxide poisoning are in order at this time of the year, for the number of accidental deaths from this cause increases as the weather grows colder," stated Paul J. Houser, director of the division of public health engineering of the Iowa State Department of Health. "Careless ventilation practices at home and in garages account for the heavy toll taken by this poisonous gas," Mr. Houser warns.

Since the exhaust from automobile engines always contains carbon monoxide, a car engine should never be allowed to run in a closed garage. Large garages and repair shops should be equipped with mechanical ventilation that can capture exhaust fumes at their source and carry them outside the building, or at least should be ventilated by open windows or doors.

In colder weather it becomes necessary to drive in closed cars and carbon monoxide may seep inside from leaky exhaust connections to overcome the occupants. Motorists should check up now on the exhaust systems of their cars for possible leaks and defective equipment.

When driving it's a good policy to keep at least one window open, especially at the first signs of drowsiness or headache. These may be the first warning that carbon monoxide is present.

At home furnaces and stoves require particular attention before being fired for the winter. Ill-fitting pipes, worn and corroded parts, clogged chimneys and improperly operated dampers can permit dangerous amounts of carbon monoxide to accumulate in the living area of the house. Now that colder weather makes it necessary to keep doors and windows closed it is very important that all heaters and burners be thoroughly checked to see that they are properly installed with vents and adjusted to insure a sufficient supply of air for complete combustion as indicated by a blue flame.

Carbon monoxide is so perfectly camouflaged that it can't be seen, tasted or detected by odor, so all heating equipment must be kept in good working condition to prevent possible tragedy in the home.

When carbon monoxide contamination of interior air is suspected, the doors and windows should be opened to permit complete circulation of air. Any individual overcome by poisonous gas should be moved out of doors and be given artificial respiration until the physician arrives.

Thanksgiving

A Thought FOR Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving is more than a day of Thankfulness for the abundant blessings that are ours . . . it is a symbol of our Pilgrim Fathers' appreciation of a free America . . . a tradition born of hardships so willingly suffered that the shackles of free thought and free worship might be shaken.

Today our Thanksgiving expression is not one of gloating over the abundant harvests, the record breaking industrial achievements, the high wages, the peak employment position we find ourselves in . . it is one of compassion and concern for our world neighbors whose faith in humanity must be shaken . . . whose morale is now . . whose frames are weakened from stark hunger that stalks like a mockery in most of the world.

So the challenge of a disrupted world, that follows in the wake of war, commands our attention . . . our earnest and unselfish assistance, if Thanksgiving is to be a day filled with the sentiment for which it was created.

It was moved by Pinkham, seconded by Trowbridge, that the Wright County Weed Commissioner and his crew of men terminate all work done by them effective November 15, 1949. Motion carried.

Whereas, there now is in the hands of the Treasurer of Wright County, Iowa, the sum of $28,620.12, credited to the Emergency Fund thereof: and

Whereas, an emergency has arisen which requires the expenditure of $28,620.12, said emergency being of the following character: The increase in operating cost, and the maximum legal levy of the General County Fund being inadequate and

Whereas, the revenue in the General County Fund is insufficient to meet its estimated actual and necessary expenses for the current fiscal year and the emergency referred to: therefore, be it

E. Harson, be allowed and be effective retroactive to said original date of application, and that the exemption be applied to 1948 and 1949 taxes. Motion carried.

Due to the fact that Wm. W. Wright had applied for Soldier's Exemption on March 14, 1949, and said application through error was not properly recorded or preserved in the office of the County Auditor, it was moved by Fisher, seconded by Pinkham, that application No. 1247, currently filed by Wm. W. Wright, be allowed and be effective retroactive to said original date of application, and that the exemption be applied to 1949 taxes. Motion carried.

B. P. HADLEY
Deceased

TO: Loran Hadley, Administrator of the Estate of Sarah Hadley, Deceased; Lyle Hartness; Ryle Hartness; Rex Hartness; and to any and all persons interested in the Estate of B. P. Hadley, Deceased.

You and each of you are hereby notified that there is now on file in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of Wright County, Iowa, in the above entitled estate proceeding, the application of Herb Hadley, Executor of the Estate of B. P. Hadley, Deceased, asking the court to construe and interpret the terms and provisions of the Last Will and Testament of B. P. Hadley, Deceased; to determine and adjudicate the interests of all interested parties thereunder, and their rights and interests in and to the property of said decedent, both real and personal; and to direct distribution thereof in the administration of this estate; and further asking general equitable relief. The said executor alleges that the true construction and interpretation of said Last Will and Testament of B. P. Visiting around Iowa

by Joe Marsh

Iowa Thanksgiving

"Well, it shouldn't be hard to figure out what to be thankful for THIS year," Edith remarked the other night.

She snapped off the radio. It had just told of more people being shot in one of the little "Iron Curtain" countries.

"Imagine being shot for what you THINK!"

What a contrast with our own, free America —

— where you can think as you like — live your own life, in friendly tolerance with neighbors whose freedom of thought is as important to them as yours is to YOU.

Little freedoms or big freedoms — all are important. Your right and mine to go to a movie, take in a ball game, or enjoy a temperate glass of beer —

— these are as much a part of our democracy as our right to vote as we please, or think as we please.

Let's not let anyone start tampering with our little rights, or they'll soon want to tamper with the big ones.

Ibsen, Shmibsen, She Said; Confide With Me Everything

By BILLY ROSE

I recently read a magazine piece entitled, "What's Wrong with Modern Marriage," in which the author opined that the divorce rate would drop like an over-ripe apple if the average wife showed more interest in her husband's business and hobbies.

Well, mebbe so, but you can't prove it by my Uncle Charlie and my Aunt Frieda. . . .

Charlie and Frieda are a couple of oldsters who have been living in a four-room flat on the East Side almost as long as magazines have been printing articles entitled, "What's Wrong with Modern Marriage." Ever since their nuptials, they've had at least one argument a day, and when they stop scrapping that's when I'll start worrying about them.

I remember an evening back in the days when I was knee-high to the Allen Street curbstone when Aunt Frieda came home from the movies with an air of unwavering nobility.

"Charlie," she said tensely, "how is business at the shop, good, bad or fair to the middle?"

Billy Rose

"Eh - peh," answered my uncle.

("Eh - peh," I hasten to translate, means that things being what they are, if a man breaks even he can consider himself a runaway success.)

"'Eh-peh' is no answer," said Frieda. "I am sick of living in a doll's house."

"I see," said Charlie. "Tonight in the nickelodeon was showing Nazimova in 'A Doll's House' by Hymie Ibsen."

"Ibsen, Shmibsen," said Frieda. "You can't push me out of your life. Confide in me everything, come thick or thin."

"This I'll confide," said Charlie. "When I come home from the shop I'm tired out like a dog. Bad enough I live through the day without it should repeat on me like radishes."

However, with my Aunt Frieda, like Columbus, there was no turning back. She kept picking away until Charlie itemized the day's doings—everything from punch-in to punch-out.

BUT THAT WAS only the beginning. The payoff came a few weeks later when Charlie was fixing to attend his weekly pinochle session.

"I want you should teach me how to play," said Frieda.

"Pinochle!" said Charlie. "Always you are saying pinochle is for loafers and no-goods."

"I ain't saying different," said Frieda, but pinochle is your passion and I don't want it should take my place in your life."

Now, my uncle was a broad-minded man. When women began to bob their hair, his comment was, "They want to ventilate their necks, so let them." But pinochle —well, that was another matter. Nevertheless, he knew better than to balk his wife outright and, as he explained the game to Frieda, all the while thinking bitterly of the coffeehouse session he was missing, a plot began to hatch in his head.

Next evening he was home early with a bag of wool and knitting needles. "Frieda," he said, "how you make a cable stitch?"

Half an hour later he was in the kitchen tasting the soup. "It needs a pinch paprika," he said.

"You're giving me point-outs how to make soup?"

"Who's teaching? A woman cooks and shops, a husband should similar cook and shop. How much you pay for cabbage?"

"Five cents a head."

"At Fuzarri's on Avenue A, is four cents."

FRIEDA DROPPED a handful of cutlery in the sink." Fuzarri's is six blocks away."

"So what? The exercise will do you good."

That Saturday night, Charlie persuaded a couple of his cronies to come over for a pinochle session and put up with his wife's playing. At 12 o'clock Frieda said, "I can't keep my eyes apart. Maybe you could play three-handed."

"What kind pinochle player stops so early?" said Charlie. "Deal!" And at 3 a.m., Frieda was dealing them as if they were bricks.

Sunday, Charlie put on his best tie. "Today I go with you to see Theda Bara," he said.

"Is not necessary to go with," said Frieda. "I got a date with the ladies."

"Where you go, I go," said Charlie.

Frieda, afraid Charlie would laugh at Theda's amatory exercises and humiliate her in front of her friends, pulled down the flag.

"Marriage is not simple a ball and chain," she said. "You go your way and I'll go to Loew's."

Charlie moved in for the kill.

"No more schmoose about the shop?"

"If no more cable stitches."

"No more pinochle?"

"If no more tasting the soup."

"You got an agreement," said my uncle.

And they've been fighting happily ever since.

WHAT DOES HIGH SCHOOL MEAN TO YOU?

Have you ever wondered what your life would have been like without that high school diploma? Some of you may say "Well a high school education might be alright but I only went through the 7th or 8th grade and me and my wife are happy together." Yes I suppose you are happy, if you are happy living on a small farm, having a small income and a large family. Your children can't go out and have a good time like their friends because you just can't afford it. And, chances are you can't. Think it over hard. Wouldn't you be still happier if you hadn't gotten mad at your teacher and quit? Quitters never get anywhere. Chances are your teacher wasn't hurt anyway. If you had stuck it out maybe when you got higher up in school you could have made the basketball team, or maybe football. Or even been a fast runner and gone out for track.

High school years are the best years of our lives. Those short four years shouldn't be wasted.

Now let's see how my first question would have been answered by a high school graduate. "Have you ever wondered what your life would be like without that high school diploma?" A graduate of ten years or so would probably answer "No I can't. My high school days mean more to me all the time. Why, just the other day I met an old high school friend of mine. We sat down and talked for two hours just on the good old days." And isn't that oh so true. If this young man goes out to get a job and the employer asks, "Have you a high school education?" He can proudly answer, "Yes, I have."

A lot of these car accidents where 3 or 4 people are killed are aimed at the careless driving of boys and girls around 17 or 18 years of age. Some of these people wonder really what causes these accidents. If the parents would take their children, when they get old enough, to get a license, and teach them to drive the death toll would go down two or three hundred a year in Iowa.

Some of these men that lose fingers and hands in the pickers, should have been taught about the dangers and how to run the farm machinery. After some of these men's accidents they can not farm anymore so they must look for a job they can do. Just think what a fix they would be in if they had said,"I don't want to finish high school all I intend on doing anyway is farm and I can learn that at home." He would have been a lot better off if he had completed his high school education.

I am a senior in high school and I am happy to have the opportunity of attending the public schools. Here I am learning my life

Some of the girls will get married right after they graduate. These girls can and will put into use their home ec. learnings.

Others, both boys and girls, will go on to college to be a doctor, nurse, lawyer, teacher, or one of many other professions. I think I have partially impressed upon your minds the need of a high school education. So let's all think over how we can improve our nation and our lives by improving our minds.

What's Doin' In Music

This week I will interview the alto section of our girls glee club. There are only four girls, one out of each grade in high school. From the freshman class comes Sharon Schulte. This is her first year in glee club but from the sound of things she is making her way real good. Beverly Smith is from the sophomore class. Beverly was in glee club last year so she has not had much trouble. Edith Schulte, another alto is from the big junior class. She has had glee club only two years as we didn't have any music teacher when she was a freshman. Last but not least is Thelma Abel from the mighty Senior class. Thelma has enjoyed glee club very much and I am sure she hates to leave us and we also hate to think of her graduating.

Some of the new music we have received is "Skip to My Lou," "Down by the Station," "June is Busting Out All Over," and many more. I am sure the public as well as myself will be anxious to hear the glee club sing these numbers.

The mixed chorus has been working on some new material also. This includes some numbers such as, "Little David Play on Your Harp" "Send Out Thy Light," "Dry Bones" and some popular pieces.

Both groups will soon have a wide selection of songs to pick from as Mr. Hussong, their director, has been adding quite a few new numbers.

From Wilma E. Trumbell and Mrs. Dora Wright of Ellensburgh, Wash., former Belmond residents, comes a postcard of the type that laddens an editor's heart. "We ike your new editorial policy," write the ladies. "In fact, we're utting out the 'Phony Holiday' ditorial and giving it to our wspaper here. It is truly hought provoking."

Miss Trumbell adds,' "By-the-way, I have boasted a ittle (!) about Iowa corn—nd size and quality of the ears. Do you suppose you ould locate one or two really g ears and send them to e? I would like to show my dents (particularly Voc. g. boys) some REAL IOWA corn!"

Incidentally, some of the VFW thought they detected a -handed slap at the local post the Armistice Day editorial. It plainly stated, "We can't say blame the VFW for not going hrough the formality this year" —of trying to cut through public thy sufficiently to obtain a pectable turn-out for a public mony. We meant no more, less, where the VFW was cerned. It was merely public fference we were condemn-, and the Vets can feel as-ed that no criticism of them intended.

Bob Foss, the Independent's nan-of-all-work, having more oney than he knew what to do ith after drawing his check last aturday, went down to the owl-Mor in mid-afternoon and taggered forth hours later with ight games of bowling under his elt

Anyone knowing Foss will grant there's nothing re-markable about that—but the range of scores covered by his efforts IS worthy of note Starting out with a ridiculous 91, he improved until he at-tained a sublime 224 before the afternoon was over. Now comes the question, did he get good or did he get lucky?

That new billboard sign over e front of Elliott Hardware and ppliance is a noteworthy con-ribution to downtown efforts to nstill the Yuletide spirit. Con-isting of a colorfully depicted hurch interior, the sign advises, Attend the church of your hoice regularly" and urges, Teach your children the Christ-as Story." Good ideas; both of hem.

If feathers scattered around is ign of a duck nest, the new torm sewer on Third street is oing to be an actuality before ong. Concrete tiling has been in rocess of delivery the past few ays and Monday a gentleman by ame of Roger Nelson, from arner, showed up with a "back-oler" to go to work on the ditch-igging.

Nelson was expecting Larry Loth, project foreman for R. E. Johnson company of Sioux City, to be on hand—but the last we heard Loth had proved loath to show (ouch!). In grim pursuit of a story, we engaged Nelson in conversation over the name of his ditch-digger.

We insisted it looked like a itch-digger, pure and simple. le was equally insistant that it as a "back-holer" — which ounded to us like the sort of nplement the late Chic Sale iust have employed in his busi-ess . . . Anyway, when the ack-holer comes back, con-truction of the sewer can be ex-ected to start pronto.

Belmond Nips Hampton In Real Thriller, 35-33

Trager, Swenson, Kriens Share in Scoring Honors

Belmond high basketeers broke into the win column Tuesday evening by taking a thriller from Hampton, 35-33, in a ding-dong battle that saw the lead change hands seven times.

It was, for the great part, a much improved Bronco quintet that took the Bulldogs' measure compared with the team that bowed last week to Klemme. On a few occasions it appeared that the visitors might have the Broncs lassoed, but each time the Belmond boys tightened up their play and came galloping back.

Belmond went into an early lead on a hook shot, followed by a set-up, both by Dick Kriens. Dwight Harrison cut the margin to 4-2 by swiping the ball and racing in for a set-up.

Duane Trager counted on one of two tries from the charity line, only to have Paul Schipper tally twice in the same fashion and make it 5-4. Kriens netted another hooker, but a follow-up shot by Ivan Davis just before the end of the first quarter brought the score to 7-6.

Dean Botts sent Coach Ken Cheeley's outfit into the lead for the first time when play was resumed, slipping in for a set-up and adding another point when a foul was called on the play. Trager knotted the count at 9-9, but Schipper tipped in a follow shot and Botts sneaked in for a set-up to give Hampton a 13-9 edge.

Sid Swenson caged a pair of nice tries, with a free toss by Jack Riggs intervening, to push the Broncs in front by a point. Botts got a follow-in to reverse the advantage and Schipper contributed a free throw to send Hampton ahead 16-14.

Then Swenson dribbled in for a nifty counter to even things up. Botts got in the last lick before halftime with a bucket from the

Farmer Waives To Grand Jury On OMVI Count

Kanawha Farmer to Face Penal Term If Convicted

Ben Johns, Kanawha farmer, waived preliminary hearing Monday in the court of Mayor C. F. Buchan at Clarion and was bound over to the grand jury in the January term of district court on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Johns was arrested about 4:00 a. m. Sunday by Patrolman Harlan Seivers on suspicion of drunken driving and a blood test proved his state of intoxication. According to Sheriff Roy Wilson, the man has twice previously been convicted on OMVI charges and conviction on a third offense brings a mandatory prison sentence.

At present, Johns is free under $1,000 bond pending hearing. Sheriff Wilson says he is also at liberty under bond awaiting hearing on the same charge in Cerro Gordo county. He was arrested there some months ago but the trial was held up pending Johns' recovery from serious injuries incurred in a tractor accident, which hospitalized him until fairly recently.

These latest scrapes with the law are only the last of a series which includes some eight motor vehicle law violations since 1935. Johns' drivers license has been suspended periodically over the intervening years and was suspended at the time he was picked up last weekend.

Dick Gowdy Recovering After Suffering Heart Attack on Thanksgiving

R. H. "Dick" Gowdy, advertising manager and co-publisher of the Independent, suffered a heart attack at his home about 9:00 a. m. Thanksgiving morning and will be unable to return to his duties for some time to come.

Although his recuperation was slow for the first two or three days following the attack, Dick is making good progress toward recovery now.

The high esteem in which Dick is held by his fellow townsmen has been clearly manifested by the innumerable inquiries made in regard to his condition—and a host of friends join with his co-workers at the Independent in hoping for his rapid and complete recovery.

"Ballad for Americans" Will Highlight Musicale Tonight

"Ballad for Americans", which will climax the musicale to be presented this evening at the Congregational church, was written by a John LaTouche, a 20-year-old youth of Frenche descent, in 1939. It was inspired by the author's belief that every means should be employed to combat increasing intolerance and misunderstanding in the United States.

The ballad endeavors to offer a guide to freedom and democracy by narrating four historical highlights in the nation's development: the revolution, the growth of the union, the civil war and the machine age. The musical score was written by Earl Robinson.

Mrs. A. B. McKeith, musicale program chairman, says that the copyright owners, the Robbins Music Corporation, graciously permitted use of the ballad by the church without payment of royalty.

A 17-voice mixed chorus will present the "Ballad for Americans", with George Infelt as baritone soloist. Mrs. Inga Steele is director of the chorus.

Eleven other numbers will be included on the musical program: three by the women's chorus, three by the men's chorus, three piano selections by Mrs. Ronald Courson and two vocal selections by Mrs. Jay Vendelboe of Clarion. The complete program appears in an advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

Before and following the musical entertainment which starts at 8:00 p. m., the "Fiesta Mexicano" will be open to the public in the church parlors, offering entertainment and sales booths from which a wide variety of purchases may be made.

FLASH!

Don Faris, superintendent of the Belmond schools, and Mrs. Faris were badly injured Wednesday morning about 10:00 o'clock when their car was hit broadside by a gravel truck. The accident took place about 16 miles east of Belmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Faris were brought to Belmond hospital. Mr. Faris is reported to have suffered a fractured pelvis and collar bone and had 10 ribs fractured. He also sustained multiple lacerations.

Mrs. Faris' left forearm was broken and she also suffered extensive facial lacerations. Their son Johnny, about two, was with them but escaped with only some cuts about the face and did not require hospitalization.

Sheriff L. M. Lemke of Franklin county reported that the truck was registered in the name of George Lancaster, Perry, but at press time the driver was still unconscious in the Hampton hospital and had not been identified.

The collision occurred at an intersection three miles south and six miles east of Meservey. The Faris car was going east and the truck was traveling south.

The Franklin sheriff said the intersection is somewhat obscured from the north by a rise in the road and he suspects that neither driver saw the other vehicle approaching. There is no plan to file charges, Sheriff Lemke stated.

Mr. and Mrs. Faris were making a trip to Mason City at the time of the accident.

Caravan of Trucks Will Stop Saturday Morning At Helland and Longs

A caravan of seven new-model International trucks will stop in Belmond next Saturday morning to be on public display at Helland and Long Implement company, 9:00 o'clock until noon.

"International's re-designed and re-engineered trucks now include a line of 87 basic chassis models designed to handle any type of hauling job," according to L. M. Helland, co-proprietor of the implement business.

His partner, Lem Long, adds, "The new line features shorter overall lengths, greater maneuverability, better load distribution and more economical operation. A new cab design offers greater all-around visibility and provides more interior roominess, comfort and convenience."

The new models were tested over three million miles of road driving under all kinds of conditions. Pre-dating the tests came vast production changeover in plants and assembly lines at a cost of 30 million dollars, Helland and Long have been informed.

Thieves Break In Spurling's Cafe Saturday Evening

Thieves broke into the basement of Spurling's Cafe sometime Saturday night or early Sunday morning and made off with three cases of coffee.

Although Proprietor Ed Spurling is indignant that the uninvited guests depleted his supply of precious coffee, he says it could have been worse. There was another 250 pounds stored in the basement which the interlopers either overlooked or neglected to take in a rush to get away.

The bottom hinge of the cellar door was broken and the top one bent, to give the culprits access to the basement. Ed is resolved that in repairing the door he'll rig up the entrance so it won't be so easily broken into again.

The restaurant owner says his loss could have been much greater, because—in addition to the rest of the coffee left behind—the storeroom contained a generous amount of other food supplies. The loss was not covered by insurance.

There is a possibility that the robbery occurred shortly after midnight and that the thieves were frightened away by Stanley Hill. Mr. Hill had been visiting the Spurlings in their upstairs apartment and about 12:30 a. m. went down to the restaurant to finish up what was left of a pot of coffee.

Sound of Mr. Hill's footstep overhead may have scared off the intruders. At any rate, they left in sufficient hurry that they neglected to extinguish two lights, which they'd likely have turned off to conceal their visit if they had not made an abrupt departure.

LATIMER MAN FINED $100 AFTER LEAVING SCENE OF ACCIDENT

Francis Johnson of Latimer was arrested in Belmond last Saturday evening about 10:00 o'clock on a charge of failing to stop and give information at the scene of an accident. The charge developed out of a traffic scrape that occurred three hours earlier a mile north and half a mile east of town.

Johnson's car struck one belonging to Glenn Eccles and driven by his son, Stanley. Although, according to the sheriff's office, young Eccles' car was to the extreme right of the road, Johnson's auto sideswiped it and ripped off both fenders on the left left side.

The Johnson car careened to the right, struck a railroad warning sign and plunged into the roadside ditch. Johnson drove in the ditch for about a quarter of a mile before getting his car back on the road.

After Eccles had reported the accident, Sheriff Roy Wilson and Deputy Bob Blecker proceeded to the scene of the accident and traced Johnson's progress to Belmond by means of a wobbly wheel track, the wheel having been damaged in the collision or plunge into the ditch.

Belmond police had been instructed to be on the lookout for Johnson and Officers Adolph Dorr and Harry Lamb spotted him and made the arrest. Johnson had been drinking but a blood test registered just below the alcoholic content accepted as evidence of intoxication

Appearing before Mayor C. F. Buchan of Clarion on Monday afternoon, Johnson pled guilty as charged and paid a fine of $100 and costs.

Belmond Theatre Shares In Sponsorship of Shows

As a pre-Christmas treat for youngsters of Belmond and surrounding area, the Chamber of Commerce—with the cooperation of Manager Gene Bradley of the New Belmond theatre — has arranged for three, free movie programs.

Matinees will be presented at the New Belmond on Saturday, Dec. 10, Saturday, Dec. 17 and Wednesday, Dec. 21, with showings on each day beginning at 10:30 a. m. and at 1:00 and 2:30 p .m. There will be no charge for any of the performances on any of the three days.

Each show will run for approximately an hour and a half and Mr. Bradley has lined up attractions that should appeal to every youngster. The matinees on Dec. 10 will offer "Prairie Express," starring Johnny Mack Brown, as the feature attraction. There will also be two cartoons and an epsiode in the "Jesse James" serial will be shown.

On Dec. 17 the feature will be "Gas House Kids in Hollywood", which Mr. Bradley promises will bring enjoyment to every young movie fan. A cartoon and "Jesse James" episode will complete the program.

The final matinees on Dec. 21 will feature an all-comedy program, topped by a three-reeler starring the popular "Three Stooges." Ten—that's right, TEN — cartoons will make up the balance of the entertainment.

There are rumors going the rounds that a personal invitation to Santa Claus has been dispatched to the North Pole, urging him to pay Belmond a visit the week before Christmas. All details for his appearance here have not yet been worked out, but the big announcement should be ready for publication in next week's Independent.

DECORATIONS GO UP

Belmond's business district took on a properly festive air for the holiday season yesterday as a Central States crew strung handsome evergreen garlands, illuminated with colored lights, across Main street. Cecil Carstens, Central States manager, is chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee that arranged for the decorations.

Brady Tells Local Television Buyers What To Look For

As the first merchant to offer television sets for sale to persons in this trade territory, George Brady of Brady Appliance and Service company feels that prospective buyers should be fully acquainted with the stage of TV development in this area.

While TV equipment has long since passed the experimental stage, Mr. Brady points out that this particular area is still experiencing "growing pains" in-so far as TV reception is concerned.

Installation points must be carefully check in regard to type of antenna needed, height required, area noise level and other conditions to ascertain the practicality of attempting reception.

The biggest difficulty with local reception is the distance to nearest broadcasting stations. At present St. Paul, Minneapolis, Davenport and Omaha can bo received under favorable circumstances. As stations closer to this area go into operation, better and better reception can be expected, says

Family Getting In

'L' Of A State

Says Thornton Dad

Leonard Van Dusseldorp of Thornton says friends are beginning to accuse him of raising an "L of a family". The birth of Leslie Lyle on Nov. 16 at the Belmond hospital has not lessened the kidding any.

Father Leonard and Mother Lena now have four children—Lola Larraine, Lana Lorene, Lew Leonard—ages nine, five and two, respectively—and the aforementioned Leslie Lyle.

Besides calling attention to the family's 10 L. initials, Papa Leonard points out that all the youngsters names are Roman numerals adding up to 605—which gives the Van Dusseldorps 2,420 somthin' worth of kids, to date.

With Delinquent Receipts Added To Current Payments - - -

Tax Collections in County Regularly Exceeding Levy

It's reasonable assumption that by the time the deadline for payment of 1948 taxes has passed, Wright county will have in the till an amount equal to or surpassing the total levy for the year — including what has been collected on delinquent taxes along with those payable for the 1948 year.

At least, this goal has been achieved every year since 1934 when Treasurer H. E. Sullivan first became responsible for "gathering in the sheaves" in this county.

Never, during Mr. Sullivan's regime, has collection of current tax fallen below 95 per cent — and in the past six years the per cent collected has exceeded 99 per per cent. Moreover, in each year enough has been collected in delinquent taxes to bring the total collections for the year to more than the actual levy for that year.

Treasurer Sullivan keeps a "score sheet" at his office showing levies each year since 1931, the amount of current tax collected and the per cent of the payable total it represents, the amount of delinquent taxes collected and its percentage relationship to the current tax levy.

In the 18 years, 1931-47, rock bottom from a collection standpoint was reached in 1932 when only 79.75 per cent of the $777,367 levy was collected. Matters improved somewhat the following year. While only 87.92 per cent of the year's levy was collected, $125,372 was received in delinquent taxes so that actual collections exceeded the amount levied for the year by 7.2 per cent.

Under Mr. Sullivan's administration in 1934, current collections jumped to 95.32 per cent of the levy and delinquent collections boosted the year's total to 9.27 per cent over the actual '34 levy.

There has been a steady climb in the annual levy since the 1934 low of $603,619. The levy in 1947, which—including military exemption credits of $11,588.76 received from the state — totaled $1,160,509, was over 92 per cent higher than that of 13 years earlier.

At the same time, collections for 1947 reached the all-time high of 99.62 per cent. On the other hand, delinquent tax collections have steadily diminished because the amount of back taxes collectable has steadily declined. Even so, in 1947 a total of $8,540 in back taxes was received, making total collections for the year about one-third of a per cent in excess of the total levy for the year.

Since 1947, the annual levy is not a true indicator of the amount of tax actually payable to the county. In that year, the legislature approved a bill providing for

Thre Belmond Gridders Get All-State Mention By Des Moines Register

Ten North Iowa conference football players rated laurels in the Des Moines Register's annual all-state selections published last Sunday. They were led by a pair of stars from the unbeaten Northwood eleven, Hinds at end on the sixth team and Pangburn at tackle on the seventh.

The other eight conference representatives received honorable mention — Keith Greenfield of the Broncos topping the list with mention as both a quarterback and halfback. Bob Redmond at half and Duane Trager at tackle were the other Belmond nominees.

Eddie Fox of Forest City was the only other N-I back honored. Forest City also placed Buster Brown, center, Duane Reese, guard, and Tom Anderson, end, on the honor roll; while Northwood's Russell Schaub was named among the guards. Other than Belmond's three accs, Pat Porter, Clarion center—was the only other Wright count player only other Wright county player named.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Kidd of Latimer were Sunday afternoon and evening visitors at the C. H. Jennings home.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Johnson spent the Thanksgiving holiday with their daughter and her family, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Olson in Milwaukee, Wis.

side to set the Bulldogs up with an 18-16 edge at the rest period.

The third stanza saw the Broncs spending most of their time trying to catch up. Perez hit from the foul circle as action again got underway, and Swenson retaliated for Belmond with a set shot. Botts added two for the Bulldogs in similar fashion, Riggs hit on a charity loss—and Perez did likewise.

Don Faris dribbled in for a two pointer, Riggs, netted a foul throw, and Faris dribbled in once more to give Belmond its first edge since halftime, 24-23. Riggs added one point, only to have Davis score on a set-up to make the the third-quarter tally 25-all.

As the final period started, Trager sent Belmond ahead with a follow shot, Botts countered with an underhand toss and Kriens edged the Broncs in front again with a free throw. Renaud gave Hampton its last lead, 29-28, on a nice set shot, only to see Belmond regain the edge on another follow by Trager. Duane promptly added two more points on a one-handed push. Davis tallied on a follow-in to reduce the home team's advantage to 32-31 with four minutes remaining.

Belmond protected its slender margin with methodical play for two minutes, then Kriens added another point by making one of two foul efforts.

The Broncs regained control of the ball and with 33 seconds to go, Swenson all but iced the game by sifting in for a sleeper as Hampton tried to break the Broncos' stall. With only nine seconds left, Harrison brought the Bulldogs up to 35-33 with a pair of gift tries—but in the remaining moments the visitors were unable to get another shot at the hoop.

Hampton exhibited a well-coached, smooth-working team and it took some first-class ball playing on Belmond's part to eke out a victory. Swenson, Trager and Kriens shared almost equally in carrying the scoring burden for the winners, while Riggs, Kinseth and Faris all contributed some fine defensive play.

For Hampton, Dean Botts with 13 points was a stand-out on offense, but Davis and Schipper looked very good for the Bulldogs, too.

Tax Collections . . .

payment by the state to the taxing districts for losses due to military exemptions, up to 25 mills. The amount made good on account of such losses is not included in the levy, but is really a part of the tax income the districts can expect.

This explains why the table following shows a 1947 levy of a little under $1,149,000—and collections of over $1,156,000. Mr. Sullivan doesn't want the public to think that the treasurer's office is taking in more than its due. To the actual levy the $11,558 paid on military credits has to be added—which makes the total monies collectable about $1,160,500 — or 38-hundredths of a per cent more than the amount received on current taxes.

A little analysis of the following tables for 1931 through 1947 presents an interesting picture of economic conditions that have prevailed, how property values have increased—and how governmental costs have grown:

FROSH-SOPH QUINTET VICTORS OVER TALLER HAMPTON FOES, 27-22

Led by Jim Reikens, who poured 17 points through the hoop, Belmond's freshman-sophomore cagers downed Hampton's underclassmen Tuesday night in a curtain-raiser to the Bronc-Bulldog game, 27 to 22.

Although the visitors were, on the average, much rangier than the Junior Broncos, they couldn't match the local boys for scrap—and that told the tale.

Belmond jumped into an immediate lead on a nice shot by Dave Helland and maintained an advantage throughout the half, which ended 11-7. Reikens was responsible for seven of the Belmond points.

The Junior Broncs were slow getting started in the second half and midway in the third period Hampton knotted the score at 11-all. Then Reikens set about his business again and personally pushed Belmond in front 17-11 by the stanza's end.

The young Broncos held an eight-point edge midway in the final period, 21-13. From that point on the visitors never did succeed in throwing a scare into the Belmond boys.

Besides Reikens' splurge, Dave Helland made five points for the winners, Odean Severseike three and Allen Madsen, two. Ernest Jones, Hampton forward, stood out for his team with 10 points; he was ably assisted by Guard Eldon Libby who counted five and played fine defensive ball.

Wright County Now Has Five "Flying Farmers"

Wright county now has five members in the Flying Farmers of Iowa, according to Gayel Carnes of Ames, secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Ernest M. Johnson, who lives west of Belmond, is the only new member. Talferd Johnson, who also lives west of Belmond, has renewed his membership in the organization.

Other Wright county farmers who have renewed their membership are C. Gifford Holm and Sheldon Dahlgren, both of Route 1, Clarion; and Robert Fanselow, Route 2, Dows.

LEADING PUNTER

Del Eggers, former Belmond high school gridder, turned in the best kicking performance among punters performing for the Grinnell college Pioneers this fall, according to his coach, Hank Brown. The ex-Bronco covered a total of 508 yards on 14 punts for an average of 36 yards. A senior, this year's play completed Egger's college competition.

Beverly and Mickey Clopton of Clarion spent the weekend at the Floyd Doctor home.

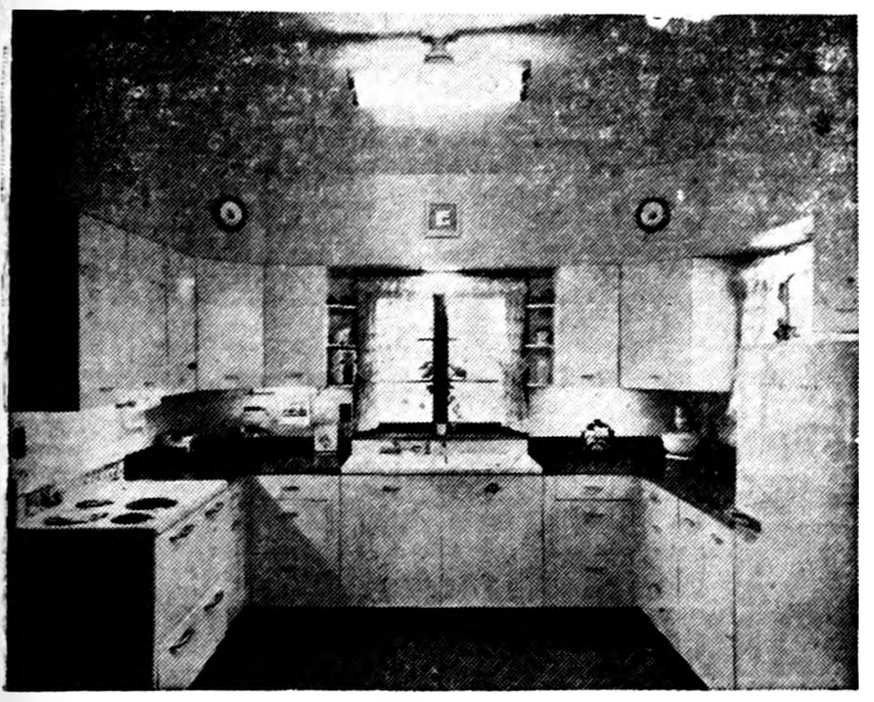
FOR THE KITCHEN - -

Make It an Electric Christmas



Big or little — there are many useful electrical gifts for today's kitchen — electric mixers, ironers, grills, toasters and waffle makers, to say nothing of hot plates, electric timers, clocks and coffee makers. Choose wisely for best satisfaction, say home equipment experts.

Shining new mixers, irons, waffle makers, grills, and other small electrical appliances fill the shop windows. Dressed up in colorful ribbons and cellophane, they're offered as gifts for the family's Christmas stocking.

Naomi Shank, home management specialist at Iowa State college, has some tips to offer Christmas shoppers who have small electric appliances on their gift list.

A waffle maker brings the cooking and the cook to the table, she points out. With so many different types of waffles, you can use the maker to add variety to any meal. Look for a waffle iron that has an expansion hinge between the top and lower grid. Otherwise the waffle can't rise and is soggy.

A wide base to catch any batter overflow, a heat indicator and an automatic control are convenient features also. The bottom of the maker should be insulated to protect the table. Watch that the wires which connect the upper and lower grid are well insulated and won't be damaged when the iron is opened and closed, Miss Shank advises.

Tests at Iowa State college have indicated that when the knobs on the grid are high and close together the waffles will be crisp. Soft, moist waffles are made when the knobs are shallow and farther apart.

There's no jumping up and down from the table when an electric grill is used for toasting sandwiches, frying eggs, broiling meats or baking griddle cakes. If you're making this appliance a Christmas gift, Miss Shank suggests that you look for the same qualities as those she listed for the waffle maker. Many grills feature a small drip pan beneath a spout to catch the grease and an extra set of grids for waffles.

An iron is a welcome gift for any woman. Be sure to check the guarantee, Miss Shank advises. It will usually tell you how many years you may expect the iron to last. If possible, try to find out what type of heating element is in the iron.

A coiled wire element placed in the grooves of a procelain insulating brick may wear out quite rapidly. Others which have a 3 to 5-year guarantee have a metal ribbon element wound on mica sheets. Lifetime irons usually have the wire embedded in an insulating material.

Check to see if the iron is comfortable to hold. The handle should be heat-resistant.

Automatic heat controls which turn the heat off and on to maintain a constant temperature will should be far enough away from the iron to prevent burns and prevent damage to the iron from over heating.

The temperature indicator should have selections for different types of fabrics as well as high, medium, low and off.

Most families who have a mixer would never be without one again—they're that useful. In selecting a mixer, consider the size that will be needed by the person who will be using it. Some of the most inexpensive mixers have small motors which are not capable of mixing even semi-heavy batters. Choose a mixer which will be easy to clean.

Proper Wiring Will Not Protect Any Home Unless Correct Size Fuses Used

Even though a wiring system is designed properly, wires may become overloaded if you don't protect the system with proper fuses or circuit breakers.

Failure of electrical equipment or the addition of too much equipment on any one circuit may cause the wires to become overloaded, according to Harold Beaty extension agricultural engineer at Iowa State college. If not protected for such emergencies, wires may become so hot that they burn out. That can result in a fire.

Beaty suggests that you look over the safety values in your wiring system. Make sure that fuses and circuit breakers are small enough so that they will relieve the electrical load when it becomes too much for the wires to handle.

The size of fuses or circuit breakers is determined by the size of wires they are expected to protect. Beaty lists these maximum size fuses for these sizes of wire making up the smallest wire in any circuit: No. 14, 15 amp.; No. 12, 20 amp.; No. 10, 30 amp.; No. 8, 40 amp.; No. 6, 60 amp.; No. 4, 70 amp.; and No. 2, 95 amp.

If the safe size fuse or circuit breaker continues to "blow" when equipment is turned on or operating, don't substitute a larger fuse or circuit breaker to correct the trouble, Beaty cautions. It's probably time to start overhauling the wiring system. Replace old wiring with larger wire, or change some of the appliances and lights to other circuits if available.

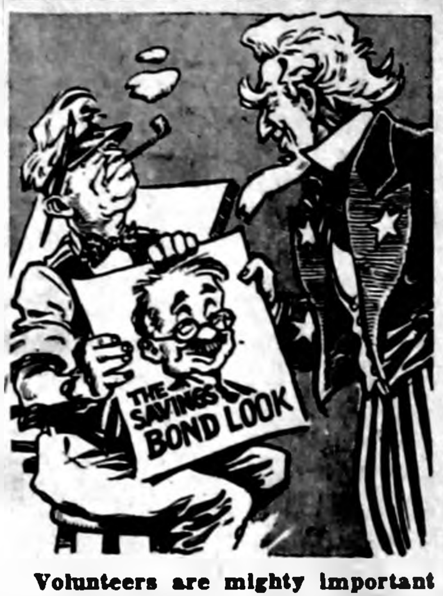
Uncle Sam Says



Volunteers are mighty important to the U. S. Savings Bonds Program. During the fall when farmers are bringing in their harvests, an outstanding group of U. S. Savings Bonds volunteers will be traveling the country telling people about Bonds.

These volunteers are the cartoonists who draw your favorite comic strips and they will put on a show in connection with a Treasury Department sponsored art exhibit, "20,000 Years of Comics," in several American cities. They are freely giving of their time and effort to continue telling their readers that U. S. Savings Bonds are the safest and best investment in the world.

Back-saving Technique

The easiest way to paint a chair or small table, is to turn the piece of furniture upside down and paint the underneath portions first.

Water Evergreens

Evergreens need plenty of water. Whenever rains are missing, the evergreen owner should be alert to remedy the deficiency no matter at what time of the year it comes. City evergreens need water forcibly sprayed over the top as well as on the roots, in order to wash off the layer of greasy soot which collects on the needles.

A Penny Buys a Share In the New Champion

When Joe Louis was at peak form, would you have paid a penny for a share of the champ—or a dollar—or a couple of dollars? You know very well you'd have jumped at the chance. So it should be good news to you that today you can purchase a share in an even greater champion at the very prices mentioned.

Buy Christmas Seals
GREETINGS
1949
USA
Help Stamp Out TB

We're talking about the Tuberculosis association, whose Christmas seals were mailed out over the weekend. This champ has been battling the scourge of "white death" for 42 years and enters the fifty-third round with its foe hanging on the ropes.

When the fight started, tuberculosis was this nation's top killer. Now it has slipped clear down to six place and each year advances in medical science—financed in large part by the pennies paid for Christmas seals—is getting in more telling blows. The knock-out hasn't been administered yet; it's no time to let down. But if the champ's shareholders keep tossing in the kitty, when they get those little stickers in the mail, the end result is certain.

So confident is the champ that he's got the old challenger whipped, that he's taking on a new one. This year the Heart association is sharing in the proceeds of the annual sale of Christmas seals. This is most appropriate, because deaths from heart ailments now total more than from any other cause. That makes a second good reason for promptly returning cash in exchange for the colorful little stamps which have become a traditional part of the Yuletide season.

Mason City Offers Example Of Municipal Cemetery Management

How simply management of a community cemetery can be transferred from a cemetery association to the municipal government is demonstrated by just such a transaction which took place in Mason City in the spring of this year. Elmwood cemetery in that city had been under the management of an independent association since its establishment; by ordinance, on March 1, the responsibility was transferred to a board of trustees appointed by the mayor.

Guy F. Zach, general manager of the cemetery, informs us that upon transfer of management to civic authorities, the actual responsibility can be placed with the city clerk, park commissioner or another member of the city administration —or placed in the hands of a board of trustees, as Mason City did. The last alternative is highly recommended, because of the continuity of management that is thus possible.

There is always the possibility that the office tenure of an individual member of a municipal administration may end with any election, which could leave cemetery management thereafter the responsibility of some person entirely unfamiliar with the job. On the other hand, if a five-man board of trustees is in charge of the cemetery, and only one member per year retires, four members of the board are always well versed in the details of the job.

When the Mason City board of cemetery trustees was appointed, one member was appointed for a year, another for two, one for three, one for four and one for five years. Each year one member must be replaced or reappointed for another term of service—each term, hereafter, being for five years.

Under this system, no trustee need serve longer than five years unless he chooses. Contrast that with the 24 years that Mrs. E. W. Luick has served as president of the Belmond cemetery association—and similar periods of tenure foisted upon other officers of the association.

Were it necessary for some city official to add the burden of cemetery management to his already multiple duties, there might be justification for refusal of the municipal government to accept responsibility for overseeing cemetery operation. But establishment of such a board as suggested gives the job to a group which will always be experienced, in the majority, and will have no other assigned civic responsibilities.

From the standpont of the cemetery association, the transfer would involve no more than issuing a quit claim deed to the city for land owned by the group, relinquishment of right and title to funds of the association, and formal dissolution of the association as a corporate body.

We cordially invite members of the cemetery association—which includes all persons owing lots in the cemetery—to express their opinion in regard to this transfer of authority which the association officers so keenly desire. To us it appears both reasonable and feasible.

Needed Change in Social Security Would Protect Vets' Families

One of the penalties that have been charged against World War II veterans by virtue of their service will soon be erased if a bill recently passed the House is approved by the U. S. Senate and signed by the President. It concerns Social Security survivors' benefits and could mean between $1,000 and $2,000 to the families of veterans losing their lives after return to civilian status.

Social Security benefits to survivors of deceased workers are determined by dividing the number of months since the worker first started on a "covered" job into the amount of wages he earned under covered employment up to the time of his death. Up to date, the years a worker spent in service have been blank years—because he was not covered by Social Security during that period—yet were counted in determining his average monthly wage since first being employed under Social Scurity.

The House bill proposes to give veterans wage credit of $160 per month for time spent in military service. This bill should by all means be made law, for under the present arrangement a veteran is actually PENALIZED—from a Social Security standpoint—by having served his country.

Let us take an example. Ex-Corp. Jenks is married and has two children, ages three and one. From 1941 up to now he has had an average wage of $200 per month—except for three years in service, which are blank in figuring his family's Social Security benefits. If he dies, his wife and children will receive $50.87 per month in such benefits until the eldest child reaches 18—then $36.34 until the youngest reaches 18. These benefits would total $10,028 over a 17-year period.

When the proposed bill is passed, giving him a $160-per-month wage credit for years of service, his family's benefits in event of his death would be $57.45 for the first 15 years and then $41.04 for the remaining two years. This would total $11,325.96 — or $1,297.20 more than the Jenks widow and children would get under present circumstances. Had the veteran's civilian earnings under social security averaged greater than $200 per month, the two benefit totals—and the difference between them—would, of course, be larger.

Uncle Sam has been very generous with his fighting men in most respects, and the injustice of the existing Social Security provisions was undoubtedly just overlooked. But if an oversight or not, it is right and fitting that correction be made as promptly as possible.

A man named Thompson has been conducting the pool hall and on the day named he played pool against Ed Larson and Chester Hamond, the losers to go to Goodell and buy liquor for all. Larson and Hamond the losers, fulfilled their part of the deal. The matter was brought to Mayor Griesy's attention with result of a fine and costs for all parties concerned and the closing of the hall for two weeks.

Don't Put Away Spreader Until Thoroughly Clean, ISC Man Warns Farmers

Fertilizer spreaders need to be thoroughly cleaned out before they're put away for the winter if not cleaned after they were last used. Reports of damage to spreaders and drills by corrosion have been received by Dale Woolsoncroft, extension agricultural engineer at Iowa State college.

He points out that just running the spreader under shelter won't solve the problem, since commercial fertilizers appear to draw moisture when left standing in the machine. This causes rusting.

Iowa owners have found that the best safeguard against corrosion damage is the removal of all fertilizer material including dust-like particles of fertilizer. Some have found that it even pays to take out the agitators and movable parts and wipe out the drill, Woolsoncroft says.

WRIGHT COUNTY SALE OF E-BONDS FOR TEN MO.'S OVER $1,300,000

Purchases of series E United States savings bonds in Iowa for the first 10 months of 1949 exceeded redemptions of series A through E bonds, plus redemptions of World War II terminal leave bonds, by almost 43 million dollars, Roger E. Warin, state director of the savings bond division, announced today.

Sales of E bonds amounted to $131,657,574 while total redemptions were $88,732,636. In Wright county, sales amounted to $1,336,418, or about 64 per cent more than the redemptions of $833,391.

Total sales of series E, F and G bonds reached $191,702,029, Warin said, but redemption figures of F and G bonds are not reported by state or counties because they aren't great enough to justify the necessary bookkeeping involved in the breakdowns.

Warin expressed confidence that sales will increase during the next two months, partially as a result of the current campaign to channel farm cash incomes into safe investments for future spending and retirement.

He also pointed out that many firms give Christmas gifts and year-end bonuses to employees in the form of savings bonds, with the result that December sales exceed the annual averages.

OLD EAR

Howard Power of near Greenfield was displaying a 30-year old ear of corn there recently. When a new crib on the Power farm was built 30 years ago, the ear was nailed in the gable by Mr. Power's father. It was still in good condition when taken down last week.

RATS

When the "cease firing" order was issued after a community rat-killing campaign at Waverly officials reported there had been over 3,000 rat casualties. Poisoned bait was used. The rats ate over 40 pounds of bait in a single night.

PARTICLE

Donny Lee Huinker, Monona infant, was recently taken to Rochester to have a particle of food removed from his lung. Doctors believe the food particle was part of a nut, swallowed with a cookie, and it passed down the baby's wind-pipe, lodging in the lung.

ICE-BOX

An old ice-box nearly cost the life of four-year old Charles Fuller of Jefferson. He wandered away from home and a search was instituted. On a hunch, police opened the old ice-box which was in an old garage building and found the youngster in there with his cat. Charles was close to suffocation but still able to say, "Here I am."

Reporting Farm Doings

by "Pat" Gallagher

A good demand for beef cows is predicted for the next three to five years because cattle numbers are at the bottom of their cycle and farmers and ranchers are expected to create a brisk demand for breeding stock while building back their herds. In addition, the anticipated limitation on corn acreages should mean more grass over the Corn Belt for grazing purposes.

—RFD—

A trick for extending the life of ordinary fence posts is described in a current farm publication. Whereas five years is considered a reasonable lifetime for the average wooden post, the article reports that treating posts with pentachlorophenol will extend their life to 25 years. Treatment with the chemical costs about 40 cents per post.

The same article suggests posts should be cut in late winter or early spring, seasoned through the summer and treated [illegible] the fall. Black oak, pin oak, red oak and pine—according to the report—have shown the longest increase in life from chemical treatment.

—RFD—

Don't want to discourage anybody, but farmers can look forward to paying higher prices for protein feeds before long. Supplies are five to 10 per cent short of a year ago and there will be less soybean meal, linseed meal and peanut meal — but MORE tankage, meat and bone meal and cottonseed. Larger hog and poultry production is expected to stiffen the demand.

—RFD—

Hog cholera outbreaks can be an expensive proposition on even a small farm, so simple precautions are well worth taking. Vaccination, of course, is a primary safeguard; keeping trucks and wagons—and even neighbors whose sanitary measures you don't feel you can trust too much—off your lot are good protective measures. And the experts say newly purchased hogs should be kept away from the rest of your herd for three weeks.

—RFD—

The American Veterinary Medical association is telling cattle owners: "If there is a needle in your haystack, better find it!" Which is the vets' way of warning that loose hardware that finds its way into cattle feed is getting to be a multi-million dollar headache for the livestock industry. Nails, pieces of baling wire, and other sharp objects that fall into hay and grain eaten by cattle often pierce the stomach wall and puncture the heart, causing death.

—RFD—

In addition, the carcasses of thousands of cattle are condemned every year at packing plants because hardware damage has made the meat unfit for human consumption. Technical name for the condition is pericarditis. Figures cited by the veterinary association show that carcasses weighing nearly three and a half million pounds were condemned for this reason by federal meat inspectors last year.

—RFD—

The veterinarians add that many cattle carcasses also are condemned for pericarditis each year in packing plants outside of federal jurisdiction, uncounted but large numbers of cattle on farms and in feedlots die from the condition, and major surgery is required to remove piercing hardware from hundreds of others. They urgently suggest that farmers make sure that pieces of wire from bales of hay go to the trash pile instead of into the feed rack.

—RFD—

Studies made at Iowa State college show that the largest increase in returns for either conturing or terracing comes with the five-year rotation of corn-corn-oats-meadow-meadow.

Iowa U.'s Lie Detector Helps 'Crack' Unsolved Crime Cases

Iowa City, Iowa — During repeated tests by a lie detector, innocent persons become less and less nervous while the guilty become increasingly unstrung and their condition is recorded by the machine, according to Richard L. Holcomb, director of the bureau of police science at the State University of Iowa.

The university has one of two lie detectors in the state used in criminal investigation. The machine, and Holcomb, who operates it, are often called in as consultants on unsolved cases throughout the state as a part of the service offered by the bureau. The other lie detector is operated by the state bureau of criminal investigation in Des Moines.

Commenting on the use of the machine, Holcomb says that the principle involved is not a new one. It was first proposed by Leonard da Vinci in the 16th century.

Any lie is accompanied by an emotion which results in one or more physical responses, according to the theory. The lie detector measures these responses—changes in blood pressure, rate of breathing and heart beat; it records the changes, and a trained observer can detect lapses from the truth by interpreting the charts.

The detector may be applied by one of two methods. The first is used when the circumstances accompanying the crimes are not generally known. This method can be applied in a case such as breaking-and-entering.

Suppose only the investigators and the guilty party know how entrance was made. When the means used is mentioned after several others have been suggested, the culprit's blood pressure rises and the rate of breathing increases. The innocent person, who doesn't know how entrance was gained, remains normal when the particular means used is mentioned.

When the circumstances are generally known, a second method of lie detection is used. Indirect questions such as "What did you have for breakfast," or "What is your name," are interwoven with the events leading up to the crime. Then at the crucial question, the person reacts with increased blood pressure and breathing. He has been thinking of it and dreading the moment when it would be asked.

The principal weakness of the lie detector is in questioning psychopathic liars. These individuals feel no emotion when lying, and do not register lies when checked by the machine. To eliminate them, all persons are subjected to a pre-test.

They may be told to hold a few playing cards. The questioner asks them is they have certain cards, and has them say "no" to each question. The non-psychopathic liar will register when confronted with the cards he knows he is holding.

One of the benefits of the lie detector is shown by the number of persons who confess when told they will be tested on the machine.

The legality of the lie detector has never been entirely decided. Its results have been admitted in some courts, but only upon consent of both parties. It cannot be used on a suspect who objects.

Training School Dec. 13-15th Will Begin 4-H Boys Special Activities

The 1950 boys' 4-H special activities program will swing into high gear with a leaders' training school on tractor maintenance set for Dec. 13-15 on the Iowa State college campus.

Other leader training schools will follow in nearly every county in the Hawkeye state during the latter part of December and January to prepare local leaders for the special activities program planned for February and March club meetings.

According to Stanley Davidson, assistant state boys' 4-H club leader, counties in the northern third of the state are studying agricultural engineering in their 1950 special activities program. Club members in these counties will learn about tractor maintenance, farm electrificatioh or farm safety and fire prevention.

Central Iowa 4-H'ers may choose between soil conservation, wildlife conservation and home grounds improvement for study in their special activities program. Members in the southern section have their choice of several livestock activities.

County extension personnel, soil conservationists or extension specialists will conduct the training schools in the counties for all activities except tractor maintenance, Davidson explained.

First training session of the tractor maintenance school will be held during the afternoon, Dec. 13. A banquet in honor of club leaders has been scheduled at the college Memorial Union that evening.

The school will give leaders training in actual maintenance operations, as well as helps in setting up schools for the boys in their own counties at implement repair shops. Included in the training will be care and maintenance of fuel and carburetion systems, air cleaner, cooling systems, ignition and lubrication systems and tractor safety.

Training will be given by agricultural engineers at the college, with representatives of farm tractor companies assisting.

Many Do Not Understand Social Security Rights, State Field Man Reports

Over 500,000 new claims for Social Security benefits were received in the first six months of 1949, according to George R. Replogle, field representative of the Fort Dodge office of the Social Security Administration. Undoubtedly many thousand additional benefits could have been established had they been properly applied for. A claim must be filed before benefits are paid, Mr. Replogle emphasizes.

Every wage earner should contact the nearest Social Security office at age 65. In case a worker dies, his surviving relatives should inquire within three months.

The Fort Dodge office of the Social Security Administration services 11 counties in northwestern Iowa, including Wright county. Inquiries may be directed to that office or a person may contact Mr. Replogle, the field representative, on one of his monthly itinerant visits to this county.

There are many persons who still do not know their rights under the Social Security Act and are in danger of losing benefits if they do not learn them, Mr. Replogle explained. He will be in the basement of the courthouse in Clarion, Thursday, Dec. 8, from 10 a. m. until noon.

"BALLAD FOR AMERICANS"

John LaTouche wrote the words for "Ballad for Americans" when twenty years of age. He saw a necessity to combat intolerance and misunderstanding which he thought were increasing in the U. S. The Ballad is a narrative history of the U. S. and offers a guide to Freedom and Democracy. It is based on four highspots in our national history: the Revolution, the growth of the Union, the Civil War and the Machine Age.

So Wilson Held Up the War For Fast Shorthand Lesson

By BILLY ROSE

During the closing days of World War I, I took the President of the United States out of play for 15 minutes. I did it with my little shorthand pencil.

At the time, I was working for the War Industries Board in Washington as a stenographer, and running out to get chocolate sodas for Mr. Baruch, its chairman.

A few days before the Armistice, a Board executive handed me a letter and told me to deliver it to the proper party. The proper party was Woodrow Wilson.

The White House that day was a jumble of senators, Cabinet members, ambassadors and important brass. News of the Armistice was expected any hour, and the tension was like the last few seconds of the Dempsey-Firpo fight.

I handed the letter to one of Mr. Wilson's secretaries, and was asked to wait in case of a reply. A few minutes later the secretary returned, looking puzzled. "The President would like to see you," he said.

Billy Rose

I got trembly inside. I was pushing 18 at the time—fresh out of the East Side, and also plain fresh. But my dealings with Presidents had been limited to the one I had seen on dollar bills.

Mr. Wilson smiled when he saw me. "I understand you're quite a shorthand writer," was his greeting.

MY TREMBLES vanished. I knew the President was a shorthand writer of sorts—the tachygraphy magazines were always bragging about it. "I hear you're pretty good yourself, Mr. President," I blurted out.

Mr. Wilson blushed prettily. "I don't get much chance to practice these days," he said, like a fisherman apologizing for a six-inch trout. "Mr. Baruch tells me you can write 200 words a minute. I wonder if you'd give me a little demonstration."

He handed me a pad and a pencil, and picked up a New York newspaper on his desk. Then, in his clipped, precise speech, he read one of the editorials at about 150 words a minute. When be had finished, the President said, "Now let's hear you read it back."

Well, as every stenographer knows, it's the reading back that counts. I shot the editorial back at him a good deal faster than he had dictated it. And then I started at the bottom of the page and read the editorial backwards.

Wilson chuckled. He asked me questions about Gregg shorthand—he was a Pitman writer. By this time, I was patronizing him a little—the caddie who shoots a 61 isn't self-conscious when he discusses mashie shots with a Rockefeller.

I PICKED UP the New York paper and handed the pad and pencil to Mr. Wilson. "I wonder if you'd mind writing for me, Mr. President," I said.

Wilson rubbed his glasses on his sleeve. "Don't go too fast," he warned.

I read the editorial at about one hundred words a minute, and then asked him to read it back. When I told him he had made no mistakes, the President sighed like a kid who has just finished playing 'The Elves' Waltz' for Paderewski.

I picked up his notes. "If you don't mind, sir," I said, "I'd like to keep them."

Woodrow Wilson reached for my shorthand notes. "We'll exchange," he said.

I walked out of the White House and floated back to my office via the rooftops.

I had no sooner gotten to my desk than the phone rang. "Mr. Baruch wants to see you," said his secretary.

"Pretty good for Delancey street" I said to myself as I walked down the hall. "Woodrow Wilson and Bernie Baruch in one hour."

The girl in Mr. Baruch's office looked up as I bounced in.

"The boss wants you to get him a chocolate soda," she said.

IOWA G. O. P. MAINTAINS---

By GERALD BOGAN
Publicity Director
Republican State Committee

Whenever the government handles tax money the "brokerage charges" of bureaucracy are terrific.

The so-called "grants" which come back to the states from the federal taxes collected are only a small portion of the taxes collected in the states. The government has nothing to "give," it only can collect taxes, take out a big chunk for "handling charges" and then return a small portion as "grants".

The "benevolent" administration in Washington jingles the money bags in front of voters, then reaches into the taxpayers pockets for more money with which to continue the "free" services. But it is making no provision to reduce the public debt.

Here in Iowa, for example, the federal government collected $446,799,761 in taxes during the 1948 fiscal year and "gave" the state $98,776,448 in "grants." Is that good business?

Government doesn't create money, it only spends what it takes from the people in taxes. The Truman administration is going even further. It is spending more than it takes in. There is prospect of a seven billion dollar deficit by the end of the current fiscal year. Such a practice, if continued, would mean national bankruptcy.

Former Secretary of State Jas. Byrnes recently called it "the trickle back system" in which the federal government permits "only a small part of each tax dollar to trickle to the states in federal aid," which results in "big government in Washington and makes beggars of the states."

Here's how neighboring states get "trickle back money" from Washington:

	Tax Payments	"Grants"
NEBRASKA—	$ 323,448,438	$ 56,062,223
ILLINOIS—	3,785,815,370	278,727,363
MISSOURI—	1,114,993,503	189,206,485
MINNESOTA—	706,239,359	124,051,188

By FRANK MOORHEAD
Publicity Director
Democratic State Committee

Because of the contemptuous indifference of Republican leaders Iowa is not sharing in the billion-dollar federal housing program launched last week, which would have meant assistance for the building of 10,000 housing units in Iowa in the next two years.

In a letter to the editor of the Unionist and Public Forum, of Sioux City, the Public Housing Administration states:

"Low-rent housing, as contemplated by this Act, may be developed only in those communities where local housing agencies exist by virtue of state enabling legislation. Until such enabling legislation is passed in Iowa, no Iowa community will be able to participate in the public housing provisions of the Housing Act of 1949. You will be interested to learn that 42 states have passed laws authorizing local housing authorities."

On February 10, 1949, in the third week of the 1949 Iowa Legislative session, 19 Democratic representatives introduced a bill in the lower House which would have enabled Iowa to share in the federal housing program. This Democratic bill was referred to a committee, headed by a Republican representative. It was never heard of again.

That Democratic bill specifically provided "an authority is empowered to borrow money or accept contributions, grants or other financial assistance from the Federal government, for or in aid of any project within its area of operation." Had that bill been passed and signed into law, Iowa could be getting help to build 10,000 homes for the homeless.

Enabling legislation, such as proposed in Iowa but killed by the Republicans, is now in effect in the neighboring states of Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, Nebraska and N. Dakota. The suffering and homeless people of Iowa, the best state in the Union, are not so fortunate.

The day that President Truman launched the Public Housing program loans were approved totaling $20,375,400 to 108 cities for the planning of low-rent homes for a half million people. The federal legislation provides for about 810,000 units over the next six years.

Iowa got nothing; the cold shoulder, the icy stare, the "Be-damned" shrug of contemptuous indifference.

Insurance Death Be Iowans $14,820,000

Iowa families received $14,,820,000 in life insurance death benefit payments in the first nine months of this year, compared with $14,573,000 in the corresponding period of last year, the Institute of life Insurance reported today.

The number of policies becoming claims in the first nine months was 9,048 which compares with 8,786 in the corresponding period of 1948.

"The increased bulwark of protection owned by American families is reflected in these current payments," said Holgar J. Johnson, president of the Institute, in announcing the figures. "For the country as a whole, death benefits paid showed an increase of 48 percent in the first nine months of this year as compared with the corresponding period of 1941.

"This clearly reflects the growing spread of life insurance ownership rather than of an increase in the death rate among policyholders. Actually, the health record this year has been good. Death benefit payments in this state in the first three quarters of this year compare with $8,645,000 in the corresponding 1941."

Of this year's aggregate payme state, $12, 5,192 ordinary 537,000 was life insurance $788,000 was under dustrial insurance

Plans In Making For Building New Hospital

• • • •

State Inspectors Will Not Approve One Now in Use

SEE EDITORIAL

First, tentative plans for organizing a drive to finance the construction of a new hospital in Belmond were discussed last Friday evening at a meeting in the Methodist church basement that was attended by some 75 public-spirited citizens of this community and surrounding rural area. Clark McNeal served as chairman.

At the outset of the meeting Dr. S. P. Leinbach explained why steps must be taken immediately to provide new hospital facilities for Belmond and environs. He reported that inspectors from the state department of health have refused to approve Steele Memorial hospital because it does not meet present construction requirements. It is not fireproof and fails to meet other rigid specifications because of faults basically inherent in the remodeled building.

"The state laws in this regard are fair and reasonable," Doctor Leinbach conceded. "The state department has generously agreed to permit continued use of the hospital until the town has had opportunity to replace it. But that concession is contingent upon Belmond's taking prompt action toward the building of the new hospital."

Over and above the matter of structural faults, Dr. Leinbach emphasized, the present hospital facilities are seriously inadequate to meet the demands currently placed upon them. Both the normal capacity of 13 beds and emergency capacity of 20 fall far short of the bed capacity needed to meet the requirements of the area the hospital serves.

Attorney Roy Henderson was then heard in connection with the possibility of voting a city bond issue to partially finance the proposed structure. He reported that on the basis of an assessed value of $1,748,000 in personal and real property and utility holdings in the communi- the actual value would be around $3,057,000.

The limit of bonded indebtedness allowable on such a total of community property would be roughly $150,000. Mr. Henderson pointed out that other civic improvements, in the form of sewage disposal, water system and streets are imminently necessary. In his opinion it would

Herman Morgan Will Sell Farm Equipment Dec. 15

Herman Morgan, in today's issue, announces a closing out sale next Thursday, Dec. 15, on his farm two miles east and a mile south of Belmond. His sale will be featured by a good-sized offering of farm machinery.

Mr. Morgan, his wife and two children will move to Iowa Falls the first of March, where he will be employed by the Lewis Implement company, dealer in International Harvester machinery and Kaiser-Frazer cars.

After two months as a truck driver to familiarize himself with the territory and farmers around Iowa Falls, Mr. Morgan will be employed by the implement company as a salesman.

AUDITOR HAS THE MONEY

First Refunds Under Land Tax Credit Act Due in Few Weeks

One of these days farm owners with 10 acres or more of land lying within the confines of Belmond Independent School District will receive pro rata shares in a fund of $1,886.26 which has been returned to County Auditor Roger Charlson by the state comptroller representing refunds for 1946 and 1947 under the agricultural land tax credit act.

All told, Wright county rural landowners will share in a refund of $4,194.13 for 1946 and another of $17,401.29 for 1947. Since the legislature allowed only $500,000 for such refunds for the year 1946, claims will be settled on a 17 per cent basis. For 1947 an appropriation of $2,000,000 was made, which will allow for settlement on a basis of 38 per cent on each claim.

Since the 53rd General Assembly amended the law to make $5,000,000 available for 1948 refunds, settlement for that year should be on a still higher percentage basis.

Apportionments in the Belmond school district for the two years, according to areas involved, are: Belmond township $74.44 for '46 and $242 75 for '47; Pleasant township $399.37 and $872.00; Corporation Belmond $48.13 and $248.94.

Farmland owners in Rowan Consolidated School District will receive refunds as follows: Blaine township $48.73 for '46 and $228.67 for '47; Grant township $7.18 and $25.76; Iowa township $394.79 and $1,497.28; Corporation Rowan $5.75 and $20.61. The Rowan total is $2,238.77.

Owners of farm land in Alexander Consolidated District will share the following refunds: Iowa township $136.99 and $715.72; Pleasant township $63.14 and $282.16, making a total for the Alexander district of $1,892.07. In the Meservey Consolidated District, rural tract holders in Pleasant township will share $18.69 for '46 and $81.35 for '47—or $100.04, all told.

The intended purpose of the law is to relieve agricultural lands in school districts from general school taxes amounting to over 15 mills. In such cases as the qualifying landowner is paying in excess of that millage, the refund is supposed to reduce his actual net payment to a 15-mill basis.

Auditor Charlson says that State Attorney General Larson has ruled that individual claims for refunds need not be submitted. Mr. Charlson has been directed to apportion the refunded money amongst the individual land owners. The list of apportionments must then be approved by the board of supervisors and certified by the auditor to the county treasurer, who will issue checks to the individuals entitled to refunds.

All this procedure is going to require a number of weeks to complete and Mr. Charlson predicts that it will be some little time after the first of the year before refund checks are ready for delivery.

For the past two years the appropriations for 1946 and 1947 refunds has been held in escrow, as the law was for a time declared unconstitutional. Later the supreme court reversed this decision and upon its refusal to review the second opinion, the money became available for distribution.

COUNCILMEN APPROVE ASSESSMENT REFUNDS ON TWO SEWER JOBS

By resolution of the city council made and approved at its meeting Monday evening, property owners who were assessed for installation of the sewers completed not long ago in Barry Addition and on Third Street S. E. are to get back a fair share of their voluntary assessments.

Assessments for the Barry Addition sewer totaled $2,771.85 and the actual cost came to only $2,059.48. Consequently, the property owners involved will get back a total of $712.37, or slightly over 25 per cent of their individual assessments.

E. F. Bailey, city water commissioner, reported that $70.45 of the $300 in assessments collected for the Third Street S. E. Sewer was not needed, so the property owners assessed for that project will each get back about 23 per cent of what they originally paid.

Mrs. A. P. Thompson Feels

THE YULETIDE SPIRIT

Bit Early in The Season

Mrs. A P. Thompsen this year began her Christmas giving early. Fact of the matter is, it came as somewhat a surprise to her when she discovered that she had "given."

Several weeks ago Mrs Thompsen was on the serving committee for a supper at the Trinity Lutheran church. With admirable forethought, she took along an old pair of shoes to wear in the kitchen, donning them as she deposited her good pair in the cloak room.

At the end of the evening she forgot to switch back and it was not until a couple of weeks later that she commissioned her son, Jim, to go to the church cloak room and retrieve the good shoes.

Jim scouted around without success and solicited the assistance of A. E. Thompson, church janitor. Mr. Thompson dubiously suggested maybe Jim had better confer with Matilda Skovlin.

Miss Skovlin, it appears, is in charge of dispatching boxes of clothing to the needy overseas, and . . . . you guessed it. The cloak room is used as a collection depot for apparel being assembled for shipment.

"My gracious," cried the dismayed Miss Skovlin "Those shoes were in a box that left for Norway a week ago!"

The presentation will include 22 numbers from the work by Handel. Among them will be the recitative, "Comfort Ye My People" and four airs, "Every Valley Shall Be Exalted," "He Was Despised," "Why do the Nations Rage" and "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth." The 400 voices will close with the Hallelujah Chorus.

For four weeks previous to his arrival here he was supervising the preparation and opening of Diamond Brothers first super market, at Hampton. For a year and a half prior to his brief stint at Hampton he managed a Diamond store at Eldora.

Mr. Saunders has been in the employ of Diamond Brothers since 1936, excepting three years during the war when he was in the U S.. Army. A soldier in the infantry, he spent six months in the European theatre.

Speaker Says Teen-Age Drivers Poorly Trained

Poor training received by teenage drivers is responsible for the relatively large number of traffic mishaps they are involved in, the Chamber of Commerce was told last Thursday by Bert Woodcock, director of driver training at Iowa State Teachers college.

"Too many parents explain to their sons and daughters how to shift gears, where they can find the brake — and then turn them loose," Mr. Woodcock declared. He urges that young drivers be impressed adequately with the power of the machines they drive and be familiarized with some of the elemental physics involved in stopping, turning, and generally controlling a car.

The speaker pointed out that average stopping distance of a car traveling at only 20 miles an hour on dry paving is 21 feet; on snow 69 feet is required, and 169 feet on glare ice. At usual speeds, the distances are correspondingly longer.

By vote of the Chamber of Commerce members, a contribution of $15 to the Iowa Children's Home Society was approved.

Farm Program Committeemen For '50 Named

Favor Allotment of Corn On Crop Acre Percentage

Last week, meetings were held in all townships for the purpose of electing community committeemen and delegates to the county convention. The delegates met at the Wright County Production and Marketing Committee office last Saturday to elect three members for the county committee.

More interest was evidenced by the larger attendance at the township meetings than there has been for the last few years. The subject of corn acreage allotments for the 1950 program was discussed at the meetings.

The majority of the farmers favored corn acreage allotments on a percentage basis of crop acres, plus small adjustments for some farms where special consideration should be given.

A resolution to this effect was adopted by the delegates to the county convention. This in turn will be forwarded to the state office for consideration.

All present members of the county committee were reelected. The committee, headed by Oscar J. Hanson of Clarion as chairman and Hiram B. Vanderlip of Dows as vice chairman, includes C. C. Woodin, Belmond; Martin O. Thompson, Eagle Grove; Herbert L. Hadley, Rowan; and Arliene D. Henry, Clarion.

A majority of the incumbent township committeemen were also reelected. In the following list of township committee members, names of new committeemen are marked with an (x):

Dolliver Writes Truman to Block China Recognition

James I. Dolliver of Fort Dodge, U. S. Representative from the Iowa Sixth District, informs the Independent that he has addressed to President Truman a letter conveying "my belief and the belief of my constituency that recognition of the communistic government in China would be detrimental to the best interests of free peoples everywhere."

He informed the President that he had received scores of letters from the Sixth District expressing alarm at the pressures being exerted for recognition of Communistic China.

"Emphatically I am opposed to recognition by our Government of the Communists in China," Mr. Doliver's letter stated. "Recent kidnapping of American officials discloses a regime completely antagonistic to the United States of America.

"We must not give sanction to a government whose integrity is questionable, and whose leaders have demonstrated that the spirit of comunistic teachings is that of deceit, and disregard of human decencies."

Albin Larson Completes 32nd Degree in Masonry

Albin Larson, local General Mills employee, last week completed his work for the 32nd degree in Masonry in the course of a four-day class at the Scottish Rite Consistory at Des Moines. He was one of 73 men taking the work in the George L. Garton Class, named in honor of a late prominent Iowa Mason.

A banquet Saturday evening, which Mrs. Larson also attended, concluded the program. On Monday Mr. Larson returned to Des Moines and was initiated as a member of the Za-Ga-Zig Temple of the Shriners.

Don Faris Should Leave Hospital Within Another Week or Ten Days

Mrs. Faris Permitted to Return Home On Sunday

Mrs. Don A. Faris was sufficiently recovered from injuries sustained in the collision she and her husband were involved in a week ago yesterday to return from the hospital to her home last Sunday.

An announcement from the hospital today stated that Superintendent Faris is recovering nicely and should be in condition to go home inside of a week or 10 days.

The 10 rib fractures Mr. Faris received are mending most satisfactorily, but he will be confined to his home for some period of time recovering from the pelvis fracture he also suffered.

George Lancaster of Perry, driver of the gravel truck which struck the Faris car south and east of Meservey, also sustained a fractured pelvis and severe head bruises.

The accident was the second in three days involving a gravel truck working for the same construction company by which Lancaster was employed. In the earlier incident, the truck's driver had ignored a stop sign and rammed a semi-trailer on highway No. 65 near Sheffield.

Six other truck owners operating for the construction company were fined last week in the court of Justice George D. Patterson at Hampton on counts of overloading their trucks.

This is how the 1949 Ford driven by Supt. Don A. Faris looked after it was hit broadside by George Lancaster's fully-loaded gravel truck a week ago yesterday.

St. Nick Will Bring Treats For The Kids

Stores Loaded With Wide Variety of Gift Choices

Old St. Nick himself will make an appearance in Belmond on Saturday, Dec. 17, according to word from Chamber of Commerce President George Infelt. He will appear on Main street at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, loaded down with treats for all the kiddies.

Youngsters through the Belmond trade area are urged to go to work on Mom and Dad right now to make sure the family is in town for the big event. Santa's schedule is very full from now through Christmas and he will be making only one appearance in Belmond.

All children are also reminded of the free movie matinees that have been arranged for them by the Chamber of Commerce and the New Belmond theatre. There has been one date change in regard to the free shows. The final program will be on Thursday, Dec. 22, instead of a day earlier as previously planned.

The first free shows will be this Saturday, starting at 10:30 a. m., 1:00 and 2:30 p. m. Three shows also will be presented a week from Saturday, Dec. 17—except that there will be a half-hour delay in the starting time of the last matinee to provide sufficient time for Santa to distribute treats to would be show-goers The movies on Dec. 22 will be at 1:00 and 2:30 p. m. only.

Besides having the shopping district now fittingly decorated with evergreen garlands and colored lights, Belmond merchants have prepared for the Christmas season by having as fine a stock of Yuletide merchandise in their stores as they have ever boasted.

This week's issue of the Independent carries advertisements offering a host of gift suggestions for all members of the family. The businessmen urge shoppers to get at their buying promptly so they can enjoy the advantage of widest possible selections before stocks begin to be depleted.

As previously announced, the stores plan to stay open until 9:00 p. m. on Dec. 21, 22 and 23 for the benefit of late shoppers, but they urgently recommend earlier gift-buying while wide choices are afforded.

School Christmas plans are now completed, providing for vacation from Dec. 23 through Jan. 3, with classes disbanding at 3:00 p. m. on the 22nd. The annual high school Christmas program will be held at 8:00 p. m. on Sunday, Dec. 18, and the grade school program at 2:00 p. m. on the 20th. Both events will be held in the high school auditorium.

FUMES RESPONSIBLE FOR DEATH OF HENRY RUITER OF MESERVEY

Services were held Saturday afternoon at the Reformed church at Meservey for Henry Ruiter, 43, who was victim of a tragic accident at his farm three miles south and three miles east of Meservey on Wednesday evening of last week.

Mr. Ruiter had been out in a field with a stalk-cutter attached to his tractor, which was equipped with a canvas "heat houser." When he did not return to the house at dusk his son went to investigate and discovered his father dead, lying between the tractor and cutter.

At first it was thought that he had been killed by the cutter after a fall from the tractor seat, but Dr. John F. Martin of Latimer, Franklin county coroner, discovered upon examination that the farmer was a victim of carbon monoxide poisoning.

It was found that the muffler on the tractor was broken, allowing fumes to collect in the canvas sheath enclosing the seat Doctor Martin declared death had occurred around 5:00 p. m., a half hour before the body was discovered.

Besides his wife, Mr. Ruiter is survived by a son, Merlin; his father, Fred Ruiter; five brothers and five sisters.

Boone Funeral Home was in charge of the services for Mr. Ruiter.

Northwood's Late Rally Nipped By Broncs, 28 to 23

Belmond Broncos launched their North Iowa conference season last Friday night with a 28-23 victory, but not before they had Coach Jim Scott mumbling to himself and their local partisans uncomfortably teethering on needles and pins.

Not once did Northwood succeed in obtaining a lead on the Broncos. Belmond jumped in front early in the game and maintained a comfortable margin through most of the first half and the first six minutes of the third quarter.

But just about the time that Northwood had good reason to get excited and pull apart at the seams, it was Belmond that lost its poise. As a result, with two minutes of playing time remaining the score was knotted at 23-all. Not until then did the Broncs get a firmer grip on the situation and pull the fat out of the fire.

In the first quarter, Northwood pulled up within a point of the local quintet, 6-5, after Belmond had enjoyed an early 4-0 edge. Duane Trager broadened the gap with a beautiful jump shot from the corner of the floor and then Don Faris meshed a desparation shot that beat the timer's horn by a split second to give the Broncos a 10-5 advantage as the period ended.

Belmond increased its lead to 17-6 in the second stanza, but Dave Johnson netted a free throw and Wayne Huso picked off a nice set shot to make the half-time count 17-9.

Six minutes of the third quarter had passed before either team was able to find the hoop. Trager finally broke the ice with a tip-in followed by a flurry of three quick baskets by Hubert Hinds, Huso and Alvin Anderson which left Northwood trailing by only four points, 19-15, as the final period got under way.

The Vikings gradually closed the gap as the last quarter wore away, until a long set shot by Anderson tied up the ball game as the automatic time-out was called.

Whereas flighty play by the Broncs had been contributing generously to the Northwood cause up to this point in the final period, Belmond at this point settled down considerably. Trager caged one of two free throw tries to break the deadlock, and with less than a minute to go Roland Kinseth made good on a pair of penalty tosses to set the Broncs ahead 26-23.

A sleeper that Kinseth filtered in for in the final frantic seconds was simply frosting on the cake — and Belmond had its first NIC win racked up.

Trager topped the scorers with 13 points and played an excellent floor game, grabbing more than his share of rebounds and controlling tips in notable fashion. Jack Riggs and Sid Swenson looked good on defense, also. Huso and Anderson led the Vikings in scoring with eight and six points, respectively, and both turned in good floor games.

Frosh-Soph Five Loses First Contest 22 to 14

Northwood's freshman-sophomore five came back with a rush after a close first half to hand the Junior Broncos their first loss of the season Friday night, 22 to 14.

Belmond held an 8-7 lead at the rest period, but from there on the visitors' pressing defensive and aggressiveness on offense kept the Bronco underclassmen in a state of more-or-less continual perplexity.

The Northwood boys were not long in retaking a scoring edge and they built it up steadily as the young Broncs offense broke down in face of the close man-to-man guarding of the Vikings.

Ronnie Russell and Dick Lau contributed nine and eight points to Northwood's total and stamped themselves as future varsity material of high calibre. Odean Severseike tallied six points for the losers and turned in a very commendable all-around performance. Helland and Riekens each posted three points for Belmond, and Busick two.

Complaints On Bad Driving Get State Attention

The state safety department is paying "close and strict attention" to letters from the general public reporting traffic violations or dangerous driving acts on the highways, Kenneth F. Neu, director of the department's safety responsibility and drivers license division said today.

Neu said virtually all the numerous "complaint" letters now in department files have received action by the drivers license division. That action ranges from a correspondence between the division and the reported driver to a re-examination of the drivers ability.

The department may call in a driver for re-examination if he is reported in a violation that might have caused a death or serious personal injury or if it is found that he has a previous record of violations or accidents, Neu said.

"Anyone who observes a serious violation or a wantonly dangerous driving act on the highways should send that information to the state safety department in Des Moines," Neu said.

Such letters should include the time, place and a description of the violation along with the license number of the car involved and the name of the driver if possible, he said.

He reminded motorists that the department keeps a record of the violations and accidents in which individual drivers are involved on the basis of local court and police reports.

Working from these records, the driver improvement section of the department makes contact with motorists involved in too many violations or accidents over a given period of time.

The driver improvement program was started early in 1948. Through the first nine months of this year there has been a 100 per cent reduction in the number of drivers with previous records involved in fatal accidents.

HOSPITAL . . .

be inadvisable to consider issue of bonds for hospital building in excess of $50,000 or $60,000, leaving the balance to be raised by public subscription.

Such a bond issue would require a public ballot, in turn would have to be requested by petition of a number of voters equal to 25 per cent of the total votes cast in the latest municipal election. With petition requirements satisfied, the council could either call a special election on the bond issue or submit it as a special question at a regular municipal election.

To be approved, the bond issue would have to be supported by a majority of the voters casting ballots—and that number, in turn, would have to be at least equal to the number of votes comprising a majority in the last previous election.

A municipal tax of one and a quarter mills is permitted by state law for hospital construction, according to Mr. Henderson, and 20-year amortizaton is required—with refunding at the end of that time allowable. Since the maximum millage would provide only about $2,200 annual revenue, any bond issue in excess of some $44,000 would, of course, have to be refunded.

State law also permits a one and a half mill municipal tax for hospital maintenance, so the city—as the hospital's sponsoring agency — could provide up to about $2,900 a year for its upkeep. Overseers of the hospital would be a board of trustees, chosen by popular election and serving six-year terms.

McNeal, Fred Dahm, George Hansen and Bert Hewlett reported briefly on a visit earlier this year to Granite Falls, Minn., where a community hospital has recently been completed. It is about the size that would be required here and serves a very similar area.

Plans used in construction of the Granite Falls hospital were shown and briefly explained by Ted Zook, local contractor.

At the conclusion of the meeting a temporary committee was elected to initiate plans for a permanent organization to raise funds for the project. Those named to the committee were: Mr. McNeal, Doctor Leinbach, Mr. Henderson, C. C. Christie, Albert Hanson, Joe Ziller, Rev. O. M. Severseike, Bert Kalkwarf and Eva Hansen. At a brief session of this committee at the end of the open meeting, Mr. McNeal was elected pro-tem chairman.

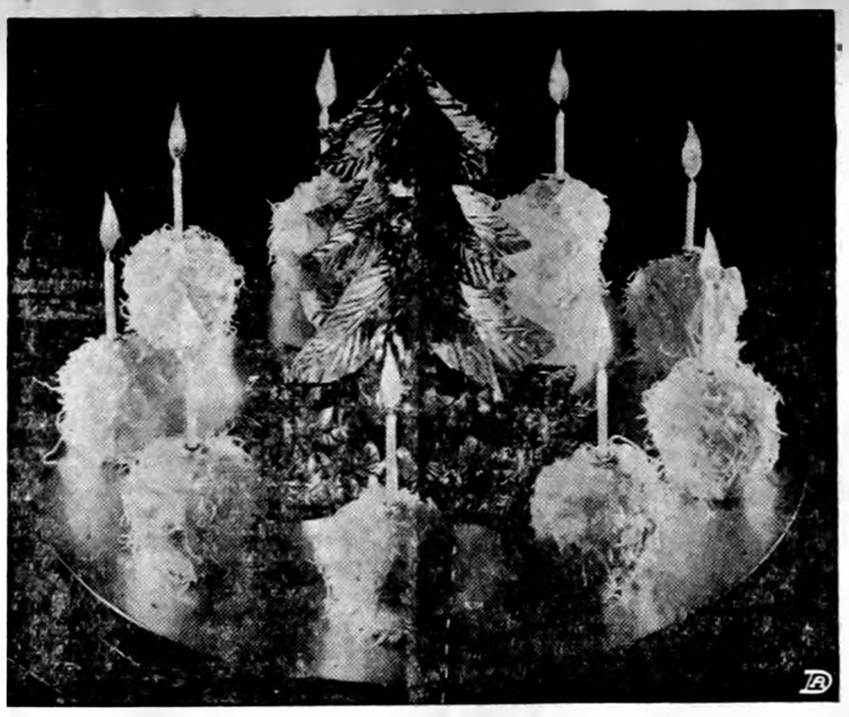
"Deck The Hall . . .



. . . with boughs of holly!" Light the candles—plump, jolly red ones; tall, dignified white ones; cute, tiny green ones like the ones that be-deck these little coconut-chocolate cupcakes. Surrounding a shimmering, silver Christmas tree, set on a mirror, they make as charming a center-piece as ever graced a party table!

Christmas Candle Cupcakes

1½ cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well; then add chocolate and blend. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Turn into greased cupcake pans, filling them about ⅔ full. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 20 to 25 minutes, or until done. Dip cupcakes in Seven Minute Frosting. Then roll in shredded coconut. Insert tiny candle in top of each cake and light candles just before serving.

Seven-Minute Frosting

2 egg whites, unbeaten
1½ cups sugar
Dash of salt
⅓ cup water
2 teaspoons light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine egg whites, sugar, salt, water, and corn syrup in top of double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater or electric beater about 1 minute, or until thoroughly mixed. Cook over rapidly boiling water, beating constantly with rotary egg beater (or at high speed of electric mixer) 7 minutes, or until frosting will stand up in stiff peaks. (Stir frosting up from bottom and sides of pan occasionally with rubber scraper, spatula, or spoon.) Remove from boiling water. Add vanilla and beat 1 minute, or until thick enough to spread.

Note: For a smoother frosting, wipe down sides of pan with a fork wrapped in a damp cloth before and during cooking and beating, to prevent crystallization.

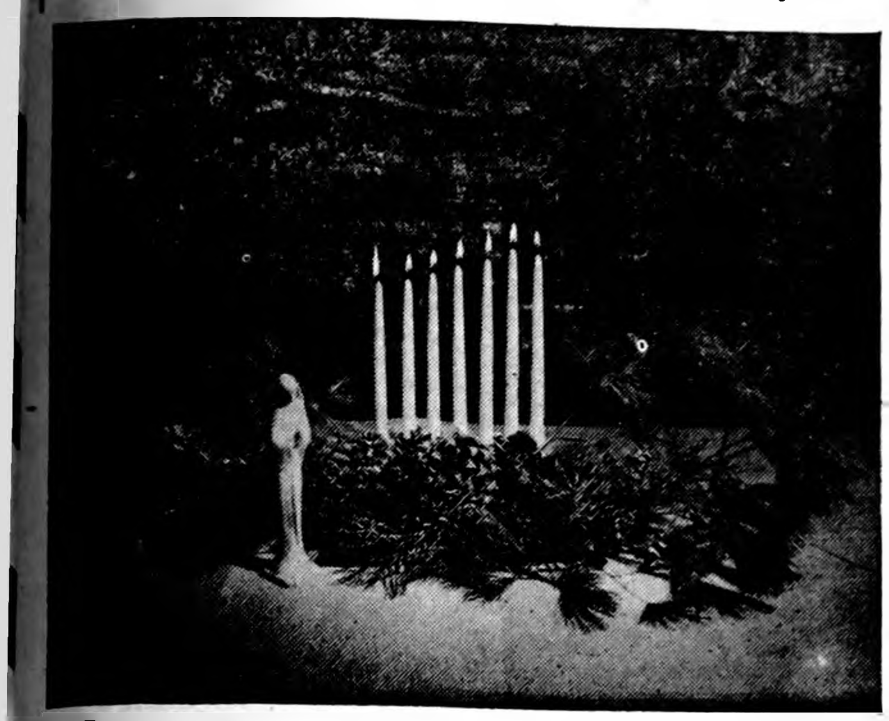
Make Your House Gay



Some evergreen, some plain ordinary candles and something you have on hand as center of interest, and you have a pretty table arrangement. Christmas decorations need not be expensive, or even hard work to make.

What would Christmas time be without the scent of pine in the air, a tree laden with ornaments, bells and wreaths and gilded stars?

For the whole family, much of the fun of getting ready for the holidays is in decking the house and making it gay. Mrs. June Brown, home furnishings authority at Iowa State college, says that's what Christmas decorating should be — good fun for the whole family. It doesn't pay to make hard work of it, she says.

She does believe, though in carrying your Christmas decorating "all through the house." It might even be fun to decide upon one theme this year, and use it from the front door to the guest room upstairs.

Suggestions might be red apples used with evergreen, or a combination of light green ribbon with evergreen and pine cones or large tree ornaments. Flower pots, painted red or gold turned upside down, make fine Christmas bells.

Some of your Christmas decorating is traditional, of course. But there's no need to stick to the same way of doing things year after year. Any number of lovely and different decorations can be improvised with a little imagination.

Your kitchen utensils, bits of bright-colored paper and ribbon, tree ornaments, dried catalpa or locust seed pods, a cluster of green bananas—all these can be used in decorating. Even a cluster of red peppers, evergreen and an old tray painted yellow-grree can make an attractive centerpiece.

A common semi-circular kitchen grater, gilded, might make a "lantern" with a short candle burning inside. Set this in front of a background of evergreen. Cracked or broken pieces of kitchenware can be gilded and used in combination with evergreen, candles, or perhaps a figurine.

Make your own gilt paint with powder and thinner, Mrs. Brown advises. Inexpensive gilt paint which comes ready-mixed may have too much oil in it to stay on . Other helps for Christmas decorating are florists' wires and clay.

If you saved some green osage orange seed balls, you'll find they make prettty candleholders with a bit of gilt paint to give them extra sparkle. Large-size apples serve the same purpose. If you have a clear wide vase or deep bowl, you might set a fat, low candle inside with nonflammable "angel hair" and ball ornaments.

The old game of folding and cutting paper can bring forth some pretty decorations, Mrs. Brown says. Get the youngsters to cut snowflakes from tissue paper, and paste them to a mirror or window.

To make a Christmas tree centerpiece, simply cut two tall triangles of green paper, fold them down the center and set together, fold to fold, perhaps on a circle cut from blue paper. Top off with a gilt star or Christmas tree ball, and place other balls around the base. Whole "strings" of Christmas trees or angels cut from folded tissue paper can be used in many ways.

Christmas tree lights can add glamor to many an arrangement. String them around a circular mirror and feature in the center Santa's sleigh and a small evergreen branch or two.

Development Commission Opens 4th Annual Photo Competition

Fourth Annual Greater Iowa Photographic Contest was opened to receive entries beginning Dec. 1 and will offer $300 in cash prizes for pictures of Iowa, it was announced by the Iowa Development Commission, sponsor. The competition will run for three months, closing Feb. 28, 1950.

Iowa's premier picture competition, the contest each year seeks to capture the changing Iowa scene with the aid of photographers, both amateur and professional, through Iowa and the nation. Each picture submitted must have been taken in Iowa. Contest rules divides the competition into four classes.

The print class is divided into amateur and professional divisions and cash prizes of $50, $25 and $15 are awarded in each division for first three-place pictures.

In the color transparency class no distinction is made between amateur and professional photographers. The open competition offers $50, $25 and $15 prizes for the three best pictures.

The special industry class offers a $30 first place only to the picture which is considered the best photograph of some phase of Iowa industry. Pictures submitted for this class will be first judged in regular competition, then culled in a special industrial group for the judging.

Besides the cash awards, special certificates of merit will be awarded to 12 honorable mention pictures in the print and color slide classes.

Copies of color slides of exhibition caliber will be used in a convention booth display which travels the nation. Copies of top-notch prints also will be made up into a traveling salon which is booked throughout Iowa. Last year the state salon was booked solidly through the year and was displayed in nearly 40 Iowa cities and towns.

Official entry blanks, which contain rules and other data on the contest, will be available shortly at camera clubs, chambers of commerce, photographic supply stores, newspapers, and the Iowa Development Commission.

CARD OF THANKS

Words cannot adequately express our deep appreciation for the many kind and sympathetic acts, for the beautiful floral offerings, memorials, cards, words of comfort and gifts of food at the time of our recent bereavement. We especially want to thank our friends and neighbors both in town and in the country and the ladies of the Baptist church. — Mrs. Fred Lemke and family. 8t1*

I wish to take this means of expressing, in a very small way, my sincere thanks and appreciation to all of my dear friends and relatives for the beautiful floral bouquets, potted plants, cards, letters, gifts and words of cheer during my recent serious illness. My special thanks to Drs. Pitcher, Leinbach and Hruska and the staff of nurses at the Steele Memorial hospital. Also a special thanks to little Mary Wenzel who so capably looked after my little children at home. God bless you all!

Mrs. Lester Buseman 8t1

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to my friends, and relatives for their visits, flowers, and cards while I was a patient at Steele Memorial hospital. A special thank you to the staff of doctors and nurses for their kindness.

Boost in Motor Vehicle Taxes Arouses Criticism By Motor Club Director

American motorists are going to be out of pocket in motor vehicle taxes to the tune of approximately three and a half billion dollars this year, Floyd L. Link, director of the civic affairs department of the Motor Club of Iowa, said today.

"In paying this enormous sum to city, state and federal governments for the privilege of owning and operating a car, motorists will be shelling out about half a billion dollars more than they did last year," Mr. Link pointed out. "The total take for 1949," he added, "is roughly comparable to the amounts expended to run the entire government of the United States in each of the years 1924-25-26 and '27."

The local motor club executive cited the rising taxation figure as a danger signal for personal transportation.

"Taxation and other cost factors have been rising so alarmingly," he concluded, "that unless the trend is halted, many car owners in the future will be priced off the highway, a situation that would have grave consequences in a national life geared to automotive transportation."

Meservey Girls Sextet Tops N. E. Cage Ratings

On the basis of play thus far this season, the vote of 344 high school girls' basketball coaches places Meservey at the top of the list of potential state championship contenders in northeast Iowa.

Results of the ballot were announced Tuesday by Red Chisholm, secretary of the Iowa Girls' High School Union.

In the Northeast district, Meservey drew down a total of 184 vote-points (10 points for a 1st place vote, five for 2nd, three for 3rd, one for 4th). Monona ranked second in the district with 181, followed by Wellsburg with 119.

Do Not Count on Cornstalk Cutter To Lick Borer Problem Next Year

Use of cornstalk cutters generally may aid corn borer control but you shouldn't expect the practice to do anything specific for the immediate corn borer problem on your farm.

Harold Gunderson, extension entomologist at Iowa State college, says that stalk cutters will beat up and scatter corn borers but they won't kill enough borers to make your corn crop borer-free next summer. Use of stalk cutters may dilute the corn borer population but won't eliminate the need for using insecticides next June if weather favors the borers.

In field demonstrations, stalk cutters have reduced borer populations all the way from 20 percent to 90 percent, and on the average 50 to 55 percent, depending on the type of machine.

Even if you could destroy 90 percent of the overwintering borers, Gunderson says it wouldn't eliminate need to spray or dust next June if conditions favor borers. In the fall of 1948 an average of 202 borers were present per 100 stalks in Iowa.

Natural mortality caused by weather and picking operations was about 50 percent, leaving 100 borers per 100 stalks to go through the winter. That number produced the borer crop that took the unprecedented slice out of the 1949 corn crop.

This year the average corn borer population for the state is 772 borers per 100 stalks. A 90 percent reduction, if possible through destroying cornstalk residues, would still leave 77 borers per 100 stalks next spring. This number under favorable conditions could lay enough eggs to hatch a crop of borers large enough to duplicate the 1949 damage, according to Gunderson.

He also points out that adult corn borer moths fly. This means that a farmer who destroys overwintering borers may still find his corn infested next June through eggs laid by borers that overwinter in his neighbors' fields.

Gunderson doesn't discourage the use of stalk cutters, double disking or clean plowing before May 15 to reduce overwintering corn borer numbers. However, he cautions farmers not to rely on that one practice to do the whole pob of corn borer control.

Destruction of overwintered borers by any practical means is only one phase of corn borer control. It depends for success on community cooperatioon, and will not remove the possible need for insecticidal control on individual farms in early-planted corn in June, or in late-planted corn in August, according to Gunderson.

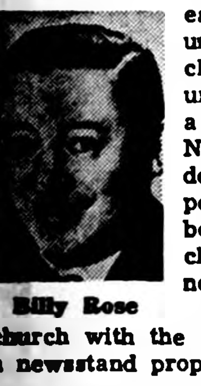
How Church Chimes Rang For the Benefit of Brooklyn

By BILLY ROSE

This week I'd like to spin a little story—a very, very little story. It's of no great importance, and I won't get mad if the editor decides to file it in the wastebasket, and in its place print some big story about Marshal Tito or Rita Hayworth's baby.

To begin with, this story concerns itself wth a church, and a lot of bright people will tell you a church is no longer of any importance in this test-tube and Bunsen-burner age. To make matters worse, the church is in Brooklyn, and—well, I guess you've heard plenty of jokes about how unimportant Brooklyn is. . . .

One day last summer while driving past a church on St. Felix street in Brooklyn, I heard a set of chimes that did nice things to my ears. They were unusually good chimes, and figured to have cost a lot of money. Naturally, I wondered how they happened to be in the belfry of a modest church in a modest neighborhood.



Billy Rose

"What's the church with the chimes?" I asked a newsstand proprietor.

"Hanson Place Central Church," he said. "It's Methodist."

"Have they had those chimes long?"

"No," said the newsie. "I think they put them in about a year ago."

The next day I did some telephoning, and I liked what I found out.

WHEN REV. John Emerson Zeiter, pastor of the church, heard about a new type of electrically controlled chimes called Carillonic bells, he told his congregation about them and said it would be a nice thing for the neighborhood if people going to work in the morning and coming home at night could hear those beautiful chimes. He told his flock the bells cost a lot of money, and suggested they contribute a little something from time to time. Maybe in a year or so, the church could afford the bells.

Next day a member of his parish phoned. "I've been discussing the bells with my business partner," said the parishioner, "and we'd each like to donate a third of the cost. But there's a hitch."

"What is it?" asked the Reverend.

"Well, my partner is Jewish," said the businessman, "and we were wondering if that would make any difference."

Reverend Zeiter said he didn't think it would make any difference at all.

"We think," continued tne businessman, "that it would be a good idea to find a Catholic to put up the other third. After all, people of all faiths are going to enjoy these bells."

THE NEXT DAY a Catholic in the neighborhood offered to put up the remaining third, and the Carillonic bells were ordered. At the dedication ceremony a couple of months later, a plaque was put up on the wall of this Methodist church, and inscribed on it were the names of the Catholic, the Protestant and the Jew. . . .

And that's all there is to this story—this very, very little story. Do I think this one set of electrically-controlled bells is going to eliminate religious bigotry in Brooklyn? Of course not. Do I think the people in Flatbush who hear the chimes are going to be kinder and more tolerant? Again, of course not.

Why, then, am I writing this piece? Well, I guess it's because I'm fool enough to think that even one drop of clean water falling on a dusty street is important. Who knows? It may clean up an inch of ground and give somebody else an idea.

One of these days—and I don't expect to be around to see it—a lot of drops of clean water may fall and a lot of dust may be washed away.

Reporting Farm Doings

by "Pat" Gallagher

L. B. Oberhauser is one farmer who thoroughly agrees with he opinion recently expressed by lenn Morris in this column that he dollars and cents return on heep, in relation to feed costs, higher than that on any other ype of livestock. And he doesn't elieve you need a large farm, ith a lot of permanent pasture, make sheep a paying proposition.

—RFD—

"Obie" says he's been "written up" several times in the past a sheep-raiser and politely uggested that he didn't think ur readers would be interested n seeing anything more in print bout his flock or his opinions n the subject of sheep. However, in view of the increased interest farmers in this vicinity are howing in "woolies", we felt e'd risk a few more words on he subject.

We use as excuse the fact that several weeks ago an Oberhauser ram was accorded a distinct honor — and the fact went unmentioned in this paper. "Obie" had a three-year-old ram entered in the regional Columbia show at Watertown, S. D. Competing against entries of 26 other consignees, the local entry walked off with the laurels as champion ram in the show.

—RFD—

"Obie" says he didn't realize he ram was as good as he turned ut to be. Now the sheepman ishes he's entered his prizewinner in the national Columbia show. Bidding wasn't too sharp t the regional, and the price the hampion brought wasn't anything to write home about. His x-owner figures the handsome rute would have brought about three times as much at the national auction. However, he'd sed the animal for two years as stud ram and he figures that he additions to his flock in that ime should reflect the high quality of their parentage. The farm's entire breeding stock, incidentally, is composed of registered sheep.

—RFD—

Mr. Oberhauser purchased the op yearling ewe at the Watertown show and holds high hopes for her progeny. "Obie" is completely sold on the excellence of he Columbia breed. The Columbia Sheep Breeders association ecommends the Columbias on he following counts:

1. Greater size.
2. Earlier maturity.
3. Greater fleece weight, lighter shrinking fleece and eater net value.
4. Freedom from wool blindness.
5. More pounds of lambs weaned.

Your writer has NOT been romised a commission on all Columbias sold in this vicinity (do we hear any offers?), so it s only because of Mr. Oberhauser's personal enthusiasm that e pass this information on to you. Nor did he suggest it. Just thought you might be interested.

—RFD—

Columbias were the first breed f sheep developed in America, and were so named for this reason. The breed was developed by the United States Department of Agriculture. After considerable experimentation with crossing long wool breeds with high quality Rambouillet ewes, a strain was derived from a first-cross Lincoln-Rambouillet line that seemed to have the qualities that were being sought.

The Bureau of Animal Husbandry maintained this line and by intensive breeding and selection produced a true breeding strain with the characteristics of the superior cross-bred line.

—RFD—

A pamphlet published by the breeders association says, "Columbias were originally developed for range conditions, but they have proved admirably adapted to the more lush grasses and small flock management of the middle west.

"Their heavy wool clip, hardy fast-growing lambs, 'open faces' and ease of handling, are characteristics highly valued by all practical sheepmen."

That closes our essay on Columbias. Now, if you're interested in having a go at sheep-raising, go buy whatever you durn please.

—RFD—

The Oberhausers have 100 acres of permanent pasture and aim to keep about 30 per cent of the land earmarked for cultivation — amounting to some 90 or 100 acres — in additional pasturage in the course of crop rotation. The crop-land acres are put in brome and alfalfa, which provide enough hay to carry the sheep throughout the winter.

—RFD—

Discussion of crop rotation, etc., led us to brief consideration of what's coming in regard to corn-acreage allotments. On this score, "Obie" has some very well-defined opinions. He firmly believes that the allotments should be on the basis of total acreage and not on the basis of a three-year average; nor that any measuring stick similar to the latter should be employed, which would reflect heavy plantings indulged in by many farmers to take advantage of top prices.

"The farmer who has been conserving his soil by limiting his corn acreage to near-normal plantings during the past few years certainly shouldn't be penalized for sticking to sound practice," Mr. Oberhauser says, "yet this would be the result if recent corn acreages are used as the base for determining 1950 allotments."

If anyone should be penalized, in his viewpoint, it should be the farmer who has temporarily disregarded good farm management to capitalize on the high market prices. He believes that the least number of complaints would result if simply the number of acres regularly in cultivation on each farm is used to set up the allotment ratio.

—RFD—

Our conversation at length turned to the recently completed equalization survey the State Tax Commission conducted in connection with the assessed valuations of agricultural land. When the job was completed, the assessor's boost of Wright county valuations from $53.67 in 1948 to $79.84 in 1949 stood approved by the Commission—leaving Wright with the fifth highest valuation among the counties of the state.

"This sounds reasonable to me," confessed "Obie", "although there may be a lot of complaining about it. After all, the average Wright county farm is highly approved — and I've repeatedly heard it said that this county has a higher per cent of Grade A land than any other in the state.

"From the standpoint of fairness, it wouldn't surprise me at all if Wright county actually does rank among the five top counties of Iowa in respect to the value of farm land."

—RFD—

Both Mr. and Mrs. Oberhauser, by the way, are enthusiastic believers in the proposal to reorganize the schools in the Belmond area. They feel, with many others, that the old one-room country school has seen its day and that a more centralized school system would not only be more efficient than the existing set-up but would provide the children with better educational training and facilities.

One thing you discover in short order when visiting the Oberhausers. They have clear-cut, well-considered opinions in regard to most matters which pertain to their family, their fellow farmers, and the general common good. And (here's where our hat's off to them), where they've got convictions, they show no hesitation about expressing them.

Pheasant Season Closes; Next Year's Stock Good

The 1949 pheasant season closed Dec. 5 after a 25-day season in 68 counties and seven days in 11 additional counties. Commission spokesmen termed the season good with large numbers of successful hunters the first few days. As the season closed the birds were extremely wild and bag limits of two cock birds few and far between.

E. B. Speaker, superintendent of the biology section for the commission, believes, "We have plenty of roosters going into the winter to assure a safe cock-hen artio for next year. We have, however, less winter cover available for the birds than for many years. Unusually severe late winter and early spring storms could cause trouble."

Speaker explains the lack of winter cover as due primarily to late summer drought and corn borers. 'Corn borer control has necessitated especially clean farming in cornfields, one of the major sources of winter cover.

"Late summer drought prevented a normal growth of weeds in the fields, and the dry fall weather resulted in the burning of many marsh and weedy areas that are normally winter homes of the ringnecks."

The biology chief believes that a normal winter will not seriously affect pheasant populations, even in spite of abnormal cover conditions.

Janice Nielsen Makes Report On Interesting Chicago Trip

The following report was written by Janice Nielsen, who received an expense-paid trip to Chicago during the recent International Livestock Exposition as Wright county's outstanding 4-H girl.

This year the International Livestock Show was enjoyed by a large group of outstanding 4-H girls, boys, and FFA boys from northwest Iowa. This trip was sponsored by station KGLO, which made the arrangements to obtain a special train to Chicago. Beside the young people, several farm families, county home economists and Hank Hook and Chet Randolph from station KGLO, traveled in the three railroad cars reserved for them.

We all met on Friday evening at the Mason City station about 11 o'clock. After a rather late start we arrived in Chicago at 11 o'clock the next morning.

Six of us girls, four from Cerro Gordo county, one from Hancock and myself, were assigned to Miss Lucille Bachanan. She is home economist in Cerro Gordo county, and acted as our chaperon, all during our stay in Chicago. Busses furnished by the International Harvester company in Chicago took the entire group to our hotel.

All we 4-H girls stayed in the Stevens hotel. This is the largest hotel in the world, having 25 stories and over 3,000 rooms. All the rooms were furnished wonderfully, with modern, blond furniture.

After leaving our bags at the hotel we started on one of the many tours. We went to Marshall Fields department store to shop. In this store there was a Christmas tree which was three stories high. It was beautifully decorated and I'm sure I shall always remember the huge sight of it in my mind.

We spent the evening at the International Stock show. Here we saw some large and beautiful cattle. Included in the evening's program was a horse show. One of the outstanding evening's features was a Shepherd dog working sheep and making them do anything he wished.

On Sunday morning we attended church at the Chicago Temple, which is Chicago's oldest Methodist church. The tower is the highest church spire in the world. On an average Sunday they have visitors from at least 30 states. The minister happened to be from Iowa and asked if there were any Iowans there. We all quickly raised our hands.

After lunch we toured the aquarium and Field's museum. We saw hundreds of sea-dwelling animals. Field's museum is one of the largest in the country and it certainly contained many interesting specimens. For instance there were exhibits of almost every animal in existence. We also saw a very large display of precious gems from all over the world. We later attended the Chicago theater where we saw a stage performance by Xavier Cugat and his orchestra.

Because we were to be free until 11:00 the next morning, we planned to sleep quite late. At 7:30, however, we were awakened by our telephone. It was Miss Buchanan, who had obtained tickets to the NBC show, "Welcome Traveler," with Tommy Bartlett. Although we were rather tired we quickly dressed, eager to attend a real broadcast. Mr. Bartlett was a large, good natured person and did a fine job of handling the show. Each of the 800 people present, filled out a questionaire about themselves, and from these the contestants were picked.

Following the broadcast we were taken by the IHC busses to the IHC plant. We were given our noon meal in their cafeteria. This meal was even finer than would be expected at any banquet. After lunch we were taken on a tour of the plant, which daily makes 55 caterpillar tractors. A competent guide took us through the shops. We saw the assembly line and followed it to the place where the tractor was driven off. We also watched them paint a tractor in ten minutes.

In one shop there were men operating large presses capable of hammering out 30 tons of red hot metal in a matter of minutes. These men are the highest paid in the plant. It is very hard on a man to work here for too great a time. If you should happen to be in Chicago, go out to the IHC plant and you will receive a cordial welcome.

We left the plant and went on a tour of Chicago by bus. It would be impossible to enumerate the many things we saw. We stopped at the Building of Science Research and saw exhibits of such things as miniature coal mines and automobiles. In one telephone demonstration, we picked up the telephone, said a few words, and then picked up a small receiver. Our voice was played through this receiver and we had an chance to hear our own voice. There were also some airplanes used in World War I.

Many lectures and demonstrations were going on but we couldn't take the time to hear them. Our next stop was the water front where we were able to see the many skyscrapers. On top of the Palmolive building there was a light which rotates its beam through the sky. It is claimed that from a distance of 20 miles away a newspaper can be read from this beam of light.

We ate our last meal at the Bit O'Sweden restaurant. Not being of Swedish background, I did not relish some of the dishes, but it was an experience I shall always remember. It was a smorgasbord dinner, and I had never eaten in this manner before.

Upon returning to pick up our bags at the hotel, we left for the station. We left Chicago at 10:20 and arrived in Mason City on Tuesday morning. It was really a grand trip and I shall always think of it as one of the most exciting adventures of my life. I want to thank all who made it possible for me to attend.

By FRANK MOORHEAD
Publicity Director
Democratic State Committee

Will five kernels of corn decide the 1950 election in Iowa, the leading corn-growing state of the nation? "Preposterous," say some. "Unlikely," say others. "Could be," say worried Republicans.

"How about the antics of State Attorney General Larson?" asks Roy Moser, editor of the Reinbeck Courier and for many years a member of the Grundy county Republican central committee and the committee's treasurer. He answers:

"We believe he has antagonized every organization in Iowa, including Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, lodges of every description, golf clubs, private clubs, commercial clubs, civic organizations, ladies' lodges and auxiliaries and to some extent churches and bazaars and harvest feeds."

The Republican editor concludes: "Larson is doing much toward electing a Democrat attorney general of Iowa."

"Attorney General Larson seems to be getting into hot water clear up to his ears," says Dan Ryan, editor of the Parkersburg Eclipse, District Governor of Rotary International. "Is it because of an election coming next year?"

"Attorney General Larson's recent attitude toward gambling is the most ridiculous piece of law enforcement ever perpetrated in Iowa history," writes George Hathaway of Independence (a Republican member of the 47th and 48th Iowa General Assemblies) in the Des Moines Register and the Cedar Rapids Gazette Open Forums.

"If his ambition was restricted to major offenses such as slot machines, etc., it would be O. K. but to carry it so far as to include private and social gatherings in private homes is entirely out of line with modern American way of life. If he is not stopped soon there will not be a single Republican elected in 1950 . . . To cope with this disgraceful situation I suggest that the General be impeached by a special session of the legislature.

"At least 50 per cent of the people of Iowa are shocked by the nonsensical action taken by the Attorney General. By his action he has jeopardized social gatherings in private homes, church raffles, bingo, trap-shooting and every kind of amusement where prizes are given."

What is the attitude of Attorney General Larson on the synthetic bingo games now said o be quite popular in Iowa? Such, for example, as Ask-me. This is said to be played the same as bingo, but instead of shouting "Bingo," the winner shouts "Ask-me."

At the same time, the Attorney General has ruled that bank night prizes, at movie houses, are legal and are not to be stopped, even when practically all the participants buy tickets to attend.

The Master of Ceremonies then asks a preposterously ridiculous question, such as "Who is buried in Grant's Tomb." If the winner is able to answer the question (and he never fails) he wins the jackpot, the same as the bingo winner without the burlesque.

Is "Ask-me" gambling, in the Larson light? Are there other ways of beating the kernels of corn around the card so as to keep the minions of the law away from the door?

By GERALD BOGAN
Publicity Director
Republican State Committee

The cost of government is reaching a point that it costs nearly as much as the nation's total food bill.

Official government figures show that for every dollar spent on food in this nation in 1948 the cost of government was 98 cents. Government cost Americans 51.8 billion dollars last year. Americans spent 52.9 billion dollars for food.

Most of the money spent on government is for operation of the federal government in Washington, and there is every indication that Washington planners hope for bigger and bigger government.

In 1929, for example, federal expenditures were 2.6 billion dollars, equivalent to only one-fourth of total government costs. By 1948 the amount had mushroomed to 35.4 billions, or more than two-thirds of total government costs, and this year it is apparent the federal government will cost in excess of 45 billion dollars.

Translated into more simple terms it means that the average American family of four pays $1,488 in taxes, compared with $412 spent in 1938. Most of that money goes to Washington. Of the total family tax bill $1,096 goes to the federal government, $180 for local taxes and $212 for state taxes.

In other words, $28.61 of the average weekly budget of a family of four goes to support government, AND $21.07 OF THAT IS FOR THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT. Federal taxes amount to 74 per cent of the total government tax dollar, most of it in hidden axes which many persons don't know they are paying.

Through its loose fiscal policies the Truman administration has plunged into a program of borrowing money to spend. The present deficit is more than five billion dolars.

There has been no effort on the part of the administration to balance the budget or to pay on the national debt which has reached an appalling high of 256-billion dollars.

Republican national chairman Guy Gabrielson said recently: "...the really disturbing factor ...is not the irresponsible extravagance of the present administration, it is the fact that at the same time it is wasting our national wealth it is also destroying the machinery which produces wealth. It is the present-day example of the fabled character who sought to become wealthy by killing the goose that laid the golden egg."

Contrast the irresponsible money policies of the 81st Congress with the Republican 80th Congress, which was able to reduce taxes by $5,000,000,000 for seven million small wage-earners in America; reduced the national debt by seven billion dollars; balanced the budget, and left in the U. S. Treasury $8,500,000,000 by wise spending policies.

Republican government means good government for ALL the people.

Another example of Republican efficiency in government is shown in a recent report on costs of highway construction in Iowa and surrounding states. Iowans are getting more for their highway dollars than any of the six states which adjoin the Hawkeye State.

Comparison of costs on highway work, as listed in the official contracts let by the seven states, shows that Iowa leads all others in low cost purchase of many highway materials.

If the average of all costs for all states would give a dollar's worth of road work for a dollar, Iowa is getting a dollar's worth for 87 cents. What's it costing in other states on the same comparative basis: Minnesota, 91 cents; Missouri, $1.09; Illinois, $1.47; South Dakota, 92 cents; Wisconsin, $1.05.

EDITORIAL

It won't be much longer until school will be out and that spells freedom for another group of boys and girls. Although I speak loosely on behalf of the word freedom, and although they talk of how much fun it'll be when they graduate, I know that deep down they hate to go. On behalf of the seniors of 1950 I am going to tell you a little about each one.

First of all comes Duane Blau, the only original member of the class. Duane has been active in school activities all through the years. He sings in the glee club. He plays baseball and basketball, and is a regular in both sports. At the moment he is undecided on what he will do when he graduates and all I could get out of him was, and I quote, "I want to be a big shot and make piles of money." I almost forgot, he's president of the senior class.

Next is Gordon Paullus, vice president of the class and also vice president of Franklin county 4-H work. Gordon has just returned from a trip he won, to Chicago to the international livestock show. He obtained this for oustanding 4-H work.

Gordon also sings in the glee club, and plays on both the baseball and basketball team, also a regular in both events.

He plans to stay home and help when he finishes.

The last but not least of the boys is Marvin Jaacks. He is the editor of the senior annual and to my opinion is the most studious of the seniors. He at present, is undecided on what he will do, but probably will help at home.

Then come our senior girls. First comes Denise Ainslie. Denise is a member of the girls basketball team and also plays first clarinet in the school band. Denise is also active in 4-H work and is the only senior that so far has perfect attendance for her high school career.

She plans to get an office job when she is through school.

Last and little but not least comes Thelma Abel. Thelma sings in the glee club and plays on the basketball team. She is the secretary and treasurer of the class. Thelma won't graduate here because she is moving back to Kansas with her parents.

Larry Myers.

What's Doin' In Music

The next group to be interviewed is the second sopranos from the Girls Glee Club.

Phyllis Alphs is the only second from the freshman class. Last year she practiced with the glee club, so it isn't entirely new to her.

There is no second from the sophomore class, but from the junior class come three. Helen Larson is one of them. She has sung in the glee club for two years. Marcele Larson has sung also in our glee club for two years. Both Helen and Marcele sang in glee club at Latimer in the first semester of the school year 1947-1948. The last junior girl that is a second is Carol Jean Johnson. She has sung in the glee club for two years.

From the senior class comes our last second soprano, Denise Ainslie. She has been in the glee club for three years. This is her last year in high school and we hate to think of losing her as much as she hates to leave us.

This year the whole school is going to give a Christmas program. The tentative date is Dec. 14. All of the high school's musical groups will be required to sing. I am sure it will be a success if everyone comes. Next week I will review a section from the mixed chorus, so be watching for it.

Here's Why Belmond MUST Have A New Hospital

Lights shine in a single house on a darkened street. Peaceful sleep is a guest in all the surrounding homes; but stark tragedy lurks in the shadows of the one dimly lit bedroom. A tired and troubled doctor looks in the desparate eyes of a fear stricken mother and father—then his glance turns to a tiny, restless figure feverishly tossing under rumpled covers.

"Jean should be taken to a hospital—at once! But it's so far. It would involve practically as much risk as trying to care for her here," the physician quietly tells the anxious parents. Uncertainly he walks to the bedside and tenderly places a hand on the hot forehead of his little patient. What should he do?

Fortunately, your doctors are never going to be faced with that dilemma; your child will never be involved in such a life-and-death gamble; you will never be placed in such a helpless position.

BECAUSE BELMOND IS GOING TO HAVE A NEW, MODERN HOSPITAL—AND YOU ARE GOING TO HELP MAKE IT POSSIBLE.

Why must Belmond have a new hospital? Doesn't the one we have now suffice? Why all this talk that suggests that the day may not be far distant when Belmond will NOT have a hospital?

We'll answer the last question first. As we all know, the present hospital is a private enterprise and represents our physicians' best possible effort to personally provide the community with adequate hospitalization. For those doctors (though they make little point of it) it is a money-losing proposition. Knowing those men, you can rest assured that this fact does not enter into the problem.

But they have been informed by inspectors from the state board of health that the state cannot approve such a structure as that in which the hospital is presently housed—an old ex-residence of frame construction that fire could raze in a few, tragic minutes. The inspectors have generously agreed to allow enough time for the hospital to be replaced before flatly condemning it; but replaced it must be. And as soon as practically possible . . . So—the suggestion that Belmond could be left WITHOUT a hospital is not idle scare-talk.

Then let us consider the adequacy of our present hospital facilities. How do they measure up? Steele Memorial Hospital has a normal bed capacity of 13; by utilizing room space to the utmost, 20 patients can be crowded in. Even when Clarion's proposed hospital is a reality, it will be up to Belmond to provide hospital facilities for an estimated 15,000 people. To do so it should have a hospital with at least double the present normal capacity—at least two times the present emergency capacity.

(One doctor told us last week of having a young patient with a fever of 104. "He should by all means have been in a hospital. Here, there was no room," the physician stated simply.)

At present there is frequently no room for sick and injured who "should" be hospitalized. The best the doctors can do is assure admittance to those who "must" be hospitalized. That should answer the question as to Steele hospital's adequacy.

So now we've worked our way up to the question, "Why must Belmond have a new hospital?" We hope we've already answered it to your satisfaction.

On the front page is a story describing the movement developing to see that Belmond gets its desperately needed new hospital. It must, and will be, a "community" project in the truest, richest meaning of the word. It will be a project not just of Belmond proper, but of the whole, wide "community" which the hospital will serve.

Here is a need that is fundamental—as fundamental as life and death. The nucleus of public-spirited citizens taking the initiative toward launching this vitally important project represents but a small portion of the man-power that is going to be required to make the new hospital an actuality.

Plan now to give toward it . . . Plan now to work for it . . . Plan now to lend the movement your support in every way you can.

There's Money in the Till— But What To Do With It?

For a first class fouled-up mess, the Iowa legislature will have to go some to surpass the muddle it created with the agricultural land tax credit law, under which the owners of farm land falling within school district areas will receive a few bucks one of these fine days.

All in all, it presents an excellent example of how not to draft legislation. The intent and purpose of the law was clear enough — to limit to 15 mills the amount of tax the landowners described above should have to pay toward general school funds.

The supreme court got in on the act by first declaring the whole law unconstitutional, then reversing itself and giving the all clear signal. The legislature, with no apparent study of the amount of money the refund would involve, provided $500,000 for that purpose in 1946. That takes care of a neat 17 per cent of the presumably legal claims. In 1947 it boosted the ante to $2,000,000, which will pay off the claims on a 38 per cent basis. Last year it was "getting warm." The $5,000,000 appropriated via amendment of the act should settle the 1948 claims on something like a 95 per cent basis.

But how cloudy the phraseology of the act must be is indicated by the efforts of a couple of Des Moines golf courses to obtain refunds on the strength of claims that they are "horticultural" projects. If these claims prove to fall within the the word of the law, it's a dead cinch the "word" of the law does an almighty poor job of expressing the intended "spirit."

One omission from the act has been clarified by a ruling of the attorney general to the effect that agricultural land tax credit cannot be granted on land which has been declared for homestead credit. But there's still plenty enough confusion to go around.

For our part, we're very happy that Auditor Roger Charlson has the job of determining who gets what in Wright county, and not us.

Government Grants In Aid

Some interesting information has just been released on the federal grants in aid to the state of Iowa. We all think Federal grants are fine things and every state and community is trying to get all the federal aid it can.

Iowans paid the federal government $446,799,761 in taxes during 1948 and received back in the form of federal grants $98,776,448. How much better off we would all be if we could reduce our taxes by the amount of the federal grants plus the cost of the federal administration on the grants and make our own decisions as to what we spend our money for. — Eagle Grove Eagle.

Larson Doing Good Job

Robert L. Larson, the attorney general, is sawing away, and he is doing a good cleanup job. Gambling is gambling, no matter in what form, and just about everybody will admit that the attorney general or any other officer cannot honestly allow one kind of gambling to proceed and to shut up the other kind. Bob Larson is right when he says that when 80 per cent of the people do not favor a law let them get busy and have the legislature do some repealing of any laws they do not want.

But you will find that there are more cases where 80 per cent of the people do not favor the repeal of the present gambling laws in Iowa.

If the commercial hijackers of the gambling world could be eliminated, some of these parlor and private club games would do little harm. —The Hampton Chronicle.

OPEN FORUM

The following article was contributed by a prominent Belmond citizen and farm land owner, with the suggested heading, "The power to tax is the power to destroy."

A recent issue of the "Des Moines Register" published statistics released by the Iowa Tax Commission from which the following pertinent facts concerning taxable values of Wright county agricultural land have been taken.

During years immediately prior to the present, taxable value of Wright county land was in 35th place among the 99 counties of the state.

Raise in value resulting from the 1949 assessment caused the largest increase of any county in the state. Wright county land is now assessed 5th highest.

The increase in Wright county is $26.17 per acre against the state average of $8.07.

The percentage of increase for Wright county is 48.7, for the state as a whole only 16.5 percent. The Wright county increase is three times the average for all of Iowa. Many Iowa counties had value per acre increases of only 10 to 15 percent.

Among counties assessed higher in 1948 but now having lower valuations due to the 1949 assessment are such productive areas as Marshall, Pocahontas, Story, Webster, Cedar and Humboldt.

Franklin county land is assessed at $67.73 average or $12.11 per acre less than Wright county. The average acre in Hancock county is assessed at $63.19 or $16.65 less than in Wright county.

Hamilton county has the highest average valuation in Iowa but is only assessed $4.34 higher than Wright county. It must be that good grade land in Wright county is assessed close to top valuation since the large area of marginal land stretching across Wright county adjacent to the Iowa river has no counterpart in Hamilton county.

High valuation may effect Wright county adversely in connection with the land tax credit refund law. The road to disasterously high taxes is open when or if the various tax levying bodies decide a high millage should be levied.

New Birth Certificates Take Place of Old Photostat Copies

Proper Birth Record Of Cutting Has Killed Only

Recently the Division of Vital Statistics of the Iowa State Department of Healh began issuing certified copies of birth certificates on an attractive pink and blue typewritten form. This certificate is used primarily for babies because many mothers objected to the photostatic copies, which are black with white printing. Many of them wished to use the certificate in their baby books or frame the certificate and perferred something more colorful.

"No baby should be without a record of birth," said L. E. Chancellor, director of the division. "In later years it is one of the most important documents a person can have, and it is giving a child a good break to start him with his birth certificate properly filed."

Parents should assist the doctor in providing the necessary data required on the certificate and follow through to make sure the certificate is filed. If they do not receive a birth registration notice within three months after the baby is born, the parents should contact the Division of Vital Statistics, Iowa State Department of Health, in Des Moines.

The notification that is sent to the parents is a small photostatic copy of the original certificate which gives all the information. This notice is only sent to verify the accuracy of the information on the birth record, and if errors appear, it gives the parents a chance to correct the certificate.

This birth registration notice is not acceptable as a legal document, however. A certified copy of the birth certificate must be obtained for this purpose. This certified copy may be obtained from the Division of Vital Statistics or from the county clerk in the county where the birth occurred.A fee of 50 cents is charged for supplying a certified copy of the birth certificate.

In applying for a birth certificate be sure to give the name of the child, the date and place of birth, the name of the parents and the name and address of the attending physician. Adults who wish to obtain a copy of their birth certificate should give this same information.

In the event the person's birth record was never filed, a delayed registration procedure is followed in which the birth record can be established by furnishing at least two documents that are over five years old which show the birth date, age, or place of birth. The proper form to establish this record, with instructions, is sent in every case where the original record is not found to be on file. This form is sent without additional request.

It is possible to obtain a new birth certificate for an adopted child using the new name of the child without any reference to the adoption. When the adoption is granted the health department is notified by the court and a new birth record is made showing the name of the new parents, providing the child was born in Iowa.

The original birth record, together with the adoption information, is then placed in a sealed file. In this way the only record available is the new certificate. The original birth information can be obtained only by a court order.

Birth certificates are important because they are now required by many schools for children entering school, for employment purposes, military service, collecting Social Security benefits, passports, and old age pensions.

VOL. 31 NO. 9 OFFICIAL CITY PAPER Belmond, Wright County, Iowa Thursday, December 15, 1949 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER The Family Newspaper

MAIN STREET

By George - Dick - Pat

Some of our good friends feel they have definitely been dealt a low blow when, after a notice that it's going to happen, their name is taken off the Independent subscription list and they miss the paper when time for the next issue arrives.

Let it here be stated that we don't enjoy the amputation any more than they do. For a newspaper publisher, that's about the most painful operation in the book.

A newspaper depends upon good circulation for good health just as completely as the publisher himself. Advertisers aren't interested in a paper with sluggish circulation. They want to advertise in a paper that is sufficiently desired by its readers that they are willing to pay for it.

The U. S. Post Office, in setting postage rates for newspapers, sets a definite limit on the number of "sample copies" a publication can mail out in any one year. And while you may personally feel that you still are a subscriber to the paper even though your subscripton may have been permitted to run out a few weeks ago, Uncle Sam says, "That wasn't no lady . . . (excuse us, that's another story) "That's no subscription. Those are sample copies!"

We'll grant that it may seem logical that an exception should be made in "my case"; but if we followed that logic just where would we draw the line? You tell us. We surely don't know.

So, you see, at the risk of occasional cussings, we've decided we just gotta get tough. Like the utilities company. Like the telephone company. Like the water department . . . Or like the Chinese laundryman. "No tickee, no washee."

It's not that we question anybody's good credit or good intentions. We're not mad at anybody, and we'd like it ever so much if nobody would get mad at us. Everything considered, we feel the only way to be fair to ALL, is to "stop" a subscription when the circulation files say "stop."

So when you get that obnoxious little notice saying that, once again, your subscription is about to run out —why don't you just real quick-like stuff a check in an envelope, or drop in at the office the next time down town?

Heck, it's not the money, you understand. It's the principal of the thing (and the interest, if we could ever make the darned stuff stay in the bank long enough).

—M-S—

"Murder will out," commented our good friend, Will Shakespeare. We didn't anticipate, however, that it would ever "out" right in our very own Independent office.

But last week our printer-of-all-work, Bob Foss, shed an illuminating light upon a subject that has remained be-clouded by mystery for some five or six years. It's the matter of the dead cat that was strung up from the library flag pole (the date of the crime is a matter of controversy).

Anyway, Bob says that all the furore that ensued after the cat was discovered was entirely unwarranted. "That cat," asserts Bob with complete conviction, "was dead when it went up. Very dead."

Not only that, but the perpetrators of the "cat raising" were not responsible for the creature's prior demise. And Bob knows. He now admits he pulled the rope.

—M-S—

Mrs. Ralph B. Larson informs us that she has a new address—5979 Olive ave., Long Beach 5, Calif. The information came by air mail to avoid having a single issue of the Independent go astray. Mrs. Larson very kindly says, "I look forward to the paper every week and enjoy it so much" . . . Thank YOU, Mrs. Larson. We like subscribers like you very much, too.

—M-S—

Every now and then Uncle Sam proves he has a heart, regardless of taxpayers' rumors to the contrary. Yesterday the Independent found in its Post Office box a pale green envelope upon which some believing tot had placed a Christmas seal and a single scribbled line.

Inside was a sheet of paper neatly inscribed with a childish scrawl. "Reading" the letter was a bit difficult, but the idea was evident if the details were not. Those wavering lines were simply loaded with Christmas spirit, and we want to say "thanks" to the Post Office for seeing that the letter was delivered to us as Santa Claus' representative.

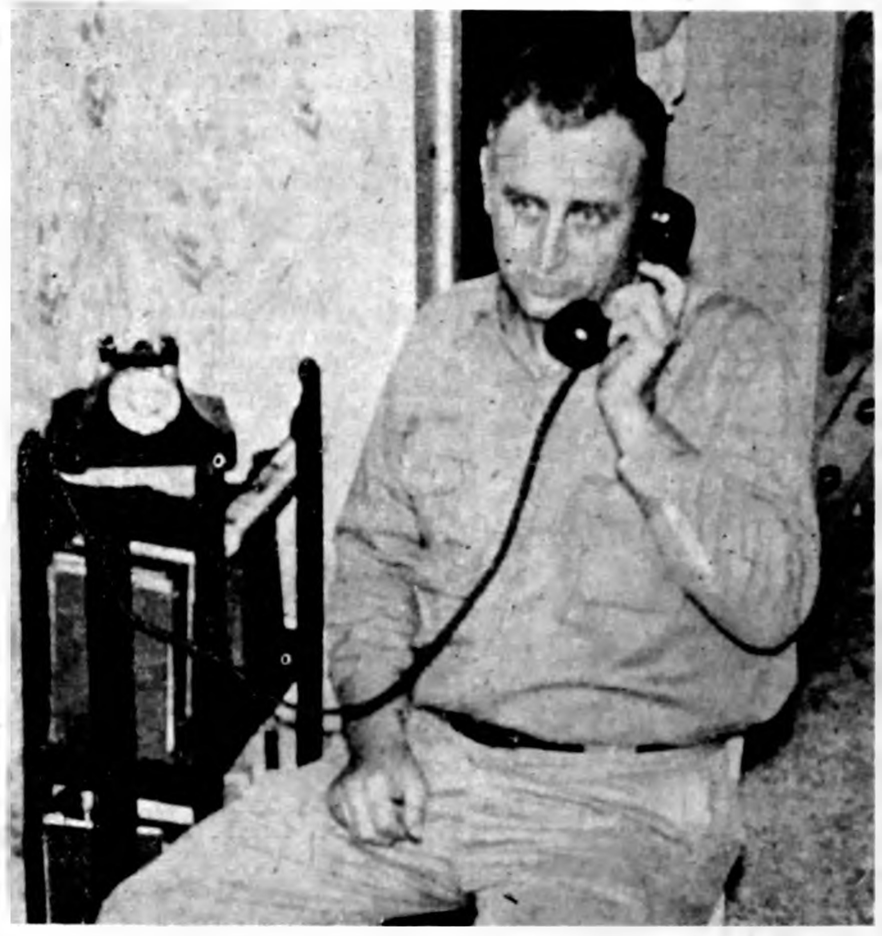
—M-S—

This one ISN'T on us! We went through a spell during which, despite our most concentrated efforts, it seemed we couldn't get a New Belmond theatre ad in the paper without a flummox of some sort.

When the page proof on which this week's theatre ad appeared was perused by the proof-reader, he started muttering about inefficiency in the back shop and shouted, "The theatre mat is upside down you so-and-so's!"

A confused peace soon reigned when ye proof-reader was informed, "This time, that's the way it's SUPPOSED to be."

First of New Dial Telephones Being Placed in Use This Week



In a try-it-on-the-dog spirit, the first dial phone installed in Belmond was placed by Otto Dorr—of the Central Telephone installation crew—in his own home at 711 Sixth avenue N. E. Except for two years in the Navy, Otto has been with the telephone company since 1936. The thoughtful look on his face indicates he's getting a "busy" signal.

Manager Lloyd C. Bruner announces that the Central Telephone company is this week putting into service the new dial phones that have thus far been installed in Belmond. Installation work is well started and a considerable number of new phones will be in use in the northeast quarter of town within a few days.

Mr. Bruner says that after the new phones have been installed, a commercial representative of the phone company will call at each home to fully explain the phone's use and answer any questions the subscriber may wish to ask.

Although most Belmond subscribers will have dial phones in their homes and in use by the first of the year, the new rates will not go into effect until Jan. 19 for subscribers having service at the present time.

Rates for the new service will be as follows:

Business—individual	$5.25
Business—two-party	4.25
Residence—individual	3.50
Residence—two-party	2.75
Rural Bus.—metallic	3.75
Rural Res.—metallic	3.25
Business extension	1.25
Residence extension	1.00

All the above rates are subject to tax and are net charges if paid before the discount date.

Subscribers have been requested by Manager Bruner to limit use of their phones to a minimum while the new system is being put into operation, as a good deal of testing and checking will be required to establish the new service. Work will be greatly expedited, he says, if subscribers will follow this temporary request.

State Tax Totals Show Sales Here On An Even Keel

There's been no perceptible recession in Wright county business in the past year if 1949 second quarter retail sales in the three major trading centers are any criterion.

According to state tax commission figures released last weekend, sales tax returns in Eagle Grove, Clarion and Belmond for the second quarter of this year indicated an increase in sales volume of $220,450 over the same period a year ago

This increase was realized in spite of the fact that out of 218 cities with 1,000 or more population, 128 communities showed a drop in dollar volume of retail sales in the three-month period of 1949 as compared to 1948. The statewide volume drop was, however, small — amounting to only one and a half per cent.

Belmond's second quarter retail taxes aggregated $15,993, representing a meagre increase of ony $14 over the same period a year ago. This represented an increase in dollar volume of just $700.

The aggregate sales tax for Belmond, Clarion and Eagle Grove jumped from $65,208 to $69,617—indicating a volume increase from $3,260,400 to $3,480,850. The Clarion tax total was boosted from $24,431 to $26,126, and Eagle Grove's from $24,798 to $27,498.

SALE DATE CLAIMED

Fred T. Gellett has claimed Thursday, January 5 on the sale calendar as date for his closing-out farm sale.

Jurors' Names Announced For January Term

A grand jury list of 12 has been drawn to serve during the term of district court which opens at Clarion on Jan. 9, with Judge G. R. Hill presiding. Bert C. Hewlett and Ed R. Thompson are the only Belmond names on the list.

ROY WILSON HONORED BY LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS OF COUNTY

Sheriff Roy E. Wilson, who is resigning his post as of Jan. 1, was feted Monday evening at a going away party held at the New Home Cafe in Clarion. Sharing the honors with him were Mrs. Wilson and Patrolman and Mrs. Pete Henry. Patrolman Henry is leaving the highway patrol after serving for about seven years in Hamilton and Wright counties.

Practically all the law enforcement officials in this county, in most cases accompanied by their wives, were included in the group of 46 guests. Belmond officials at the gala event were Mayor C. H. Hass and Officers Harry Lamb and Adolph Dorr.

The Wilsons were presented with a card table and set of four chairs and Patrolman Henry was given a number of items of clothing to assist in his conversion to "civilian" life.

At the convention of the Iowa State Sheriff's association held last week in Des Moines, Sheriff Wilson was presented with a lifetime membership in that organization as a past president. He has also been made a life member of the Northwest Iowa Peace Officers association.

"Lefty" has bought a house in Waterloo, where his recently patented "Royal Safety Beacon" is being manufactured. His wife and daughter will move to their new home on Dec. 27 and Sheriff Wilson will join them the first of the year.

County Sheriff's Office Investigating Vandalism Aimed at Rural Schools

A rash of vandalism incidents, in which country schools over the county have been the targets, is being investigated by Sheriff Roy Wilson and Deputy Bob Blecker. Most recent in the series of school break-ins was one at Toft school, a mile east and a mile south of Morse lake, a week ago Friday.

On this occasion glue and hand lotion were copiously spread over the teacher's desk, vulgar language scribbled on the blackboard, and an outhouse dragged some three or four miles from the school premises and dumped in a roadside ditch.

Deputy Blecker reports that one juvenile offender has been apprehended who admits having a part in no less than 12 instances of school vandalism. The sheriff's office is working on other leads and with further investigation expects to run down more of the offenders and call a halt to the malicious mischief.

Preliminary Work On Hospital Plan Making Progress

Steady progress is being made toward laying groundwork for establishment of a permanent committee to take charge of the campaign for a new community hospital in Belmond.

A public organization meeting will be held soon after the first of the year, to which will be invited representatives from all areas which the hospital will serve. No definite date, however, has been so far selected.

Last weekend A. C. Hanson, Dr. G. J. Hruska, Joe Ziller and Pat Gallagher made a trip to Granite Falls, Minn., to confer with men who were instrumental in erecting the new hospital recently built there. Cost figures were obtained which will be turned over to the permanent hospital committee when it is formed.

Investigations to date have revealed that the Granite Falls hospital was built at a considerably more economical cost than any other that has been constructed in this part of the country in post-war years. Some eight or 10 Belmond citizens have personally visited the hospital and report that its size and facilities would be ideal for this community.

Consequently, Roy A. Henderson and Clark McNeal have agreed to make a trip to St. Paul within the next few days to confer with the architects, Max and Gerald Buetow, and ascertain if a satisfactory deal might be made to obtain rights to the Granite Falls plans for local use.

The temporary hospital committee which was formed about two weeks ago is not making any effort to evolve actual plans for the new structure or for the fund campaign, Chairman McNeal emphasizes. Its efforts have been confined to gaining background information which might expedite action after the permanent committee is named at the mass meeting next month.

High School Concert Sunday Night Will Open Round of Community Christmas Festivities

Adult Students To Have Choice Of New Courses

Education Classes Will Commence January 9th

This season's Adult Education classes are scheduled to start the evening of Jan. 9 with a general organization meeting in the Belmond high school auditorium at 7:00 p. m. Initial classes in the various courses will follow the meeting.

Five courses are definitely listed, according to Harold Simerson, president of the Adult Education executive council, and four others have been tentatively arranged.

Classes will be held on 10 consecutive Monday evenings, from 7:00 to 9:00 o'clock, and a tuition fee of $3.00 will be charged.

The courses from last year's program which will be repeated, assuming sufficient interest is shown in each to warrant, are: general woodworking, which will be conducted by John Greenlander; agriculture, Duane Sandage; home economics, Carol Kepler; typing, Josephine Wiley; and physical training (for men) with the instructor yet to be named.

Four new courses have been proposed. Photography will be offered, with Duane Cunning and Claire Hugh in charge. Bible history will be taught by the Reverends H. P. Senft, Alfred B. McKeith, O. M. Severseike, A. T. Rollene and J. Heber Miller. Arts and crafts will be presented by Mrs. Dwight Tyrrell and Mrs. Dave Hamilton.

A committee has been formed to organize a course in contemporary affairs, headed by Mrs. Clark McNeal and including Mrs. Fred Gordon, C. N. Hildebrand and Pat Gallagher. Speakers on various topics of pertinent public interest will be obtained for this course if sufficient enrollment is obtained.

In the case of all courses, old and new, final decision as to whether classes will be organized will depend upon the amount of interest evidenced, Mr. Simerson says.

Trager Helps Broncs Win 48-42 Still Unbeaten in League Play

Lake Mills Defeated As Belmond Pivot Scores 28

Belmond kept its North Iowa conference basketball slate clean last Friday night by taking the measure of Lake Mills' Bulldogs, 48-42. Once again a collapse in the third quarter almost got the Broncos in hot water, but they got back into stride in time to snatch the decision.

Duane Trager was the big gun of the evening, looping in 13 baskets and a couple of free throws for a total of 28 points. It was largely due to his efforts that Belmond sported a 15-7 edge at the first quarter mark and had built up a 25-18 advantage by halftime.

The big Bronco center hit five in a row before he missed an effort in the first half. A large portion of his two-pointers were scored on push shots after pivoting in the hole position.

In the third quarter, Belmond's scoring pace slowed up a good deal and Lake Mills began to hit, with the result that the Broncos entered the final stanza only a point ahead, 33 to 32. The margin remained close until the automatic time-out with three minutes of play left, when it stood 40-37.

When play resumed, Sid Swenson and Bob Berns each tallied in a hurry to give Belmond a better working edge and make it practical for the Broncos to freeze the ball. In the waning moments Don Faris picked up a couple of points on free throws and Trager drifted in for a sleeper while Lake Mills was occupied with ball-chasing.

Coach Jim Scott reports that the ball-hawking of Sid Swenson and Jack Riggs, supplemented by the fine rebounding of Trager, contributed greatly to Belmond's defense. He also singled out the play of Bob Berns and Marlyn Watermiller as particularly worthy of comment.

Coach Scott says that the Lake Mills aggregation was composed mainly of sophomores and juniors and promises to be plenty tough before this season is over and a probable championship contender next year. Particularly outstanding were Limesand and Kingland at forwards, who racked up 13 and eight points respectively, and Hoveland—at center—who tallied 11 points. All three, with Matherson at guard, also performed well on defense.

The Belmond freshman-sophomore quintet lost a tough one to the Bullpups, 29 to 27. The Colts were without the services of Jim Riekens, one of the outstanding prospects on the underclassmen's team, who has left the squad due to inability to obtain transportation to his home following practice.

The count was tied at 17-all when second half play started and the advantage see-sawed back and forth during the third quarter. The Bullpups outlasted the Colts, however, and in the final period slipped into a meagre lead which they succeeded in protecting to the finish.

Dave Helland topped the Belmond junior scorers with 10 points, followed by Odean Severseike with seven. Vernon Meyer and Don Busick each accounted for four points and Alen Madsen for two. Nelson of Lake Mills was high point man with 14 and Belville was only a stride behind with 12.

By GERALD BOGAN

Publiciity Director
Republican State Committee

A stock-in-trade trick often employed by groups or persons attempting to confuse the issue is to "muddy the water" with many and sundry side issues, thus attempting to conceal the real purpose or motive.

That's the case in the current anti-gambling drive. Organized gambling, feeling the pinch of honest law enforcement, is trying to confuse the issue by tossing in corn, turkeys and raffles.

But law-abiding Iowans won't be misled. They know the real reason for the drive is to rid the state of racketeers, one-armed bandits and gambling syndicates. Attorney General Robert Larson is not being swayed from his forthright position on enforcement of gambling laws. He is not letting many side issues deter him—not even five kernels of corn.

Larson told the Iowa county attorneys' and sheriffs' convention:

"When I go out of office, no one will say that I was afraid or corrupt. I am sure you desire the same reputation."

The slot machine racket in the United States is said toe tak THREE BILLION DOLLARS A YEAR from the pockets of Americans. Frankie Costello, big-time gambling king in New York, reportedly is one of the prime-movers in the racket. Is it any wonder that Americans are aroused? Is it any wonder that Minnesota cracked down on slot machines and other forms of gambling?

The Chariton Herald-Patriot said recently: "In our opinion every Iowan should get down on his knees and thank Almighty God that we have such representative leadership (Larson) in public office. We should thank Him for a man who is brave enough to do his duty by his oath of office—not just to get by as countless public office holders are doing today and have done for generations past . . . If we don't like what's on the books the solution is to CHANGE THE LAW. Kicking out a conscientious officeholder will not change the laws." .. ..

The Monroe County News at Albia had this to say:

"We like the way in which Attorney General Robert L. Larson has waded into the campaign for maximum enforcement of Iowa's gambling laws. And we like the straightforward manner in which he is dismissing critics who try to twist his objectives."

The Washington Evening Journal said:

" . . . Larson has tackled a man-sized job in his determination to enforce our anti-gambling laws. But in that determination he should have the support of the public every step of the way . . the thing Larson really wants to obliterate in Iowa, no doubt, is the slot machine. The 'slots' however, should not be construed as gambling devices. They are set against the player and they take his money away with mechanical precision."

The Pella Chronicle commented:

"A man cannot serve two masters. He is either for an evil or will try, by ridicule or indirection, to stay the hand of enforcement. If he is against it he will say so and forthrightly. There is no middle ground for a worthy man."

In an almost unprecedented move, the Iowa Farm Bureau adopted as a part of its state resolution the following: "We commend our public officials for their agggressiveness in removing the gambling interests from our state."

Don't be deceived by the attempts being made to "muddy the water." The only issue in the current drive is law enforcement vs. organized gambling. Law enforcement officers are elected to enforce the law.

Larson told county officers recently not to take it upon themselves to decide which laws they will enforce and which ones they will not..

Until the people act to repeal those laws, he said, we have no right to ignore them.

IOWA DEMOCRATS CLAIM---

By FRANK MOORHEAD

Director of Publicity
Democratic State Committee

Thanks to the Republican State Tax Commission, taxes in Iowa in 1950 are going to be higher than an elephant's eye, higher even than Gilroy's kite.

Value of Iowa farms for taxation has been raised from last year in 97 of the 99 counties of the state. All except Lee (home of Senator Stanley Hart, Republican candidate for president pro tem and member of the patronage committee of the senate) and Warren (home of Governor Beardsley.)

This is the first assessment on real estate made under the County Assessor system, established in 1947.

The Republican State Tax Commission has raised valuation in some classes of livestock in 73 of the 99 counties of the state. Four counties (Buena Vista, Dallas, Henry and Jefferson) have increases in all classes of livestock. A 78 per cent increase on sheep was made in Page county. A 77 per cent increase on swine was made in Shelby county.

Montgomery County Auditor Falk says that "in a general way it seems that the State Tax Commission was raising the valuations in most counties which had local men on the force of assessors and in some cases lowering them in counties which had employed professional appraisers to do the job of assessing."

Why the slap on the faces of the local assessors; if this, indeed, be the case? The County Assessor law threw out of office 1,600 township assessors duly elected to office by the vote of the people. Now the Republican State Tax Commission seems to be following the policy of raising the valuation put on property by local township and county men who did the assessing.

"The state levies as many taxes as it can think of, then gives the poeple of the states as few services as it can," says the Sigourney Review.

There is only one resource. There's an election coming in November, 1950, and a chance to repeal the County Assessor law and to throw out one of the Republican members of the State Tax Commission whose term expires during the next term of the Governor and to replace him with a Democrat, making the commission stand two Democrats and one Republican, in place of two Republicans and one Democrat as now.

And the Democratic party stands pledged to the repeal of the County Assessor law and the reduction (instead of the Republican raise) in state taxes.

Tax collections, which, under the law, commence January 1, may be held up until February 1, 1950, because of the slowness of the Republican State Tax Commission in getting valuations reported to the various county auditors.

Tax collections were held up in 1949 for a month or more, in 53 counties, in which the auditors were compelled to remake their tax books to include the soldiers' bonus levy spread in December. It took legislative enactment to legalize the law being bent, if not broken.

For the first time since 1942 Iowans paid a state property tax in 1949. The levy was 1.95 mills. Predictions are being made that another state property tax will be levied.

Absence of a state property tax was one of the things to which Republican candidates have "pointed with pride" in recent campaigns. They will have to "view with alarm" in the 1950 campaign. But it's a heavy-footed GOP candidate who cannot do a double somersault on most any issue to get the votes.

-OBITUARY-

CATHERINE E. BARRY

Monday morning, Nov. 21, 1949, saw the passing of a life of unselfishness, charity and self-sacrifice as death came to Catherine E. Barry at the farm home of her nephew, John P. C Beacom, near Jackson, Neb. Born in Wright County, Iowa, on Aug. 11, 1870 on her father's farm near Belmond, the daughter of John and Mary Barry, she spent the useful, vigorous years of her life helping her parents, brothers and sister.

Having lost her father in the early years of her life and her only sister marrying and migrating westward, the heavy burdens of the household and the care of her aging mother fell upon her.

She was deeply saddened by a tragic accident which her youngest brother sustained to his back, causing paralysis and later resulting in death. For several years she spent long hours ministering to her brother's needs, so that for over two years not once did she recline on a bed at night to sleep.

Added to this was the fact that two other brothers died less than six months after the youngest brother received the injury which terminated in his death. Soon afterwards she lost her mother.

Subsequently she went from Belmond to Fort Dodge, where she found employment in some of the leading restaurants. However, weakened in health and spirit from her long years of toil, she was forced to abandon her work and retire to the home of her married sister near Jackson, Neb., where she passed away at the age of 79 years.

She lived a noble life of unselfishness, kindliness and charity, true to the teachings of her Irish parents and the Catholic faith which they instilled into her youthful mind. Though she never enjoyed the privilege of motherhood in the usual sense, she still was a mother to many—having on several occasions given aid to orphanages in the east.

Miss Barry is survived by one brother, Patrick Barry of Jackson, Neb.; two nephews — John P. C. Beacom of Jackson and Joseph Beacom of New York; two nieces—Helen Beacom of Jackson and Sister Mary Lua O. P. of Washington, D. C.

On Nov. 23 the body was brought to St. Patrick's church at Jackson, Neb., where a High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Timothy O'Sullivan.

The body was sent to Belmond for burial. Funeral services were held Nov. 25, Rev. R. A. Ormsby officiating with a High Mass. Burial was in St. Francis cemetery under the direction of the Fulton Funeral Home. Pall bearers were James Barry, Ben Blake, James Finn, James Quigley, Pat Quigley and Tom Quigley.

RALPH FOSTER

Ralph Foster, son of George and Mary Foster, was born March 8, 1890, at Clinton, Ill. The first ten years of his life were spent in Illinois. The family moved to a farm northeast of Kanawha in January of 1900. There he resided until 1910, when he moved into town.

On Oct. 3, 1914, at Sandwich, Ill., he was married to Edna Thorson. To them was born one child, Gordon.

Mr. Foster spent his life engaged chiefly as a mechanic, which work he loved. He had been associated with the firm of Moeller and Brunson in recent years.

His ill health and death came as a shock to all, when he passed away Dec. 1, from a heart condition, at the age of 59 years, eight months, 23 days.

He was preceded in death by his parents, wife, his son, Gordon; one brother, Carl; and one sister, Alice. Surviving are two brothers—Roy and Floyd of Kanawha; two sisters—Nettie, Mrs. Nels Thorson, and Grace, Mrs. O. C. Thorson, both of Kanawha; and one grandson, Rickey Foster, also of Kanawha.

In early childhood he was baptized in the Christian church at Clinton. He held membership in the Odd Fellows Lodge of Kanawha. He was a kind husband and father, a workman who quietly went about his tasks, striving to accommodate and serve well his patrons.

Funeral services were held at the Kanawha Methodist church Saturday afternoon, Dec. 3, with the Rev. R. D. Kitterman officiating. Music was furnished by the Methodist choir. Interment was made in the Kanawha cemetery.

HENRY RUITER

Henry Ruiter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ruiter, was born Nov. 21, 1906, in Wright county, Iowa, where he grew up to manhood. He was wed to Miss Minnie Gruis, Oct. 10, 1930. To them was born one child, a son, Merlin. Following their marriage, they engaged in farming in the vicinity of Meservey.

Mr. Ruter was baptized in the Christian faith, and received as member into the Meservey Reformed church on April 15, 1934. He died suddenly by accident while doing field work with the tractor, Nov. 30, 1949, at the age of 43 years and nine days. It befell his son Merlin to find the lifeless body of his father, death caused by carbon monoxide fumes.

His sudden passing is mourned by his wife and son, five brothers—Fred of Thornton, John and Bernard of Meservey, Willie of Fertile, and Henry (adopted) of Chapin; also five sisters—Mrs. Zenna Kaduce of Goldfield, Mrs. Eppie Chickara of Dearborn, Mich., Mrs. Reka Radio and Miss Faye Ruiter, both of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mrs. Grace Hinman of Goodell; and his father, Fred Ruiter. There preceded him in death, his mother in 1922, his brother Remmer in 1924 and brother Harm in 1927.

HEALTH GROUP SEEKS MEANS OF IMPROVING POOR IOWA STANDING

The Wright County Health Council met a week ago Friday, in Clarion. The members and one guest—the Hancock county nurse, Miss Harriet Oxley, R. N., —were present.

Jay Vendelboe, chairman of the health council, led the discussions. Rev. Ray Steakley, of Clarion, commented on a mental hygiene conference he attended in Fort Dodge on Oct| 31. He explained that Hamilton county has successfully brought home many aged persons from various Iowa mental hospitals, caring for them in the county home, thus making their numbered days happier and providing room in the institutions and hospitals for those mentally ill that will respond to treatment.

Mrs. Lynn Thompson, who has attended several meetings in Des Moines with regard to helping organize a state health council, explained that such an organization is for futhering of health facilities and opportunities in Iowa. Iowa ranks 46th in provinding public health facilities for its people. It was decided at the meeting to appoint Mrs. Thompson to represent the Wright County Health Council at further meetings of the state council.

Be Careful! Your Mishap May Be Your La

So you've driven for years and never had a traffic accident? Don't take that as an indication that it can't happen because the state safety department has some sobering records on the subject of the unscathed driver.

During the first nine months of this year, 339 other drivers who could make that boast had their first accidents. They were fatal accidents. Furthermore, none of these drivers had previous records of traffic violations as far as the safety department knows.

For these drivers it was a case of the first accident being the worst, and in many instances, the last one. The remaining 126 drivers of the total 465 involved in fatal crashes during the period did have past records of accidents or violations or both, according to the department.

This is a sharp change from the initial nine months last year when 287 "record" drivers had fatal accidents, about 60 per cent of the total 476 operators figuring in death crashes during the period. In other words, the number of drivers with poor records who have been involved in accidents this year is down 100 per cent under last year.

This is an encouraging trend to the state safety department which since early 1948 has been operating a driver improvement program based on the conviction that many known dangerous drivers can be helped to changed their habits for the better.

Main function of the program is a personal contact through letter or interview with drivers whose records seem to indicate they are heading for heavy trouble in traffic.

Department members say few of the drivers thus contacted ever add another black mark to their records. "This seems to be a definite indication that most drivers classed as accident prone or as habitual violators can be led to change their habits for the better," State Safety Commissioner Alfred Kahl said.

Reporting Farm Doings

by "Pat" Gallagher

This week we turn the FD column over to Char ne Edwards, member of the ittle Liberty Ladies 4-H lub of Goldfield, who recently attended the annual -H Club Congress in Chicago as Iowa's "Better Groomed Girl", and Willis Muhlenbruck of the Grant Growers, who was awarded trip to the International Livestock Exposition as Wright county's outstanding -H boy.

By Charlene Edwards

he theme. "Better Living for Better Tomorrow," brought 0 4-H club members from 46 tes of U S. and 30 other coun es of the world to the 28th Na al 4-H Club Congress in icago. The congress headquar s were in the Stevens hotel, ich is the largest in the world. represented Iowa's Better oomed Girl and I want to nk the S. S. Kresge Co. of Detroit and the Illinois Central Railway for sponsoring my trip.

At our assemblies, we learned to become better citizens and tried to mold our lives for building in a better world of tomorrow.

—RFD—

The International Youth Exchange students were a major feature of the Congress. Iowa was fortunate to have Dyard Lyon from Toledo as one of these exchange students. He lived in Finland for three months, where he studied their ways and means of living. This is just one way of bringing the good will of our neighbors around the world.

—RFD—

I was very much impressed when I talked with 4-H members of the many states to see just how their clubs were organized. I didn't realize how much states differed in setting up their ideal for club work. It makes us appreciate our own system of organization and no wonder we ask what land we love the best! IOWA - MY - IOWA!

The congress trip was very inspirational and educational. We toured Saturday morning around interesting parts of Chicago. We viewed Washington Park, St. Mary's Cathedral — where the Bells of St. Mary's was composed, the home of Joe Louis, Life and Coronet publishing houses, Bronsville, Checkerboard Ave., Chicago university, Rockefeller Memorial Chapel—where we attended church on Sunday, Michigan Avenue, Lake Michigan, Soldiers' Field, the building in which the atomic bomb was developed and the Tea Gardens.

I enjoyed visiting the Adler Planetarium, where the group studied millions of stars and how rainbows and halos are formed. I didn't realize there were so many kinds of fish until I visited the Shedd Aquarium. I learned the natural habitat of each type. At the Chicago museum of natural history were many antiques from various counties. In the museum of Science and Industry, Christmas trees of many lands were displayed.

—RFD—

Saturday afternoon, the Iowa delegation attended the musical comedy "Kiss Me Kate" at the Schubert theatre. Saturday evening, the group had dinner at the Kungsholm, a Swedish smorgasbord restaurant. There were 84 different dishes of food. The Swedish dishes were very attractively displayed.

We were entertained royally at banquets by various companies, and we received souveniers from each. Monday morning we were guests of Firestone Tire and Rubber company; Monday at luncheon, guests of International Harvester company; Monday for dinner, guests of Thomas E. Wilson, head of the Wilson meat packing company; Tuesday, 'luncheon at the Edgewater Beach hotel as guests of Montgomery Ward.

Breakfast on Wednesday, guests of Sears and Roebuck; luncheon Wednesday, guests of Dearborn Motors company; barbecue box supper Wednesday night, guests of Curtiss Candy company at the International Livestock show; Thursday, luncheon guests of General Motors at the Palmer House; and Thursday night, annual 4-H dinner banquet at Stevens.

—RFD—

Some of the well known celebrities I saw were Babe Didrickson, John Lujack, Ted Williams, John Karass, Ted Schroeder, Allie Reynolds, Gene Vance, Miss America of 1949, Gene Autry, Jimmy Dorsey, Fred Waring, Everett Mitchell and James Melton.

—RFD—

During the National 4-H Club Congress, the National Home Demonstration Agents held their convention. At their meeting on Tuesday afternoon, two boys and three girls served on a panel discussion. Two members represented the International Youth Exchange, one from Camp Fire girls, one from Boy Scouts, and I represented the 4-H organization. The title of the panel was "Youths Responsibility as Citizens."

—RFD—

Five of us girls from the states of Maine, New York, South Carolina, Texas and Iowa were chosen to try out for the National Style Revue Play.

From the five states two girls were to be chosen. The girl from Texas and I were selected. I then had the privilege of attending the National Style Revue breakfast banquet at the Stevens hotel. We received darling mementoes from the Simplicity Pat1tern company.

I certainly want to thank all of those who have helped so much in every way to make MY DREAM DAYS come true.

By Willis Muhlenbruck

I was very fortunate to be selected to represent the Wright county boys 4-H clubs at the International Livestock Show in Chicago. I enjoyed every minute of this trip, seeing the sights of Chicago and being able to see the Fat Stock show.

In my mind, I think it was a highlight to see the thousands of cattle, hogs, sheep and horses. On Saturday afternoon, we watched the judging of the champions of the show. All of the steers were dressed up like square blocks of wood. We saw many entries from Iowa which were being shown, along with the Iowa State college livestock.

—RFD—

I particularly remember one entry from Texas. This was a five-year-old Hereford steer, weighing 2210 pounds, standing about six feet tall. It was his third trip to the show. This steer was not being shown, but was on exhibit.

—RFD—

We stayed in the Stevens Hotel, supposed to be the largest hotel in the world. It had 30 stories with 25 stories of sleeping rooms and the remainder was a medical hospital. This hotel has over 3,000 rooms with bath, closet our telephone, each room has outside exposure.

In the later part of our trip, the Nicholas turkey farm of Mason City sponsored a trip by bus in Chicago.

—RFD—

We saw many historical buildings and monuments, such as Lincoln monument in Lincoln park and the Palmer House, the two buildings left standing after the Chicago fire, the grounds where they hold the Railroad fair and also where the world's fair was held.

I wish to thank all those who made this trip possible for me, as well as Radio Station KGLO, which made arrangements for our trip, and Mr. Nicholas and the Eagle Grove fair board.

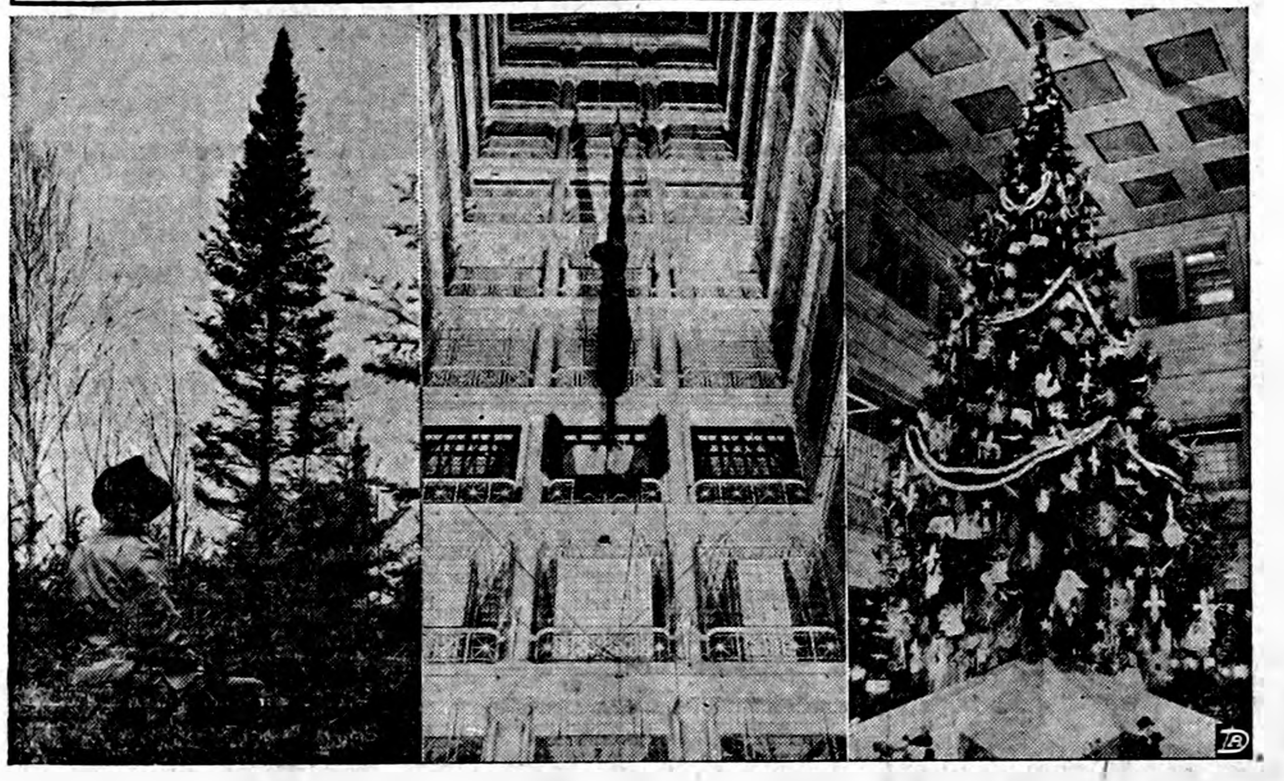
Up Goes a Giant Christmas Tree!



From Forest . . . Up Seven Stories . . . To Christmas Finery!

Herewith is pictured the giant Christmas tree which Janice Nielsen of Woolstock, Wright county's outstanding 4-H girl for 1949, described last week in the published report of her recent trip to the International Livestock Exposition. Below is told how the mammoth tree found its way into a Chicago department store.

CHICAGO—Each year hundreds of thousands of persons come to see the giant, 50-foot Christmas tree now on the seventh floor of Marshall Field & Company here.

And each year, amid the "ohs" and "ahs," there comes the question—"Wonder where this tree came from and how they got it up here?"

The answer is the same story of "putting up the tree" that takes place in every American home during the holidays, but with some big differences.

Field's tree is the perfect top of a 100-foot fir, weighing more than a ton. It travels nearly 500 miles from the North Woods to Chicago's State Street. It is decorated, around Thanksgiving time, with some 3,000 ornaments, all designed king-sized to be in scale with the giant tree.

First step in this particular "putting up the tree" comes when the department store sends a display man to Mellen, Wisc., to select a tree. This happens almost three months before Christmas.

Once the tree is chosen, it must be made ready for the long trip to Christmas glory. The tree is cut and lowered to the ground, not felled. The top 50 feet are bound in wire and carted to a railroad siding.

In Chicago, the tree moves from freight yards to the store by truck. It is hoisted seven stories up and moved into a tearoom, where it will stand until Christmas.

Surrounded by scaffolding, the tree is decorated over a weekend, each ornament placed according to a decorator's sketch.

Thus, after weeks of work and preparation, the tree that has been called the largest and perhaps the most gaily decorated indoor tree in America is ready for the young and old who throng to see its tinsel and glitter.

36 4-H Committee Women And Leaders at Meeting

Thirty-six 4-H committee women and leaders met in the Clarion school homemaking room last Wednesday from 10:00 a. m. to 4:00 p. m. Twelve clubs were represented and two club mothers were present. It is the goal to have each club have a mother at each training school.

Miss Emelda Kunau, home furnishing specialist, was in charge of the training school. Miss Kunau explained the pictures that will be studied this year in 4-H, and the program plans for the year. She explained the importance of color' in the girl's room, and the four different styles of furniture.

For workshop, the leaders made a sofa pillow.

IOWA U-GO-I-GO

The Iowa U-Go-I-Go 4-H club held their annual Christmas party at the home of Wilma Whitten. The meeting was called to order by the president, Pat Ketchum, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Lois Aldrich. There were 31 members, two leaders and one visitor present at the meeting.

There were several committees appointed for the coming year. They are as follows: music—Pat Ketchum, Judy Baker, Wilma Whitten and Judy Sellers. Book—Lois Aldrich, Bonnie Lockett and Roberta Hanson. Picture—Sandra Olson and Edna Retleff. Social—Joan Aldrich and Janice Hammond.

The committees chosen for the Christmas party with the boys were: food—Pat Ketchum and Marjorie McKinley; entertainment—Wilma Whitten and Joyce Lyons.

After the meeting several games were played and the gifts from our club sisters were handed out. There was also a grab bag for the new members.

At the close of the afternoon, the hostesses, Wilma, Dawn and Kay Whitten, and their mothers served a novelty Christmas lunch.

That "Tired Feeling" Warns Trouble's Not Far In Offing

"Hard work itself seldom causes fatigue which cannot be cured by a good night's sleep or rest," stated the Iowa State Department of Health. "However, fatigue that hangs on, that continued tired feeling, means an exhausted, run-down condition of body or mind, or both." Fatiuge can be brought on by worry and worry does not help a situation.

When you become tired, it is necessary to work harder to achieve results that are easily obtained when you are rested. Fatigue causes accidents at home, at work, and on the highway. Accuracy of vision, judgment of distance, coordination and speed are all diminished by fatigue.

If tired, stay away from moving machinery, and especially from the wheel of your car. Numerous mistakes are made, thinking is impaired and misunderstandings are created, all because of fatigue.

Fatigue and its hazards can be controlled by sufficient sleep. Some people require more sleep than others. An accurate test of whether or not you are sufficiently rested upon awakening is that you have no desire to turn over and go back to sleep.

There aren't many of us who like to hear that alarm clock ring in the morning, so it must be that most of us could use just a little more rest and should perhaps get to bed a little earlier each night.

Food also helps conquer fatigue. Three well-balanced meals a day, each of equal importance, fortifies you against undue fatigue. You can't skip breakfast and expect to make it up by eating a big lunch.

It's been found that workers who skip breakfast get less done in the first working hour than those who eat a good breakfast. As the morning progresses those who didn't eat breakfast grow less efficient.

Brief rest periods from concentrated attention at work or play reduce fatigue and accidents and increases the efficiency and quality of accomplishment.

Fatigue is caused by overwork, inadequate rest, worry or friction. Whatever the cause, fatigue is nature's protecting warning. Heed it and live more healthfully. Fatigue that is always present, that does not respond to rest and relaxation, is a signal for medical attention.

The Christmas Spirit

Notice that Christmas spirit is in the air?

"Makes you feel good all over," Edith said the other night.

"Everyone seems to feel friendlier," says Edith. "I almost forgot my old grudge against Hattie for what she said about my weight."

Yes, and wouldn't it be grand if we could all keep this Christmas feeling of good-will and friendliness toward other folks the year 'round? How much happier we would be, practicing kindness and tolerance toward the other fellow . . . even if our ideas didn't always happen to jibe with his.

ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN!

So little Alice thought things were wacky in Wonderland! She should have stuck around and seen what the National Safety Council dug up in 1949 in its annual roundup of odd accidents. To wit:

Every ballplayer dreams of the day he's as hot as a firecracker. But few attain it as literally as Outfielder Norman Lawrence of an East Oakland, Calif., sandlot team. Thirteen-year-old Norman chased a fly ball so vigorously that the friction of his pants ignited some matches in his pocket. The matches touched off a pocketful of firecrackers Norm had been hoarding.

He banged his way spectacularly across the outfield and caught the fly—to the thunderous cheers of his amazed and delighted teammates.

In the same anatomical category is the fascinating case of Ivan Harzell of Yreka, Calif., who gave not a hotfoot but a hotseat to, of all people, himself. Mr. Harzell was working in a field with a sodium chlorate weed killer that impregnated his trousers.

The highly inflammable chemical was touched off by friction when Mr. Harzell rammed his hand into his pocket, and his pants exploded.

Statistics show that very few cars skid on icy streets in New York City in midsummer. But that's what happened on the hottest day of the year in 1949. A taxicab driven by Arthur Irise crashed into another taxi.

Irise explained to police that his cab had skidded on ice that had fallen from a truck. He was advised to put on chains.

Mrs. Lowell Long is used to hearing her neighbors in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, say that her biscuits are always surefire. Nonetheless, she was startled when shots rang out from the hot oven into which she had just dropped a pan of dough. Then she remembered that when the family left on a recent vacation, two revolvers had been hidden in the stove.

Fully aware that things are tough all over, police in Sacramento, Calif., nevertheless were surprised to get a report that an automobile had picked the pocket of a pedestrian and escaped with $102. The victim, W. T. Taylor, had walked too close to a moving car. His coat pocket—wallet and all—was ripped off by the auto and carried away.

Football fans realize that pretty drum majorettes of high school bands practically knock themselves out to please the crowd. But Celia Slavens of the Champaign, Ill., high school band actually did it. She twirled her baton so energetically it smacked her in the head and knocked her cold.

In Bridgeport, Conn., a box of cookies set fire to a house at 153 Charles Street. How? Well, the box toppled from a kitchen shelf onto the handle of a water faucet, turning on the water. The cookies spilled out and clogged the drain. The sink overflowed, the water seeped through the floor, a short circuit resulted, and fire broke out.

Parents and others who are a little weary of bubble gum have an ardent ally in Quincy Elmer Fergusson of Anaheim, Calif. Quincy was driving a young woman home from the office one afternoon when she chose that moment to demonstrate her skill as gum bubbler.

The balloon-sized bubble burst in Quincy's face. He did what came naturally—let go of the wheel and clawed at the rubbery goo which covered his eyes. The car swerved into two others. Then things were really gummed up.

In Kampsville, Ill., Bridegroom James Inman blissfully carried his bride across the threshold, slipped and broke his ankle.

And in Santa Monica, Calif., police arrested a motorist on a speeding charge for the second time in 18 months. His name? No fooling, folks — it's Safety First!

BUILDERS

Richard Cole and his two sons of New London believe in long hours. Recently they completed their sixth house, all of them built mostly in their spare time, nights and holidays. All have full-time jobs.

CLOSE SHAVE

A broken air-line kept Maurice Lovett of Leon from getting beaten to death by his own air hammer. A sudden cave-in- of dirt pinned him against the hammer, which struck him in the face only once before the air-line broke, stopping its operation. Both of his legs were broken by the falling dirt.

CROP Donations Now Have Reached Quarter Of Goal

Partial reports from 59 counties show more than 100 carloads of corn or their equivalent in other commodities or cash have been donated in the Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP) for food for the hungriest people overseas. The 106 cars are almost one-fourth of Iowa's goal of 450 cars of food.

Only complete report to date is from Davis county which pledged one car and exceeded its goal by 30 per cent. Forty counties have made no report, although all but one of them have been canvassing.

Leading the counties, according to the incomplete reports reaching the state CROP office in Des Moines, is Buena Vista with six cars. Buena Vista's goal is eight cars. Three other counties, Bremer, Humboldt, and Cedar, are not far behind with a reported five cars each. Ida county, with a goal of four cars, lacks less than a fourth of a car of reaching its goal.

To graphically illustrate Iowa's donation of food through this church and community relief project, Younker's department store at Des Moines has a CROP exhibit in one of their street windows this week, Dec. 12-17.

The display includes a miniature train with cars representing the number of carloads of food actually donated and reported to date by each county in the Iowa drive.

First displayed in each county, these Iowa cars will join cars from other states for a national symbolic train dedication in New York early in January. The cars will then be distributed overseas to the centers that receive CROP food, to help interpret the reason for the gifts to the needy people who receive them.

CROP contributions, distributed without regard to race or creed, are sent to 22 countries in Europe, Asia and the Middle East through Catholic War Relief, Church World Service and Lutheran World Relief, sponsors of CROP.

SAME FAMILY

At Orange City, the Vande Steeg store has observed its 70th anniversary. Founded in 1879, the store has been operated by the same famiy ever since.

ELECTROCUTED

As he watched his mother prepare a cake, 21-month old Alan Hills of Oakland was electrocuted and died within a few minutes. Apparently, a short circuit from the electric mixer passed into the chrome stripping of the kitchen table, against which the youngster was leaning.

ELECTRIC CHAIR

Greenfield civic clubs have put Tom Pierce in an electric chair—but not the lethal kind. It's a new wheel-chair, electrically propelled. Tom lost the use of his legs as the result of sleeping sickness, which hospitalized him two years.

WALKOUT

At Ames, pledges of a social fraternity staged a "walkout," left behind them a dead horse and 50 live pigeons in the fraternity house.

SAVED DEER

When his hunting dog pulled down a wounded deer near Waverly recently, Forrest Heiser called off the dog and took the deer home in his car. Apparently suffering from a recent rifle wound in its left hip, the deer was quite thin and emaciated, but appeared to be on the road to recovery at the Heiser farm. It will be released in the spring when it recovers.

SAVED HOME

Three teen-agers saved their farm home near Solon recently when it caught fire. While Shirley Lenz climbed to the roof and stamped at the flames with her feet, brother Dean carried water with many trips up and down a ladder and sister Joyce went into the attic and put out the sparks as they came through. By the time the fire department arrived, the blaze had been extinguished.

CHICAGO

Thirteen 4-H members, leaders, directors and friends met at the Farm Bureau office to take a trip to Chicago. From the Farm Bureau Office we drove to the Mason City R. R. station where we were to board the three special cars station KGLO had reserved for the trip. During the wait to board the train some of us were privileged to say a few words over the radio, station KGLO, which was broadcast the next day.

The first car on the train was next to the Pullman, for those who were going to sleep during the trip. The second was for those who expected to get some sleep. The last for the all nighters.

Our train arrived in Chicago at 11:00. International Harvester busses took us from the Union Station to our hotels which had been assigned earlier. After we all found our hotels and got rid of our baggage, Hank Hook took all the men down to the International Livestock Exposition. Miss Buchanan took the ladies on a shopping tour of Chicago.

All the men followed Hank Hook on the subway out to the Livestock Exposition, where a tour of all the Livestock was made ,and there was some dandy livestock, too. That evening there was a Horse Show and those who didn't care to see the show were allowed to return to the hotels

Sunday morning all those who wished too attend church were able to do so. Sunday afternoon everyone went on a tour of Chicago, where we went through the aquarium, and saw all sorts of sea life. Then we toured the museum, where we saw animals of all kinds. The entire afternoon was spent exploring these two buildings. Sunday evening all attended a stage show in the Chicago Theatre.

Monday morning the ladies attended the radio show "Welcome Travelers." At 11:15 everyone met at the Congress Hotel, then went out to the International Harvester works. We ate our dinner there, then went on a guided tour of the tractor works. After spending much of the afternoon here, we went to the building of Science and Industry. Since we spent more time than planned at the tractor works, we could only spend 45 minutes at this building. 45 minutes was a very short time, considering that it would take days to make a complete tour of it. After leaving here the International Harvester busses took us on a guided tour of the city of Chicago. After the tour we were free until train time 10:30.

Myself and two other boys, Willard Deberg, a 4-H'er, and Dick Loonan, county youth assistant, went to the Boulevard Room to see the spectacular ice shows which are featured there. It was a real nice experience to see the skaters do their fancy skating to the music of Frankie Master's band. There was also dining and dancing.

The train for home, left Union Station at 10:30 sharp and everyone took one last look at Chicago, for this is one trip everyone will remember for a long time to come.

BAND

The Alexander school band, under the direction of Mr. S. Bulka, gave a public concert Nov. 30 at 8:00 p. m.

Our band consists of 20 members , making the organization small but mighty. We of the band certainly enjoyed playing this concert.

Mr. Bulka, our director, gave a short talk, his subject being the "Importance of Playing An Instrument"

The program we presented was quite varied. Marches, overtures and some popular music, filled out the hour long concert evening.

Wednesday evening, Dec. 14, the band again played. This was the date of our annual school Christmas program.

What's Doin' In Music

This week I am going to interview Alberta Dirksen. She is the pianist for the girls glee club, mixed chorus and all the soloists. She also is the pianist for the Reformed church Sunday school.

Alberta has played for all high school music groups for two years.

She is fifteen years old and a Junior in high school

Everyone has been working very hard on the Christmas program. It is to be held on Wednesday, Dec. 14 at 8 o'clock. Everyone in school is taking part in it.

We hope to see all of you there. Don't disappoint us!

Christmas Pageant

A Christmas pageant entitled "In Bethlehem Town" will be given for the public Dec. 14, at 8:00 p. m.

All of the grade students plus the band and mixed chorus are taking part in the program. This makes a total of approximately 148 students.

Before hand the band will play some Christmas carols, and will play while the candle lighters come in. This will be very impressive.

Larry Myers will sing a solo, "The First Noel". The mixed chorus will sing several pieces.

The first scene is The Annunciation; second, Shepherd Scene; third, The Manger Scene; and fourth, Church Scene.

To close the pageant the audience will all participate in singing "Come All Ye Faithful."

The pageant will be about an hour long. Afterwards Santa Claus will visit all the children, young and old alike.

The entire student body wants to thank Mrs. Cook, Mrs. McAllister, Mr. Johnson, Mrs. Boyington, Miss Hassebrock, Mr. Rysdam, Mr. Hussong, Miss TeSelle, Mr. Bulka, Mrs. Sauerberg and Miss Freeks for their wonderful help in putting on a big success.

ATHLETIC NEWS

Tuesday night the Hansell girls won from the Alexander girls 27 to 59. It was nip and tuck until the half when the Hansell girls took over and won.

The boys game proved a real thriller ending in a 22-22 tie. In the overtime Bill Folbrecht hit for the deciding two points. It was a close battle all the way.

SENIOR NEWS

The seniors have been very busy this past week. For one thing they had Miss Farrell Porter from Kansas City Publishing Co here to help with the annual. The seniors went to different towns last week getting advertisements from the business firms for the annual. We want to thank everyone who helped them out.

The seniors' pictures came so there will be no mice running around the homes. We can say one thing, "They sure did turn out nice."

Kansas is leaving this week, this leaves three boys and one girl in the class. We want to wish her luck in Circleville, Kan., where she is going. "Goodbye, Kansas, we are hoping to hear from you a lot."

JUNIOR NEWS

The Juniors have been serving at the basketball games at home and are making money for the Junior-Senior banquet.

In classes we have been doing our regular work like taking time tests and making outlines for our assignments out of our books.

We have been taking over the paper for the Seniors while they are out advertising for the annual. So far we have been getting it out on time to go in the paper.

7th and 8th Grade News

Physical training period is the most interesting and the most enjoyable period of the day as far as the Jr. High is concerned.

Our unit in reading about citizens from other lands is proving very interesting.

SIXTH GRADE

We have been combining our our history and geography as they both tell us about Egypt.

Adding with sixths and tenths is our problem in arithmetic.

Both of our grades have collected clothes from our homes, and now are painting toys for an orphanage.

We are still practicing very hard for the Christmas program we are going to put on along with the rest of the school. We'll see you there Dec. 14.

3rd and 4th Grade News

Practice for the Christmas program is progressing nicely. Jannis Fekkers, Rosemary Trager, Karen Dirksen, and Marilyn Burger are going to be angels. Eight of the third grade are in the verse choir. They are Billy Latham, Marlene Rodecap, Steven Greenfield, Glen Myers, Rhoda Bohnning, Karen Bailey, Mardell Halze and Eugene Draper.

We are busy decorating our room for Christmas. We have made a very nice poster of angels which was put on the front bulletin board, so that it could be enjoyed by all.

Rosemary brought a nice Santa Claus made from a coffee can

We drew names and are looking forward to our gift exchange. The price set was 50c.

The children like the "pep" meetings, and are trying to learn the yells.

Tomorrow we start working on Christmas gifts for our parents.

1st Grade News

In reading we are learning many new words. We are also learning to read with expression so that we will be able to dramatize our favorite story.

We are learning the positions of numbers 1 to 5. Some of us are having a little trouble with writing to 100.

Practicing for the Christmas program is enjoyed by all. We must work hard though so our mothers and fathers will enjoy the program.

JOKES

Mr. Bulka: "I hear you love music"

Miss TeSelle: "Yes, but keep right on playing."

A drunk, draping over a parking meter, was removed by police. "I put in my nickel," he protested. "I got 20 minutes to go."

Mrs. Rysdam said to Mr. Rysdam: "I'm approaching the age of 30." Mr. Rysdam looked at her. "Tell me dear, from which direction."

Question of Hospital Bonds Emphasizes Need for Planning

At the meeting of civic-minded citizens which was held a week ago Friday to initiate a study of ways and means of obtaining a new community hospita, City Attorney Roy Henderson pried open a Pandora's box of plaguing municipal problems to which all Belmond should be devoting a good deal of constructive thought. Unlike Pandora, "Judge" Henderson did not give them being by the act of lifting the lid. They've been with us all the time, but very carefully disregarded.

It was generally agreed at the hospital meeting that a portion of the construction cost should be met by a municipal bond issue; and at that point Mr. Henderson got out his crow-bar.

First of all he noted the fact that the municipality of Belmond at present has no bonded indebtedness. He then presented figures to indicate that the limit of bonded indebtedness legally allowable under the existing appraised value of real and personal property and utility holdings in Belmond should be in the vicinity of $150,000.

Vitally important though the prompt construction of a new hospital is, there are other civic improvements that action must be taken on in the rather near future. So, as "Judge" Henderson pointed out, judgment must be exercised in determining how much of its debt potential the city of Belmond can afford to devote to the new hospital. Attorney Henderson mentioned the inadequacy of the existing sewage disposal system, needed expansion of the present water system, urgently needed street improvements. No doubt, without too much heavy thinking, the list could be extended.

The point of the whole matter is this. If Belmond is going to continue to thrive and become the town it could and should be, some planning is critically needed. The point has arrived at which something HAS TO BE DONE to assure the community will have an adequate modern hospital. It's either that -- or no hospital, as last week's editorial made clear.

But waiting for absolute necessity to force the issue on essential improvements is no way for a town to grow. The future should be a primary consideration in present planning if a community is to flourish.

We look forward with complete confidence to a successful campaign to finance the new hospital. It's a pure and simple MUST, and we're certain that the people of Belmond and the surrounding vicinity—which the hospital will serve—will give generously to assure the success of the project.

We're not nearly so confident that proper consideration will be given the other needed improvements — unless a concrete program to plan for their attainment is drafted. Perhaps what we need is a rip-snortin' municipal campaign this coming spring, with the contending factors having as their platforms "Here's what WE will do to see that Belmond becomes a still BETTER place to live." Our present freedom from city debt will doubtless have to go by the boards; but it's an open question if we can afford to remain out of debt any longer. What you NEED, you've got to pay for—be you a municipality or an individual.

So come on you Belmond politicos. Start drawing your battle lines. Start planning your tickets. Start drafting your platforms. Come next March, let's launch Belmond on an era of PLANNED progress.

Let the Punishment Fit the Crime

A favorite ditty of ours from Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado"—"Let the Punishment Fit the Crime"—was brought to mind last week by a piece in the Des Moines Register in regard to an Ames banker who pleaded "no defense" when charged with violating the provisions of the fair labor standards act.

He admitted that two employees of one of the bank's branches had been receiving an average hourly wage of about 34 cents an hour and that he had ordered employees of the parent bank not to show any overtime on their time cards, regardless of the number of hours worked.

At the risk of being considered presumptuous, we'd like to suggest a punishment to fit the crime. Why not just levy a fine on old Moneybags which would reduce his weekly income for a six-month period to $13.60 per week—an average of 34 cents an hour, WITHOUT overtime.

No doubt the gnashing of the gentleman's (the term is used loosely) teeth would be clearly audible from Bangor to Long Beach.

Netherlands Information Bureau, Midwestern Division, Please Note

We're writing this "editorial" because of a slightly tender conscience. Each week we get from "The Netherlands Information Bureau (A Government Agency of The Netherlands) Midwestern Division" about a quarter ream of wastebasket fodder. It is so attractively presented that we always feel that we should use some of it — but it would take a Phi Beta Kappa (which we're NOT) to condense it into usable length.

This intended publicity—which, incidentally, must be costing those Dutchmen a pretty penny—appears in none of the weeklies we receive as exchanges. They're all obviously putting the stuff in the "round file", same as we are. It just isn't adaptable to the use of a small-town newspaper. In other words, the Dutchmen's press agent—intentionally or not—is taking them for an awful ride.

We feel sorry about this, because we like the Dutch and would like to see them get some good out of their well-intended spending. So we just want to announce this: if you want any information about the Pasundan (West Java) Cabinet, or Dr. Mohammed Rum, or Anak Agung Gde Agung, or Dr. Hermen Kartowiastro, or Messrs. Hatta and Mansur — we've got it. It's yours for the asking.

Just to salve our conscience a bit more, we're going to pass on to you the final paragraph of this week's dispatch:

"Little Known Facts About Indonesia: History's most terrific explosion until Hiroshima occurred in 1883, when the Indonesian volcanic island of Krakatau blew up and vanished. Stone, dust and ashes rocketed 17 miles into the sky. Fiffy-foot waves drowned 36,000 people as they roared through the archipelago's thousands of islands. Some authorities believe the same tidal swell reached as far as the English Channel, a distance of 11,000 miles. Krakatau island later reemerged."

There! Now we feel better.

OPEN FORUM

In the past two weeks, articles have appeared in the Open Forum without bearing the signature of the author. In each case, the subject matter was such that the Independent deemed it permissable. We cordially invite expression of opinion in the Open Forum. However, we must request that under usual circumstances the name of the writer appear with the contributed letter.

To The Independent:

I was stunned when I found my 15 year old boy had been smoking for over a year without my knowledge. He is a normal boy and likes to feel he is as important as the other boys his age. I blame his smoking entirely on the fact that, we his parents, have denied him certain privileges that the state laws have prohibited children his age.

For several years, children his age, were allowed to drive motor scooters without permits, and some without the license on the scooter. When he was 14 we secured a school permit to allow him the legal right to run a motor scooter. His friends were then driving cars.

No child in the state of Iowa under 16 years is entitled to drive automobiles alone except to school on a school permit. This law has recently been applied to motor scooters. Since the law has been passed I stand firmly that my boy will set his scooter aside until he is 16. How many more will do the same?

Although my son may grow up feeling underprivileged he will at least look back on his childhood training and say that his parents taught him that smart people don't try to "get by."

I have talked to many older citizens about this matter and they most all say that it was the same when they raised their children. "A few smart ones figure they can get by or some think they are an exception to the law."

So many know, too, that our minors are buying cigarettes in town and don't seem the least alarmed that children under 10 are smoking. I have the understanding that the dealers can't make enough for their license unless they sell to minors. The larger minors sell to the younger. There are, of course, a few parents who don't care, Do you?

I, as a parent, demand that the two laws above mentioned be enforced now to the fullest extent so that my younger children will have a more equal opportunity to grow up among their schoolmates than their older brother has had.

A new extension bulletin, "Meat in Our Meals" by Margaret Kagarice, is now available in the extension office in Clarion, says Mrs. Lettie E. Zuber, county home economist.

Homemakers who had the lesson on meat cookery last year will be especially interested in the bulletin, says Mrs. Zuber, as it gives the time table for broiling and roasting meat and methods for cooking tender and less tender cuts of meat.

A copy of "Meat in Our Meals" can be obtained by mailing a card or stopping in the office.

BELMOND BOOSTERS

The Belmond Boosters held their first meeting of the new club year on Wednesday, Nov. 23, at the Hickory Grove school house. Thirteen members, two leaders, and four visitors and parents were present.

Election of officers was the main business of the evening. Those persons chosen to guide the club through 1950 were: Gilman Soma, president; Bill McLaughlin, vice president; Beverly Lerdal, secretary; Harlan Nassen, treasurer; Carolyn Schleiffarth, historian; and Merlin Halverson, reporter.

Plans were made to contact all prospective members in the township and bring them to the next meeting. It was decided that a Christmas grab bag would be included in the December program.

An interesting movie illustrating the agriculture of Java was shown by Art Hibray, county youth assistant. A lunch was served by the Lerdal family.

Shortage of Ground Water in Iowa Very Unlikely, Geologist Declares

Iowa City, Iowa—Most Iowans don't have to worry about a ground water shortage, State Geologist H. Garland Hershey said recently at the State University of Iowa.

"Every year some wells go dry," he added, "and to the individual or city that is a tragedy. But there has been nothing to prove that the state's available water supply is decreasing through the years."

The prolonged period of scanty rainfall this fall has caused a large number of shallow wells to go dry, but this condition does not exist equally throughout the state.

In the Cedar Rapids and Fort Dodge areas some of the observation wells measured periodically by the geological surveys have shown a decrease of from 1½ to 3 feet in water level as compared with November, 1948.

However, in the Tarkio creek valley in southwestern Iowa, the observation wells show a level of about 2 feet higher than at this time last year. In 1934 and 1936, at the peak of the drought, these southwestern Iowa wells measured 3 to 4 feet lower than their present levels.

Hershey said it is true that there may be less water than there was 20 years ago because there is now a much larger number of persons drawing on the available supply. But as long as rainfall remains essentially the same, the water levels will remain essentially steady, since that is where the shallow ground water comes from.

Iowa is as well off or in a better situation than most other states in the amount available, according to Hershey. The state is one of the biggest per capita users of this source as compared with many states which have to depend more upon surface supplies.

In addition to the many shallow observation wells, the geological surveys also make periodic checks on deep wells throughout the state.

The water levels in deep wells fluctuate much less than shallow wells, Hershey said. Although deep wells seldom actually go dry, the water levels may be lowered because of increased production and changes in the pumping equipment, or additional wells may be needed to remedy the shortage.

Other deep wells, particularly those drilled many years ago, may fail because of corroded casing or other mechanical difficulties. Here a new well drilled to essentially the same depth as the old well will often develop

Other deep wscreaseurj b$ouv an adequate supply.

A deeper well or new equipment may be the answer to any supposed water shortage, because in Iowa the water is there and will continue to be available, according to Hershey.

Iowa Hospital Building Shows Increase During First 10 Months of '49

Iowa City, Iowa—The Iowa Busines Digest for December reported Monday that the value of construction contracts awarded in Iowa during the first 10 months of 1949 was 4.2 per cent lower than in the same months of 1948.

The Digest, published monthly by the State University of Iowa bureau of business and economic research, shows that contracts for hospitals, institutions and other non-residential buildings have increased in the first ten months of this year. They represent 13.3 per cent of all contracts.

At the same time, commercial and industrial building has fallen 42.7 per cent, educational, scientific and public building by 22 per cent and residential building by 25.3 per cent.

Other indicators show farm product prices increased 3 per cent in September over August. But they were still 21 per cent below the September, 1948, level. Prices paid by farmers fell 3 per cent in September under August and were about the same as in September, 1948.

While business incorporations increased 22 per cent in September over the same month in 1948. they had fallen 22 per cent for the first nine months of 1949 compared with the same 1948 period.

Monday, December 12

NEWLY INSTALLED TELEPHONES WILL BE PUT INTO IMMEDIATE SERVICE.

In order that the people in Belmond will better understand how to use their new dial phones, a commercial representative will visit each subscriber and explain any question which he may have about the new service.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR NEW DIAL TELEPHONE USERS

The work and problems in converting the Belmond exchange to dial operation are many. It is expected that the "cut-over" period from the old magneto system to the new dial system will extend over a period of three or four weeks. The conversion will be made on a station by station basis with the rural lines to be converted last.

Considerable testing and calling is required on the part of telephone workers during the "cut-over" period. All subscribers can help them expedite their work by restricting telephone calls to the very minimum. Your patience and cooperation during this period will be greatly appreciated by your telephone company.

As soon as your telephone has been converted to dial you may reach other subscribers of the Belmond exchange by dialing the new telephone numbers as listed in the temporary dial directory. Instructions for dialing are listed on the back cover of the new directory. If the called telephone has not been converted to dial operation you will hear a "busy" signal. This is a signal to replace your receiver. Then in the regular manner dial 211. This will give you the local operator who will ring the number for you or will advise you that the called station has been converted to dial but is busy.

Wouldn't 365 Days A Year Of Christmas Spirit Be Nice?

Each year when Christmas time rolls around, we can't help but reflect what a difference it would make in this squabble-ridden world if people would "practice" the spirit as much as they "preach" it during the Yuletide.

There's simply no denying that there's no thrill on earth to compare with giving. Most of us have found it out in the course of a few isolated personal experiences of true, unselfish generosity. On the other hand, there's quite a number, we fear, who never have felt the thrill of giving with no expectation of return.

We humans have had nineteen and a half centuries to pursue the Christly ideal of "peace on earth and goodwill to men" — and it's mighty discouraging to view the progress we've made. Don't you sometimes suspect that if trust could take the place of suspicion, and generosity the place of greed, the problems of this weary old world would work themselves out like pieces of a jig-saw puzzle falling into place? Not overnight, of course, but with satisfactory rapidity.

The prospect of nations and social classes abandoning their continual bickering in anything like short order is as remote as Christmas falling in July. But as individuals we can give ourselves a break by spreading the Christmas spirit of giving over the entire year.

Such "giving" need not be entirely dependent upon the financial ability to give. A kind word and a thoughtful deed can reflect a generous spirit as truly as a check to a worthy cause; and the feeling of virtue an unselfish act can generate in an ordinary mortal makes the effort well worth while.

All of which leads us to wonder—why don't we do it more often? "Belmond, the town with the Christmas spirit the whole year through." Now there would be a civic slogan well worth owning.

The coal miners remind us of the merchant who sold so many pairs of pants — at cut prices — that he went bankrupt. The miners are now making such good wages that they're going broke —working three days a week to keep coal supplies low enough to stay in a good "bargaining position." Of course, the ultimate end is obvious. In the long run they'll wind up with wages so high they'll have to go on a "no day" week to keep their pay where it's climbed. Then, as they go hungry, they can have the satisfaction of being the highest salaried miners in the history of the coal industry.

We see some future for Princess Margaret Rose of England. Her refusal to be bound by musty traditions and customs is refreshing. The English people do not like some of the things she is doing as a result of her independent spirit, but should welcome an addition to the ruling class who has the courage to think independently and be a human being.

Simple, Snide Sarcasm Adds Up to Poor Politics

Three weeks ago we started publishing the weekly "reports" of the Democratic and Republican state publicity directors as a feature entitled, "In This Corner". We're trying to live up to our title, "The Independent", by presenting both sides—and we hope to goodness SOMEBODY is reading the stuff. We'd hate to think we went to all the trouble of copy-reading those reports and getting them into print simply for our own edification.

Frankly, we sometimes come out of the copy-reading ordeal feeling just a little contaminated. If you would understand why, we invite you to read this week's hogwash by the Democratic publicity director. It's about as fine an example of senseless sarcasm as a person can imagine. And we slashed out some of the "cleverest" bits, at that.

Frank Moorhead, the Demo drumbeater, starts out with a few, well-chosen, snide remarks about Charles R. Fischer, secretary of the Governmental Reorganization commission. He never quite arrives at a specific criticism, but so far as inference is concerned, the paragraphs are definitely "loaded".

Then Moorhead proceeds to denounce the governor, state treasurer, attorney general and state secretary for a trip to New York in November to sign a batch of veterans' bonus bonds bought by a New York banking firm. It seems that, instead of spinning on their heels before the ink was dry and hitting for the corn country, the officials took in a musical comedy and several radio broadcasts. Ror Shame!

Not only that, but — despite the fact broadcast tickets are on all occasions gratis and they even wangled Annie Oakleys for the musical show—the officials' trip cost "somebody" several tohusands of dollars. We don't know enough about such fiscal affairs to say whether or not those bonds could have been shipped to Des Moines for signing. As far as Moorhead's concerned, there's no doubt but what they could have been. He might just as well have flatly stated that the four men lavishly spent several thousand dollars of the taxpayer's hard-earned money on a totally unnecessary trip to the big city—and been done with it. Maybe we're simple-minded, but frankly we think Moorhead was going off half-cocked nd ashowing darned poor taste, to boot.

When he finally descended to poking fun at the Republican floor leader for grammatical errors — as if syntax is a measure of legislative ability—we simply held our nose until we could breath a sigh of relief that we'd reached the end of his report.

This outburst is in no way intended as a criticism of the Democratic party. We're strictly a ballot-scratcher at heart and have yet to see a straight ticket that appealed to us, from top to bottom. We simply maintain that the sort of balderdash Moorhead is putting out this week is poor publicity, poor politics and poor taste. And if its aim is to convince an on-the-fence voter of the Democrats' superioriity and purity of purpose, it's missing its target by a city block.

We see that the 20 per cent excise tax on fur coats, jewelry and similar luxury items may be repealed as an economy measure. To our notion that would be in the same category as a fat woman dropping lettuce from her daily menu as the first step toward reducing.

Obviously, elimination of the luxury tax would be an appeal to the "woiking goil" who has long been indignant over the 20 per cent bite put on her handbag when she contracted for a new rabbit-skin coat on the installment plan, or when she bought a bottle of "Eau de Phew" to jog the boy friend's interest. If the lawmakers really had their ears to the ground, they'd long ago have lopped off the tax on baby oil as a gesture to the Mothers of America. Ask any mother how much of a "luxury" baby oil is!

The game of musical chairs that the steel makers and the union have been playing for the past few years is again in session. The steel companies say they've got to boost the prices if they pay the freight on the new workers' pensions —whereupon the workers will say, "With all that dough you're making, you should be able to stand us to another raise now." And who'll end up paying for those pensions? Well, it WON'T be Santa Claus.

Christmastime Traffic Death Toll Will Depend On Individual Drivers

The state safety department today told Iowa drivers that the traffic death toll this Christmas will be just as good or just as bad as they make it. And if it is bad, it may well be terrible.

If that sounds like unnecessarily grim talk in a happy season, take a look at these contrasting records from department files:

Two years ago, 12 persons killed in Iowa traffic accidents during the holiday period, five on the day before Christmas, two on Christmas and five more on the day following. Last year, not a single traffic death on Christmas day or the day after though were killed on Dec. 24.

"With the exception of Christmas Eve, the record last year is a credit to every Iowa driver and proves how good his performance can be even in the most dangerous traffic conditions," States Safety Commissioner Alfred Kahl said.

That the coming holiday weekend will develop the years most dangerous general traffic situation, department members have little doubt. They point to the possibility of bad weather, the certainty of heavy traffic and the spirit of the season which brings with it a "moral holiday."

"To some persons, Christmas will simply mean that the usual rules of conduct are suspended," Kahl said. "Many otherwise stable drivers will feel free to drive after having a few drinks. For these drivers the chance of having a fatal accident will be 55 times greater than normal."

Kahl reminded drivers that the record indicates the nights just before and just after Christmas are the most dangerous. Anyone planning a trip that will take him on the highways during those times should protect himself by reducing his speed, he said.

Chief S. N. Jesperson of the Iowa highway patrol said all members of the force will be on duty throughout the coming holiday weekend.

Christmas
Love and Faith

by Evan B. Johnson

May love and faith this Christmas Day,
Come to us as we kneel to pray;
Love for mankind's greatest need;
Regardless of another's greed,
He is our brother; no false pride
Sustained our Saviour when He died;
'Twas love and faith that held Him through;
We need such faith to see us through;
Love for our brothers e'er shall be,
The test of Christianity.

FARMHAND DESIRING WORK IN THE SPRING SHOULD SIGN UP NOW

Farmhands who will be interested in farm work next spring are requested to register at the nearest Iowa State Employment Service office, Dennis Crose, Manager stated today. Farmers who will need help during the winter months and during the spring should make their needs known also at this time.

There is a possibility that good farm hands may not be very plentiful and it is a definite advantage to the farmer to list his needs early, Crose said, as the farmer will have a good opportunity in securing an experienced farm hand.

Farmhands who are experienced with power-driven farm machinery and in the care of livestock will be very much in demand during February and March, Crose added. Even if these farm workers are working temporarily during the winter months in the city they should advise the local employment office, 719 Des Moines street in Webster City, that they will be available for spring work.

It is planned to hold farm clinics weekly beginning in February provinding a sufficient number of farmhands register and if farmers make their needs known prior to January 1.

Farm clinics were quite successful last year, Crose said, with 78 farmhands being placed. There was quite a shortage of farmhands last spring with requests for over 200 received. It is anticipated the requests for farm help will be nearly as high this spring.

It is important that farmers and farmhands make their demands known as soon as possible so their needs can be met at the proper time.

Newspapers Win Praise Of Motor Club of Iowa For Aiding Road Safety

A resolution praising newspapers throughout the state for calling attention to the seriousness of traffic accidents involving drivers beween the ages of 15 and 25 has been passed by the directors of the Motor Club of Iowa.

G. J. Timmerman of Davenport, president of the Motor Club, stated that framed safety commendation certificates will be presented to publishers of daily and weekly newspapers who have assisted in the crusade against unnecessary traffic accidents involving teen age drivers.

He pointed out that largely due to their support of the club's safety program, driver training courses are now a part of the regular high school curriculum in more than 100 Iowa cities and towns.

"Establishing standard driver training courses for high school students in every community in the state is our goal," he declared. "This will reduce the number of needless accidents involving young drivers and will probably halt the growing policy of insurance companies to refuse to insure youthful drivers."

IOWA DEMOCRATS CLAIM---

By FRANK MOORHEAD
Publicity Director
Democratic State Committee

A prominent member of the state legislature asked a question which we could not answer, so we pass it along: Is the $6,500-a-year executive secretary of the Governmental Reorganization commission, Charles R. Fischer, governor pro tem?"

We never thought of him in this light before. We knew he had held a lot of Republican state offices at good salaries: assistant director of the budget, superintendent of securities, insurance commissioner, and that he was campaign manager for Governor Beardsley; but that's as far as our knowledge went.

We have lately been told that he is being given credit for naming the Republican ticket for 1950: Beardsley for vice president (maybe even for president), Hickenlooper for senator, "Buster" Lynes for lieutenant governor.

They do say, though, that this Governmental Reorganization commission, made up of nine Republican politicians appointed by Governor Beardsley, is suggesting all sort of changes in the state government, so maybe there is a "governor pro tem" and maybe Fischer is IT.

All we know is what we read in the papers and what people tell us and what we dig up ourselves.

As announced exclusively in the Democratic News Letter of Nov. 22, Governor Beardsley, State Treasurer Grimes, Attorney General Larson and State Secretary Synhorst went to New York to sign veterans' bonus bonds at the height of the theatrical season. They took enough time off from their official duties to see a musical comedy and several radio broadcasts.

Free tickets were provided them for New York's current hit "South Pacific," but their appearance at the Majestic Theatre, on 44th Street, west of Broadway, was a flop compared with the appearance there the same week of Vice President Barkley and his bride.

For all "South Pacific" was concerned they might just as well have signed the bonus bonds in Des Moines and saved somebody several thousand dollars.

The third batch of veterans' bonus bonds is to be sold January 5th. Wouldn't it be nice if some New Orleans bank bought these, so the four Republican Brass Hats from the state house could get another free trip and take in Mardi Gras?

The 1949-50 Iowa Official Register, better known as the Red Book, is a fine-appearing volume. Tom Purcell did a good job of editing.

The watchful eyes of the editor of the Unionist and Public Forum of Sioux City caught what he considers poor grammatical construction in the Red Book's article "The Indians in Iowa," page 179:

"The tribe has a tractor, but uses horses for farm work and there are cows, hogs and chickens."

We couldn't get awfully "het up" over this, but it may be we're no authority. It sounds O. K., compared with the language used by the Republican floor leader in the last legislature: "We done that." "That $35,000 was broke down." There was two men with us." "Have their votes throwed out."

Getting back to the grammar in the Red Book, about the Indians, we find the same words appearing in the 1947-48 Red Book edited by Bob Jarnagin, now on the staff of the University of Illinois, and in the 1945-46 Red Book, edited by the late Lou Gardner of the Republican State Central Committee.

It seems like the Republicans can't drop anything, no matter how poor or bad it is.

By GERALD BOGAN

Publicity Director
Republican State Committee

Much has been said and written in recent weeks concerning "scare words." Those who warn against wild spending, unbalanced budgets, deficits and the drift toward state socialism are accused of "trying to scare the people."

If a person's home in burning down and an alert citizen turns in a fire alarm and saves the home is he a demagogue? Yet, that's what some would want us to believe.

A news release from Democratic national headquarters, attempting to justify the unbalanced budget, alluded to "fixed charges" in government spending. While admitting there would be a deficit of 5.5 billion dollars and that the budget was up 1.6 billion from January to October, the news release listed budgetary items which included "proposed legislation", and 25 per cent in a category of "all other programs," which it did not identify.

Then, adds the news release, "when you hear some demagogue talking loudly and wildly of lopping billions off the federal budget ask him where he would save billions without endangering the national welfare."

Who are some of the "demagogues?"

Sen. Harry Byrd, Virginia Democrat, urged that federal spending be cut by seven billion dollars to avoid "destruction of our form of government." He added that the cut could be achieved "with out superhuman effort principally by foregoing nonessential increases and elimination of administrative inefficiency, extravagance and waste."

Would such a program of economy "endanger the national welfare?"

Former President Herbert Hoover, who has warned that mounting federal costs would result in higher taxes and inflation, said recently that two billion dollars could be saved by adopting the non-partisan Hoover Commission recommendations for re-organization of the government.

Do these sound like demagogic utterances? Are these "scare words?"

James Byrnes and Dr. Edwin Nourse, both former Truman advisers, have warned that continued deficit spending and uncontrolled federal expenditures would lead to state socialism.

Are these "demagogues?"

Three Democratic senators who just returned from Europe recommended a slash of one billion dollars in Marshall plan spending. One of the senators said the Marshall plan has done "a wonderful job," but "too much has been spent already."

The Iowa Farm Bureau recently went on record as saying "we view with concern the alarming increase in the scope and proportions of governmental activities
The budget has increased in the last 20 years from 3.6 billions to over 42 billions of dollars annually. The nation- al debt is now approximately $7,500 per family. Excessive government not only curtails liberty, but also requires a vast force of unproductive people, thus impedes our progress toward higher standards of living."

Not exactly demagogic utterances, are they?

Those who are sounding the "fire alarms", are from every walk of life, from every facet of our economy. But there is no indication that there will be any halt in excessive government spending by the Washington planners. Instead, they want more socialistic legislation including the Brannan farm plan to socialize agriculture and the misnamed Compulsory Health Insurance bill to socialize medicine. The cost of these have not been estimated. The sponsors are

Handicapped Iowans Sell Hand-Made Articles At Hobby and Craft Shows

The fictional courage of Tiny Tim in Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol" has been matched and beaten in Iowa this year by a group of handicapped persons. W. I. Griffith, president of the Iowa Society for Crippled Children and Adults, announced today that checks totaling $2,032.95 have been mailed to 59 handicapped persons for articles that were sold through two craft and hobby shows held in Dubuque and Sioux City.

These articles, ranging from rugs to hand-made jewelry, were made by handicapped persons in their own homes. They were displayed and sold under the joint auspices of the Iowa Society for Crippled Children and Adults and the State Medical Society Auxiliary, and their county units.

In all, 1,582 different articles were sold through the two craft and hobby shows or over three-fourths of all items displayed. The top amount earned by any one individual was $158. This money, in many instances, represents the only earnings of these handicapped persons, since craft and hobby shows are their only opportunity to earn money.

Griffith said, "The money is, of course, most welcome to these people at this time of year but even more important than the money is the fact that they earned it themselves by their own efforts."

By George - Dick - Pat

By closig hour Saturday even g, Jack Meints was beginning wonder if he had a friend in e world. Whichever came first, e chicken or the egg, Jack was a mind to wish the whole icious circle had never been arted. Eggs, which the day be re were bringing his customers 3 cents, on Saturday were worth nly 20 cents. It wasn't Jack's ault, at all, but some of his cus omers apparently felt that he ad a hand in the conspiracy.

—M-S—

Three months ago last Tuesday, Jack was paying 44 cents for cackle-berries. Since then the price had been dropping by gradual stages, a few cents at a time, as the large produce buyers kept a wary eye on the time when the current support price of 35 cents per dozen for powdered eggs was to end, Jan. 1. As their stocks piled up and the length of time left to dry their hen fruit diminished, their enthusiasm for eggs sunk lower and lower.

—M-S—

Then came last Saturday's "E-Day", and the egg market, competing with itself, "laid an egg." Jack has been in the produce business for 20 years, come next month, and he admitted with a head waggle that he'd never seen anything to match the six-cent drop in prices last weekend. Some of his buyers, from large packing plants, were predicting the first of the week that the farmers' egg price would go clear to 15 cents before it leveled off. Jack's fearful that if that happens, he won't have a farm friend still speaking to him.

—M-S—

Instead of taking it out on the poor, innocent produce men, maybe the farmers should spend a little time contemplating what the situation would be if all price supports were to go by the board at one time. Of course, Uncle Sam will undoubtedly do something to bolster the egg market. Once a controlled economy goes into effect, it's about like taking drugs. The system's got to have the "dope" or a bad case of jitters will follow as the night the day.

—M-S—

Yes, you can just about count on it — the government will be back in the egg market soon after the first of the year. With something like the equivalent of 119 million dozen eggs already stashed away in egg powder, Uncle Sam needs more hen fruit like he needs a hole in the head. But if he doesn't get in there and buy, egg prices would settle down to normal supply-and-demand levels, and then the farmers would be mad at Uncle S. instead of Jack and his fellow produce operators . . . We're sure there's a pretty good object lesson mixed up in all of this somewhere. But you figure it out; we're too tired. Anyway—please, folks, don't be mad at Jack. He couldn't help it.

—M-S—

While on the subject of eggs, here's another story — with a happier ending. Three years ago, through arrangements made by Henry Larsen during a trip to Denmark, Pheasant-fancier George Kyser received a clutch of 56 Danish pheasant eggs. Only two hatched, one of them producing a handsome cock

Last summer George began to lose interest in his pheasant flock (at the time numbering over 100 birds) and began to methodically reduce it via the dinner table. When George was finally faced with butchering his European import in order to eat pheasant, he found he just couldn't do it. So last Saturday he turned the old patriach loose to take his chances with the local hunters in the seasons to come.

The Danish visitor is quite similar to the ring-necks familiar in these parts, but considerably lighter in color. So if you hunters see quite a number of birds next fall that look like they'd faded in the sun, you'll know that the stranger in our midst had a busy summer.

—M-S—

The train layout in Ellis Elliott's store window has had many a male adult drooling with envy. What "Dad" wouldn't love to be able to provide "Sonny" with such a train set to play with?

—M-S—

When we saw that slick Mercury sports coupe in the Belmond Auto company window all done up in cellophane, we had visions of "blue smoke" clouding up the place as the package-wrappers went about their labors. (We always get hot under the collar getting normal-sized parcels properly wrapped, and figured that getting a celophane kimono on a car would be a king-sized headache.) It was rather a let-down to learn that the transparent jacket was pre-cut and pre-taped to size and the wrapping process only involved lowering it over the auto.

Just for meanness, we'd like to provide the Belmond Auto force with some raw sheets of cellophane and rolls of scotch tape and see them duplicate the job, starting from scratch. We still think THAT job would be a humdinger.

Mrs. J. R. Lillebo, Raynold and La Vae and Linda Pesch were Sunday dinner guests at the Lois Hammond home.

The usual Sunday program will be altered at St. John Lutheran, also. There will be no Sunday School, but the children will receive attendance credit by joining in the Christmas Festival service at 10:00 a. m.

St. Olaf Lutheran church, northwest of Belmond, has selected Friday evening for its annual Christmas Sunday School program, which will have as its theme, "God's Gift of Love." It will start at 7:30 p. m. and will feature the customary exercises, recitations and singing.

State Making New Fishin' Pond Out of East Lake

Sportsmen of this vicinity should have a new spot to try their fishing abilities in the relatively near future, when work being done by the State Conservation Commission at East lake—just north of the county line—begins to bear fruit.

The lake, five miles west of Goodell, was drained last week and the east channel blasted out by a conservation crew. The lake will be left dry until next July, allowing vegetation to grow.

In mid-summer the lake will be permitted to re-fill and will be stocked with bass, perch and bluegills. With good, nearby fishing sites pretty much at a premium, high hopes are held by anglers in the East lake neighborhood for the future of their new "fishin' pond."

Public Invited to Help Set Up Planning Group

Preliminary plans for launching the drive to construct a new hospital in Belmond have been developed as far as possible without establishment of a permanent organization to direct further activity, according to Clark McNeal, chairman of the temporary hospital committee. Consequently the evening of Monday, Jan. 9, has been set as the date for a public meeting in Belmond high school auditorium to name a committee to take future responsibility for the hospital project.

This is the same date that had been selected by the Adult Education committee for organizing its program for the year and registering members of the 1950 classes

Chairman Harold Simerson generously has agreed—after consulting with members of his committee—to postpone the start of the Adult Education classes for one week; so registration and the first class sessions are now planned for Monday, Jan. 16.

After hearing an outline of the reasons for building a new hospital in Belmond and a general review of the problems that must be faced in accomplishing this goal, those present at the meeting will be asked to elect a permanent planning board for the hospital project.

On this board will be representatives from Goodell, Alexander, Rowan, Meservey and Kanawha and from the townships in the Belmond trade area, as well as from Belmond proper. To expedite selection of this board, members of the temporary committee have devoted many hours of study to the matter of possible board personnel and will have a tentative list to offer before the meeting for consideration. Nominations will also be open from the floor.

It is intended that the members of the board will either select a chairman from their group, or—if none feel they can give the time that overall direction of the project would require — seek someone from outside their number to serve in the capacity of chairman.

"We keenly hope that there will be a good-sized representations at the mass meeting from all of the near-by communities and the adjacent rural area, as well as from Belmond itself," Mr. McNeal says.

"This hospital will be constructed to fulfill the needs of the entire territory surrounding Belmond and to assure the finest of modern facilities. It may technically be a 'municipal' hospital, if the permanent board endeavors to seek a municipal bond issue to partially pay the construction cost; but in reality it must be a 'community' project in the truest sense of the word.

"To properly meet the demands of the entire area it it will be called upon to serve, the project must be much more ambitious than would be necessary to provide facilities adequate for Belmond alone."

Members of the temporary committee have been highly gratified with the amount of favorable comment the proposed project has evoked. While this committee has taken great care not to infringe upon any of the prerogatives or responsibilities that should rightfully fall to the permanent board, its members, have expressed complete willingness to cooperate with the elected board members in every way they can.

Santa Letter From-the-Heart Wins Eight-Year-Old First Prize Money

Russell Ver Helst Gets Top Award of 15 Dollars

Winner of the $15 first prize in the Santa Letter contest, which closed last night, was eight-year-old Russell Ver Helst of Goodell. Judge of the contest was Mrs. Viva Parker, fourth grade teacher in the Belmond schools.

Second prize winner, who will receive $7.50 in cash, was Janeal Bayliss of Belmond, also age eight. Third best letter was judged to be that of a little seven-year-old farm girl, Cynthia Baker. Fourth was awarded to Larry Esk, a local youngster, for his very neat letter; and fifth went to Donna Jean Walters. Larry and Donna are both age nine.

Russell's first-prize letter, written on Dec. 2, was as follows:

Dear Santa Claus
My name is Russell. I am eight years old and in the third grade. I dont care so much for toys for Christmas but what I really would like to have is my little deaf-blind sister home to spend Christmas with us. She is going to school in Council Bluffs and its a long ways from home. So Santa, thats what I want most for Christmas this year.
Yours Truly
Russell Ver Helst

Donald Thompson Given Degree in Engineering

Ames, Iowa — Donald H. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley M. Thompson, 404 Second Avenue, S. E., Belmond, was among the 400 graduates who received degrees and certificates at Iowa State college Saturday.

Donald received the bachelor of science degree in general engineering.

Graduation exercises marked the end of the fall quarter at the college. The group was a record-breaker in size for this time of year.

Starting the first of the year, Donald will be employed as a junior engineer by the Belmond engineering firm of Rowat and Murray.

Junior Auxiliary Girls Send Boxes to Hospital

The Yuletide will be made a bit brighter for several inmates of the state hospital at Woodward this year through the efforts of the local Junior American Legion Auxiliary.

Enough gifts were gathered by the 10 young members of the organization to fill two large boxes with gayly gift-wrapped packages. The girls included in the boxes additional gift wrappings for use of the inmates who might be sending presents home, and ornaments to decorate the institution's Christmas tree.

Sending of the boxes was made possible by funds derived from a bake sale the Junior Auxiliary held recently. The girls realized $9.80 from the baked goods.

FARIS RETURNS HOME

Supt. Don Faris had sufficiently recovered from the injuries he sustained in an auto accident four weeks ago yesterday that he was released from Steele Memorial hospital last Saturday. Mr. Faris will still be confined for some time because of the pelvis fracture he received, but is no doubt supremely happy to be back with his family for the holidays.

"Dear Santa," Writes Goodell Youngster--

Just My Little Sister at Home, That's What I Want For Christmas

--And Little Deaf-Blind Tot Joins Family

RUSSELL
This will be a happy Christmas for Russell because Santa Claus has answered his heartfelt wish that his little deaf-blind sister be able to come home for the holidays. She's been at the Council Bluffs school for the deaf.

While the writers of many of the Santa Claus letters which have been appearing in the Independent may find a goodly portion of their orders unfilled on Christmas day, there's one little fellow who's having his request to St. Nick filled to a "T."

The lucky youngster is Russell Ver Helst, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mell Ver Helst, who live northeast of Goodell. Russell informed Santa:

"I don't care so much for toys for Christmas but what I really would like to have is my little deaf-blind sister home to spend Christmas with us."

At the time Russell wrote his letter it appeared that his sister, Virginia, wouldn't be able to get home from the state school for the deaf at Council Bluffs to spend the holidays with her family. But afterward, arrangements were made for the handicapped child to make most of the trip with a teen-age deaf schoolmate —and last Friday Mr. and Mrs. Ver Helst went to Ames to bring her the rest of the way home.

Little, blonde-haired Virginia has been deaf and had defective sight since birth. She can't talk, never having been able to hear; but she is a pleasant, good-natured tot in spite of fate's unkindness to her.

When she was 14 months old, a Mason City specialist operated on her eyes, which had been totally sightless because of congenital cataracts. The operation succeeded in giving her some vision, and further surgery at the state university hospital at Iowa City a year later accomplished further improvement in her sight.

Flashlights have been her favorite plaything ever since she attained partial vision, says Virginia's mother.

"I don't know how many batteries she's worn out," Mrs. Ver Helst remarked. "She seems to get a real pleasure out of the brightness of the light, so we've always seen that had a flashlight to entertain her."

Virginia and Russell are real pals; his affection for his unfortunate younger sister is genuine and deep. Both enjoy romping together and one of their favorite diversions is "playing horse", with Russell on all fours and Virginia astride his back. Russell bucks and rears and Virginia, squealing with delight, holds on for dear life.

Specialists at the Council Bluffs school are encouraged about Virginia's hearing and sight, both. Audiometer tests have led them to believe she has at least a vestige of hearing which they may be able to capitalize on later with some form of hearing aid.

And as her instructor picks up colored objects, Virginia now demonstrates that she can distinguish between various hues by picking up an object which is colored like the instructor's.

Mrs. Ver Helst says the child's vision is sufficiently good that they never have had to worry about her running into things, since she's been old enough to walk.

It was not until last summer that the superintendent of the school at Council Bluffs heard, in some manner, about Virginia. In the past the school has not endeavored to train children with the double handicap of poor vision and hearing.

However, at the same time

VIRGINIA
Always intrigued by bright lights, Virginia was looking right into the sun when this recent snapshot was taken. Her eyes are still so insensitive, due to a congenital deformity, that the glare causes her no discomfort.

Allisons Receive Word Of Two Deaths in Family

The holiday season was saddened for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allison of this community by deaths that have occurred in each of their families within a three-week period.

Mr. Allison just lately learned of the death of his brother Charles, 44, of Salida, Colo., who passed away on Nov. 21 after only a few days illness. The message in regard to his death was received too late for the Allisons to attend the funeral.

Last week Mrs. Allison was called to Ackley for the funeral of her oldest brother, Herman Abbas, who died of a heart attack. The funeral was held a week ago Monday.

Another Kind of Courage Has It All Over Standard Heroics

By BILLY ROSE

Recently, a doctor in Maine sent me a story about a courageous kid and, unless I'm getting soft in the heart, it's the most touching tale of heroism I've come across in a long time . . . .

Some time ago, the medico got a hurry-up telephone call to come out to a small summer camp 20 miles west of Bangor. There, half an hour later, he examined a six-year-old girl and found that one of her legs was broken and that she had lost a lot of blood from a gash in her thigh.

The story, as he got it from the mother, was that the girl and her brother, aged 7, had gotten into the loft of an abandoned barn and, when a rotted plank gave way, she had fallen, broken her leg and ripped her thigh on a piece of rusty farm machinery.

Billy Rose

As the doctor was cauterizing the cut and setting the leg, the boy—his name was Pete—kept watching from the doorway with worried interest.

"Is Molly going to be all right?" he asked when the splints were in place.

"She's lost a lot of blood," said the doctor, "but if she gets past the crisis tonight, everything will be okay."

"What's a crisis?"

"It's—well, I guess it's the time when a person is sickest."

"When people lose a lot of blood, do they die?"

"Sometimes. You see, the heart needs a certain amount to keep going. In a way, it's like the motor of a car—it stops running if it doesn't get gasoline."

"I see," said Pete.

LATER THAT NIGHT, the little girl's pulse began to slow up.

"I'm afraid your daughter needs an immediate transfusion," the doctor told the father, "but there's a complication. She has an unusual type of blood, and I doubt whether the blood bank in Bangor has it in stock."

"Her brother has the same type," said the father. "I know, because the pediatrician who examined the kids last year told me so . . . ."

Pete looked startled a minute later when his dad asked him if he would give up a cup of blood to help his sister get well.

"How can I?" the boy asked.

"The doctor does it with a little rubber tube."

"Can I think about it?"

"Sure," said the father, "but don't take too long."

Pete went to his room, and his parents heard him close the door. Five minutes later, he was back, looking very earnest. "All right," he said.

WHEN IT WAS over, the doctor bandaged the boy's arm and told him to lie down and take it easy. But instead, the kid went out on the porch and, when his father found him there at midnight, his face was white and his fingers were clenched.

"What's the matter, Pete?"

"Oh, nothing," said the boy.

"Look here," said his father. "There's something going on in that head of yours. What is it?"

"I was wondering how long it will take."

"How long will what take?"

"How long it will take me to die."

"To do what?"

"To die," repeated the boy. "It's like the doctor said—when there isn't enough blood, the motor stops running."

"I see," said the father. "When you gave your sister a cup of blood, you figured you were going to die yourself."

"Sure," said Pete. "That's why I wanted to think it over."

Broncos Avenge Loss To Klemme With 39-31 Win

Greenfield Sees Action; Trager Again Top Scorer

Belmond evened the count with Klemme here Friday evening taking the Shamrocks into camp by a 39-31 score to avenge the 31-21 loss dealt the Broncos in their opening game.

The contest marked the return to action of a star on each squad. Keith "Sonny" Greenfield was in play for the first time this year, his knee that was injured in football having been successfully operated on several weeks ago. "Red" Schmidt, the Shamrocks' capable center, was back in harness for the first time since sickness sidelined him a month ago.

It was a satisfying victory for the Broncos for they proved they've come a good way since that initial defeat. They went into a quick 8-1 lead, after Klemme had scored the opening point, and from that time on their advantage was never less than five points.

At the one-quarter mark the Shamrocks trailed 15 to 6. The second period started slowly, a corner shot by Sid Swenson representing the only tally in the first five minutes. Toward the end of the period things picked up a bit, but Klemme was able to diminish its deficit only one point as the halftime found the coun 19-11.

The last half was a standoff, with both teams netting 20 points. The Shamrocks were never able to creep up closer than eight points, however, and the Broncs kept control of the situation at all times.

In the third quarter Belmond extended its margin to enter the final stanza with a 31-20 lead. Klemme cut the edge to eight points again, 33-25, midway in the last period only to have Duane Trager tally a couple from the hole position to set the Broncs in front 37-25 at the automatic time-out.

Schmidt and Merlin Brinkman counted two quick fielders to re-establish the eight-point margin and the teams traded points from there on out to leave the final score 39-31.

Don Faris and Roland Kinseth gave the visitors fits with their long set shots, accounting for 10 and six points, respectively, in this fashion. However, it was Trager — with 11 points — who topped the scorers.

All the Belmond boys showed up to good advantage, most of the time, and Greenfield demonstrated that it won't be long before he'll be giving Bronco foes plenty of trouble again.

Brinkman, Calvin Josten and Dick Kaduce each tallied seven points for the losers. Schmidt, while not up to his usual scoring standard, played a bang-up floor game when he was in the line-up.

The Belmond freshman-sophomore team made short shrift of the junior Shamrocks in their curtain-raiser, winning decisively, 26 to 11. The visitors never were in the running. Belmond's edge was 10-4 at the half, and 20-9 at the three-quarter mark.

Dave Busick led the locals in scoring with seven points, trying Laurence Baack of Klemme for top honors. Helland made six for the winners, Severseike five, Meyer four, Loats two and Madsen one.

TOP BOWLING SCORES BY DAVE ROBERTSON AND "BILLY" STOKKE

With seven weeks of bowling now on the books, the pace-setters have pretty well established themselves. At the top of the individual lists are Dave Robertson, member of the Minnesota Woolen team, who has the top game for men with a 248; and Billy Stokke of the Thompson Hybrid quintet, whose 202 of last week leads the women.

Best men's series to date is the 653 rolled by Paul Bohning of Dutch's Clothiers team in the Inter-City league. Mary Gordon's 492, racked up for Belmond Greenhouse, is the best three-games series turned in by a woman. "Doc" Larson's 608, for Dutch's Mainstreeter team, and Alice Busick's 465, for the greenhouse, are the second best series.

The 2651 series by Dutch's Mainstreeters and their 931 single game are the best team efforts in the men's leagues. The Belmond Greenhouse series of 2030 and high game of 697 are the leading women's team scores. All of these top marks were made last week.

If there were a "senior division" among the bowlers, Hugh McManus would take the honors hands down. "Mac", who must have gotten in his three score years and 10 some little while back, rolled a 211 last week. Many of the younger bowlers 'way less than half Hugh's age would give plenty to be able to topple the pins in such fashion.

DESIRE TO WIN

Do you want to win? We want boys and girls with a DESIRE TO WIN and not want any part of an educational system that teaches boys and girls to be good losers. The players aren't turned out in the world to be losers so why should they lose their games.

The players should be taught to play a clean game and to win it. There is a vast difference between a gracious and a good loser. The latter merely passes it off as another defeat but a gracious loser shakes hands with his foe and then assures himself it'll be different the next time.

The players learn to be good citizens to their community as well as a good player on their team. Through the game the player learns good sportsmanship, he meets many other players and makes friends with athletes from other schools.

It takes co-operation on the parents' part as well as on the players. The parents have to keep the player in training and make him get home on time. The parent should keep his diet balanced and nourishing. The parents' part in an athlete's life is most important.

The desire to win, on any athlete's part, influences the individual's aspect on his scholastic work. In order to play on an athletic team, the player must maintain a C average. The instilled Desire to Win will then make you a better student.

If we are going out for sports let's set our whole heart, and ability in the game. Let's play a clean game and win it, and be a gracious loser. Do you have the Desire to Win?

What's Doin' In Music

This week I am going to interview the bass section from the mixed chorus.

There isn't anybody from the Freshman class that sings bass. Five boys from the sophomore class, are: Kenny Norem, Preston Gruis, Donald Rector, Larry Bobst and Peter Van Gerpen. All of the boys have sung in the mixed chorus for two years.

Roger Modderman and Richard Kaduce are the only two boys from the junior class that sing bass. Both Roger and Richard have been in the mixed chorus for two years.

Two of the senior boys are in the mixed chorus. They are Duane Blau and Gordon Paullus. Both of these boys sing bass. When Gordon was a freshman he sang bass in the mixed chorus and the double quarter. Next week I will interview another group so be looking for my article.

Home Economics News

The first year Home Ec. class is having very tasty meats lately. They tried to roast meat. The roast meat was like chewing rubber bands, it didn't taste exactly like meat either. The meat was supposed to be medium done. The steak they made caught afire in the Home Ec. room. Better luck next time.

The advanced class is making a model house, when they get through with this they will start in on kniting, then on into the second semester when they will study sewing. Good luck girls.

SENIOR NEWS

In government they are doing most of their work in the American Observer. They are taking a chapter at a time to catch up in the book.

In speech they are working on the different types of speeches and the five different purposes.

In business arithmetic they are working on subtraction and addition of decimals. They have just finished multiplication and division of fractions.

Wednesday everybody will be coming to school looking their best for they will be having their pictures taken.

JUNIOR NEWS

As usual the Juniors are having trouble in getting their lessons but somehow they seem to get by with a few extra study periods.

In typing we have started taking ten minute time tests and are getting along fairly well. We are also trying to type letters which can only have two errors. Some of us are using up almost all the paper in the schoolhouse to get it done.

In speech and government we are studying the American Observer and lessons in our government book.

In speech we are still studying the construction of speeches.

FRESHMAN NEWS

In English the freshmen are now reviewing transitive verbs, direct and indirect objects. Their next unit is going to be on letter writing.

In algebra the freshmen have finished graphs and we are having another review and maybe a short test. Our next unit will be on equations with unknowns.

In science we are studying health and many of Pasteur's important discoveries. It really is quite interesting. The class seems to be doing well in all its subjects.

7th and 8th Grade News

This week we are introducing the history book of the 7th and 8th grade. Both classes use the same book.

The name of the book is "This is America's Story", written by Howard B. Wilder, Robert P. Ludlum and Harriet McCune Brown.

The book is divided into ten units starting with the discovery of America and moving right up to present day America.

At present the 7th grade is working on chapter 10, unit 3. The title of chapter 10 is "How Did the Spirit of Independence Affect Canada and Latin America."

The 8th grade is on chapter 22, unit 7, the title of which is "The United States Becomes a Great Industrial Nation."

Christmas is drawing near so we have decorated our Christmas tree. On our bulletin board we have a winter scene we made in art. Also, we have started Christmas posters.

We fifth graders are learning more about fractions. In science we are starting a chapter of how heating and cooling changes materials.

In sixth arithmetic we have started adding three fractions.

In sixth language we are working with subjects and predicates of sentences.

3rd and 4th Grade News

Everyone is getting excited and anxious for our Christmas program.

The children have finished a poster of "The Three Wisemen". It looks very nice.

Last Friday we decorated our tree. It has all blue lights on it.

The third grade is looking forward to finishing their reading books by Christmas vacation.

2nd Grade News

In numbers we are learning our subtraction combinations. Eight have been learned in the last few days.

Our room is now decorated for Christmas. The bulletin boards have scenes of "Santa and his Sleigh", "Little Fir Tree in the Woods", and "Shepherds in the Fields." We also have our Christmas tree up and we have made many other small decorations.

There were 23 people who received an A in spelling last week.

Kindergarten News

We have been having lots of fun decorating our Christmas tree. We strung popcorn for it. The children were very thrilled to see the string of lights lit. Each of us helped to put tinsel on the tree.

Each of us has our stocking hung on the fireplace and are hoping Santa will fill them.

We have been enjoying stories about Santa and his reindeer.

We have been practicing for the coming Christmas program.

HARDWOOD HI-LITES

This week I have again two interviews. From the girls basketball team I have picked No. 11 which is Denise Ainslie. Denise is 5' 3" and is 17 years old. Denise is one of the seniors this year and the one and only girl in this class. Denise has been active is basketball for four years and has earned two letters. In her freshmen year she played forward, during the last three years she has played guard. Good luck Denise in your last year, and also in the years following.

The other interview is with a boy from the senior class. He is 6' in height, weighs 142 pounds, is 16 years old. He has played [illegible] three years and earned two letters in these three years. Forward has always been his position on the court, during these three years. He has played in seven games, his total scores has been 58 points, which puts him as top scorer on the boys' team. If you haven't already guessed, his number is 13 on the court, which only leaves one solution, that it is Duane Blau.

Whereas, there is now in the hands of the treasurer the sum of $34,288.49, credited to the General County fund, and

Whereas, there is now in the hands of the treasurer the sum of $8,415.38, credited to the State Institution fund, and

Whereas, it is desired to transfer $6,000.00 from the General County fund to the State Institution fund, for the following reasons: There being current liabilities totalling $13,401.21, and a balance of $8,415.38 with insufficient expected revenue, the transfer is to cover the resulting deficiency, and

Whereas, all laws relating to municipalities have been complied with,

Now therefore, be it resolved by the Board of Supervisors of Wright County, Iowa, subject to the approval of the State Comptroller, that said sum of $6,000.00 be, and the same is hereby ordered transferred from the General County fund to the State Institution fund, and the County Auditor is directed to correct his books accordingly and to notify the treasurer of this transfer, accompanying the notification with a copy of this resolution and the record of its adoption.

Be it remembered on this, the 16th day of November, 1949, the Board of Supervisors of Wright County, Iowa, met in adjourned session for the purpose of filing and considering a supplemental estimate for levies of taxes for future years for the State Institution Fund of said Wright County. LEVIES			EXPENDITURES
Year Levied	Year Collected	Amount	Year	Amount
1949	1950	$15,000.00	1950	$15,000.00

Thereafter said estimate was duly considered by the Board of Supervisors and being fully advised they find that a date of hearing on said estimate should be fixed and it does fix the 5th day of December, 1949, at the hour of 10:30 o'clock A. M., of said day as the date of hearing, said hearing to be had at the Courthouse in Clarion, Wright County, Iowa. The County Auditor was directed to publish the estimate and the notice of hearing as required by law in the Wright County Monitor, Belmond Independent, and Eagle Grove Eagle, published in Clarion, Eagle Grove, and Belmond, Iowa, publication to be for one insertion and to be at least ten days prior to the date set for hearing.

The foregoing action was taken on motion by Trowbridge, seconded by Fisher, said motion being unanimously carried.

Motion was made by Fisher, seconded by Smith, that T. J. Morrow, Dows, Iowa, from Franklin County; Melvin Boone and family, c/o Homer Wicks, Eagle Grove, Iowa, from Guthrie County; Ralph Ankeny and family, Belmond, Iowa, from Buffalo Center; Clifford Ayers and family, Belmond, Iowa, from Washington County; Vere Jenison and family, Belmond, Iowa, from Hancock County; Lawrence Larson and family, Woolstock, Iowa, from Hamilton County; Martin Harms and family, Renwick, Iowa; Justin Lowenberg and family, Belmond, Iowa, from Cerro Gordo County; Simon Negrete and family, Belmond, Iowa. Motion carried.

It was moved by Trowbridge, seconded by Smith, that, in order to cover outstanding warrants, and to provide a sinking fund for repairs and other expenses, special assessments be levied against Wright County Drainage Districts, by percentages of original cost, as follows:

Drainage District No. 136	4%
Drainage District No. 144	5%
Drainage District No. 209	15%
Drainage District No. 210	10%

Motion carried.

Be it remembered that on this, the 5th day of December, 1949, the Board of Supervisors of Wright County, Iowa met in regular session for the purpose of hearing upon the supplemental estimate of levies of taxes for future years as filed with this Board. There was present T. J. Henry, A. W. Smith, H. C. Pinkham, Geo. S. Trowbridge, and Wm. Fisher, a quorum as required by law. Thereupon the Board investigated and found that the notice of the time and place of hearing had, according to law and as directed by the Board, been published on the 24th day of November, 1949, in the Wright County Monitor, Eagle Grove Eagle, and Belmond Independent, newspapers published in Clarion, Eagle Grove, and Belmond of said County, and that the affidavit of publication thereof was on file with the County Auditor. Thereafter and on said day the estimate was taken up and considered and taxpayers heard for and against said supplemental estimate as follows: No taxpayers appeared nor objections filed.

Thereafter and after hearing all taxpayers desiring to be heard, the Board took up the supplemental estimate for final consideration and after being fully advised the Board determined that said estimate be corrected and completed so that when completed it should be in words and figures as follows:

State Institution Fund

Levies			Expenditures
Yr. Lev.	Yr. Col.	Amount	Year	Amount
1949	1950	$15,000	1950	$15,000

The Chairman of the Board and County Auditor were thereupon directed to properly certify and forward the supplemental estimate to the State Comptroller.

The foregoing action was taken on motion by Pinkham, seconded by Trowbridge, said motion being unanimously carried.

It was moved by Trowbridge, seconded by Fisher, that T. C. Weld be appointed to the Wright County Board of Review to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Harry Sumners, said appointment to be for the interim beginning immediately and extending to the time of the next ensueing meeting of the Wright County Conference Board. Motion carried.

Motion was made by Pinkham, seconded by Trowbridge, that the time within which the assessment of benefits on Drainage District No. 215 shall be made, originally set at December 5, 1949, be extended to December 19, 1949. Motion carried.

Minutes were read and approved.

On motion meeting adjourned to December 19, 1949.

T. J. HENRY, Chairman,
ROGER E. CHARLSON, Co. Auditor.

Darwin Busick

SISTER AT HOME . . .

Virginia went to the school in October, the head of the institution admitted three little boys handicapped in the same manner. While recognizing the magnitude of the task they're undertaking, the school officials are hopeful that they may be able to train their pitiful wards to understand instructions and —in due time—to speak.

The 16-year-old girl who looked after Virginia on her trip to Ames lives at Ankeny. She has been attending the school for eight years and in that time has learned to speak and largely overcome her disability of deafness. She will return with her young friend to Council Bluffs on Jan. 2.

Although Virginia's companion did not have the added handicap of faulty vision to contend with, Mr. and Mrs. Ver Helst were greatly impressed with what the school has been able to do for her. It struck a spark of hope in their hearts that someday their daughter, too, will be able to speak and that they will be able to communicate with her.

In the meantime, Russell is a happy little chap. Good St. Nick has answered his plea that Virginia be home for Christmas. Toys, after all, are sort of "kid stuff." When a fellow writes to an important man like Santa Claus, he should really make it count.

roncs Smother uffalo Center y 60-29 Count

Retain Share of League Lead as Swenson Hits 21

Belmond retained its joint nancy of the top rung of the orth Iowa ladder by smothering uffalo Center Tuesday evening, 0 to 29. The Broncos now have wo weeks to further polish their ame before meeting the defending loop champions here on Friay, Jan. 6. The preceding Tueslay they will have a warm-up ession, also on the home court, s hosts to Clarion.

Against the Bison, the Broncs kept the score doubled practically throughout the game. If the rest of the team had kept their hands in their pockets on offense, the scoring efforts of Sid Swenson and Duane Trager would have been more than enough to wallop Buffalo Center.

In the first half, Trager carried the bulk of the scoring load by pouring in 12 points, while Swenson loosened up with four baskets for eight points. After the rest period, Sid came back with a rush to add 13 more to his total while Duane slackened off with a six-point performance.

Jack Riggs also found the range in the last two quarters and racked up five fielders. Coach Jim Scott used his entire traveling squad of 12 men, but even with the reserves seeing a good deal of action in the final stanza the Broncos outscored the luckless Bison 19 to 11.

Things got off to a fairly slow start in the first quarter, but the timer's buzzer found Belmond with a two-to-one edge already established, 12-6. The Broncos hit the same pace in the second period to enjoy a 27-13 advantage at halftime.

The Boncs continued to ladle out points to the Bison at the rate of six-per-quarter to give Buffalo Center a total of 18 at the third-quarter mark, while Belmond boasted a total of 41.

As the Bronco subs got into action, Forward K. Thompson uncorked several two-pointers in the closing quarter and, abetted by L. Thompson at center, gave the Bison their biggest scoring period. But the rampaging Broncos hit an even faster face, to keep the score doubled.

The box score speaks for itself, where the Belmond offense is concerned. Swenson and Trager were just plain "hot", and in the last half Jack Riggs was equally so. On defense, Trager's rebounding was notable and Swenson, Riggs and Greenfield were bulwarks of strength.

Coach Scott reports, "The club as a whole played a regular bang-up ball game,"

Tuesday night saw Britt add another NI scalp to its belt with a 49-29 win over Northwood to join Belmond and Forest City at the top of the conference heap. With every other loop team having lost three times, the title chase has already narrowed down to a tri-cornered struggle.

In the freshman-sophomore game at Buffalo Center, the Junior Broncs set the pace for their elders by trimming the Bison Calves 27-13. In the first half the host five tallied only one field goal and a free throw as Belmond surged into a 17-3 lead.

Odean Severseike rammed in 11 points and Dave Helland six. The other Belmond scorers were Meyer and Larkin with three each and Busick and Madsen with two apiece.

There are many ways you and the children can join together for holiday fun. (Perhaps these ideas are already a part of your Christmas traditions and customs in the family.) You and the children may wish to make gifts for needy children, write messages to both old and young friends, sing carols, read the traditional Christmas stories around the lighted tree— perhaps acting the stories out—and play Christmas games after the hearty Christmas day meal.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM A. GARTZ

William August Gartz, the oldest son of Fred and Caroline Gartz, was born on December 11, 1861 in Antoniensdorf, West Prussia, Germany. At the age of 16 he and his sister left their native country and came to America. For seven years he was engaged in the barber trade in New York state. He came to Garner where he continued his trade for another seven years.

Here he met Margaretha Smidt to whom he was wed on Nov. 24, 1887, by the late Rev. Reemt Janssen. For 48 years they were privileged to share joy and sorrow together. To them were born seven daughters and one son.

In the spring of 1895 Mr. Gartz went into farming in the vicinity of Garner. Ten years later he bought a farm north of Palsville, which Mr. Gartz loved to call "the old home place." Here he farmed until he retired in the spring of 1918.

The remaining years were spent on a small acreage east of Belmond; at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Halfpap; and at the home of his grandson, Lyle Barkema. Mr. Gartz was very active in this community as carpenter, township assessor and school director.

He was preceded in death by a daughter, Minnie, in March, 1895 at six years of age; an infant daughter in 1897; another daughter, Mrs. Lydia Halfpap, on Feb. 27, 1927, at the age of 28 years; by Mrs. Gartz on April 10, 1935; and by his son Fred, on Sept. 21, 1947, at the age of 55.

He is survived by his four daughters—Mrs. Jennie Barkema and Mrs. Lena Halfpap, both of Belmond; Mrs. Bertha Halfpap of Goodell; and Mrs. Grace Waalkes, of Pacatonica, Ill. He also leaves 21 grandchildren, and 21 great grandchildren, as well as many other relatives and friends.

His children bear their father this testimony, "He was a kind and loving father, who lives on in the hearts and minds of his children." Mr. Gartz reached the age of 87 years, 11 months, and 25 days. Had he lived until the 11th of this month, he would have reached 88 years.

Funeral services were held Saturday from the home of Lyle Barkema and then at the Immanuel Reformed church, Rev. O. G. Poppen officiating. Following the services in the church, interment was made in the family lot adjoining the church.

Casket bearers were: Kenneth Ver Helst, Karl Kuhlers, Orval Thayer, Clifford Engh, Charles Hankes and Glen Schlichting. Relatives attending from a distance were Harold Barkema of Dayton, Ohio, Kenneth Garver of Richmond, Ind., William F. Gartz of Kansas City and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Talley and son, Max, of Dallas, Texas.

GEORGE RUKA

George Ruka, son of Justus and Margaret Ruka, was born March 7, 1863 at Woodman, Wis. He grew up in the vicinity of Boscobel, Wis., received his schooling there and was confirmed in the Lutheran faith April 6, 1879.

He came to Iowa to work, later returning to Woodman, where on March 4, 1891 he wed Amanda Jackson. On their wedding day they came to Goodell and have continued to live on their farm three miles southwest of town for the past 58 years. The Rukas were the parents of four children. Mr. Ruka was devoted to his church and family.

He had been in failing health the past three years and has been a most courageous and uncomplaining sufferer. The past year Mr. and Mrs. Ruka have lived at the Lauen Nursing home in Belmond, where he passed away Thursday, Dec. 8, at the age of 86 years, nine months and one day.

He is survived by his wife, three sons—Arthur, Harry, Raymond; and one daughter, Mrs. Harry Carpenter (Alma), all of Goodell; five grandchildren and seven great grandchildren. He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Adam Breckler of Fenamore, Wis., and Mrs. Judson Anderson of Woodman, Wis.; and a brother, Charles Ruka, also of Woodman.

Funeral services were held on Sunday at 1:30 p. m. at the Fulton Funeral Home in Belmond, and 2:00 p. m. at the Goodell Evangelical church, with the Rev. James T. Stewart officiating. The male quartet, J. J. Cook, Wilmer Burk of Belmond, V. E. Harris and Amos Hanson, sang two favorite hymns of the deceased, with Mrs. Cook at the piano.

Honorary casket bearers were Lee Shahan, Will Dieger of Belmond, Gus Okreug, Olander Sandberg, Monroe Graeber and Elmer Schneider. Casket bearers were Ed Haupt, Cal Thomas of Belmond, Ora Johnson, Henry Christenson, Torkel Mehus and Elmer Anderson.

The esteem in which the Rukas are held was made manifest by the friends who came, some considerable distances, for the services, and the many beautiful floral offerings and memorials. Burial was in the Goodell cemetery.

"Good Grooming" The Topic For Second Extension Lesson

Dates, Places Announced For Coming Group Study

The second extension lesson on "Planning the Wardrobe and Personal Design with Good Grooming," will be given by Mrs. Lettie Zuber, county home economist, in January.

"Figure, coloring, expressiveness, all three play important roles in this study of ourselves and our clothing," says Mrs. Zuber.. "When we consider only figure or coloring, we do not have a complete picture. We are leaving out the things that make us individuals. But if we include expressiveness (the impression we give others) we have the complete picture we want."

Every woman should be concerned, whether her age is 20, 25 or 70, to please others and to please herself, Mrs. Zuber declares. Her capacity for being charming has little to do with age. Mrs. Dora Smedly in her book "You're Only Young Twice" says: "Some women are fascinating at all ages, some never seem to get the hang of it. Some are late blooming varieties, who become more glamorous as they grow older.

Most of us, however, bloom early, make ourselves reasonably fascinating for a period, and then lose the formula. For every woman who has let herself slip, there is always the opportunity of a right about face, no matter how limited her time and finances."

Any homemaker who is interested in the lesson, whether or not she receives a card, is more than welcome to attend.

The meetings will start at 11:30 a. m. with a covered dish luncheon. Those attending are asked to bring a covered dish, sandwiches, and own table service. Anyone who can't arrange to come for noon is advised that the lesson will start at 1:15 p. m., and is welcome to come at that time.

The homes and dates are as follows: Jan. 3—Grant township—Ray Stevens. Jan. 5—Lincoln—Bernard Collins. Jan. 6—Lake—Alfred Pehl Jr. Jan. 9—Eagle Grove—George Christensen Jan. 10—Iowa—I. H. Ainslie. Jan. 11—Liberty—Helen Faulkedahl. Jan. 13—Boone—Raymond Paine.

Jan. 23—Vernon—Virgil Hess. Jan. 24—Dayton—Alfred Amunson. Jan. 25—Woolstock — Fred Evans. Jan. 26—Belmond—L. B. Oberhauser. Jan. 27—Norway—Gerhard Thompson. Jan. 30—Wall Lake—Jack Schroeder. Jan. 31—Blaine—Glenn Knox. Feb. 3—Pleasant—Paul Jenison.

Notices for all meetings will always be published in county newspapers and Farm Bureau Spokesman under Rural Events a week previous to each lesson.

Quality Soybean Seed Plentiful For Coming Year

Higher Hawkeye Variety Planting Foreseen in '50

Plenty of high quality soybean seed is on hand for planting next spring, according to C. R. Weber, Iowa experiment station agronomist at Iowa State college.

In contrast to the year before, hardly any seed of the 1949 crop was damaged. Weber credits better combining conditions and the fact that moisture content of the beans was about right to combine easily and yet not be injured.

Harvesting was completed a week to 10 days earlier this year and well ahead of frost so that bean seed in general will germinate well next spring if stored properly this winter.

Yields over the state were better than early anticipations in spite of general drouth conditions.

Average yield for the 1.3 to 1.4 million acres grown in the Hawkeye state was about 22 to 23 bushels per acre, Weber estimates. In 1948, the average yield was 23 bushels per acre, and the 1938-47 average yield was 19.5 bushels per acre.

Contributing factors to both the high yield and easy combining, according to Weber, were absence of weeds and wide acceptance by farmers of the newer high yielding varieties.

The soybean crop was relatively weed-free last year. Weber says that this was due primarily to the excellent weather conditions during the early part of the season which made it possible for farmers to get into fields to prepare good seed-beds and take out weeds with spike tooth harrows or weeders.

Lincoln and Hawkeye beans made up the bulk of the acreage. About 75 percent of the Iowa bean acreage was in Lincoln, about 15 percent in Hawkeye and 5 percent planted to other varieties.

Weber looks for a considerable increase in Hawkeye acreage next year. Hawkeye is recommended to replace all of the acreage planted to Richland and to supplant some of the Lincoln acreage. Weber says that it will replace Lincoln in the northern section of the state, especially if prospects are for a late year. Hawkeye was first released to farmers for seed increase purposes in 1948.

Farmers who grew beans say in general that yield of beans this year was relatively higher than yield of corn. Corn was hit by borers, the big October wind storm and drouth, and the average yield according to the November Crop and Livestock Report was 49 bushels. Farmers figure the yield ratio between the two crops favored soybeans and some expect to grow a few more soybeans next year.

Weber says there will be quite a shift to soybeans if corn acreage is cut much. He cautions farmers, however, not to shift all acres taken out of corn to another intertilled crop but to step up their sod crop acreage for good soil management.

DOWS COWS END TEST

Brattleboro, Vt. — During the last test year, the 16-cow herd of registered Holstein-Friesians owned by G. J. DeSotel, Dows, Iowa produced an average of 391 pounds of butterfat and 10,773 pounds of milk in the official Herd Improvement Registry program of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

Milking was done two times daily and testing was supervised by Iowa State college in cooperation with the national Holstein headquarters.

Records Show Well-Managed Flock Brings Farmer High Poultry Profit

A summary of records of flock owners cooperating with the Iowa State college extension service in a record demonstration flock program shows that chickens are money-makers on the farm.

Average net profit was $2.11 per bird and $594.12 per flock. Average size of flock was 281 birds. Production per bird averaged 207 eggs—nearly three dozen above the state average.

When computed in terms of wages per hour each flock owner earned $1.94 per hour for the 307 hours spent in caring for his flock of layers.

The average cost amounted to 24 cents per dozen eggs, which allows 19 cents for labor income per dozen. After allowing 50 cents per hour for time spent, the average flock returned almost 30 cents for every dollar invested in the enterprise.

W. R. Whitfield, extension poultryman at the college and in charge of summarizing the records, points out, however, that some flocks did much better than others.

The 10 high-profit flocks averaged 223.5 eggs per birds and yielded their owners an average of $4.02 per bird, or $999.42 for the year's work. Average size of the 10 high-profit flock is 249 birds.

In contrast, the 10 low-profit flocks, which averaged 232 birds, produced an average of 189 eggs per hen and made a net profit of only 51 cents per hen. The low-profit flocks made their owners $93.84 for the year's work.

Whitfield says that much of the difference in profit between the two groups of flocks is a result of rate of production, feed requirement per dozen of eggs and mortality. High-profit flocks produced an average of 34.5 more eggs per hen than low-profit flocks.

The top 10 flocks required 5.4 pounds of feed per dozen of eggs compared with 6.9 pounds for low-profit flocks. Mortality ran 24.9 percent in low-profit flocks and only 18.1 percent in high-profit flocks.

Management affects those three items, according to Whitfield. High-profit flocks were managed better. They had better houses; were confined the year around to reduce mortality; were allowed to select their own feeds from a 26-per cent protein concentrate, whole oats and shelled corn self-fed in separate troughs; and required less time and labor.

In memory of our loving husband, son and brother, George Groen, who passed away nine years ago, Dec. 26, 1940.

A silent thought, a secret tear
Keep his memory ever dear.
He bade no one a last farewell,
He said good-bye to none.
His loving heart ceased to beat
And before we knew it he was gone.
God took him home as was His will
But in our hearts he liveth still.

Board Passes Approval On Utility Assessments

At the regular meeting of the county board of supervisors held Tuesday at Clarion, the members approved the abstract of assessments of public utilities in Wright county, as certified by the State Tax Commission.

The abstract shows 1949 assessments were made on only two utilities in incorporated Belmond. Value of Central States Electric company's property in this community was assessed at $65,079, including land, structures and equipment.

Total mileage of lines strung by the Central Telephone company out of the Belmond exchange, upon which the value of all the concern's property in this area was based, was assessed at $52,300.

In the course of their meeting, the supervisors rescinded the 15 per cent assessment levied two weeks earlier on Drainage District 209—in Lincoln township—and set a new assessment of just five per cent.

FOUR RECEIVE FINES OF $300 APIECE FOR DRIVING WHILE DRUNK

Four men were heard Monday by Judge John M. Schaupp in district court at Clarion on charges of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. All had waived arraignment and pled guilty—and fines of $300 and costs were levied against each defendant.

Included among the men heard was Morris Brink of Albert Lea, Minn., who was arrested on Highway 69 in Belmond about two weeks ago by Officer Harry Lamb. Brink chose to "lay out" his fine in the form of 90 days in the county jail, with credit given for time in jail awaiting hearing.

The same fines were levied against—and the same decision on "payment" was made—by Melvin Johnson of Hampton and Loynes R. Golden, also of Albert Lea. They, too, had already spent some days in jail prior to pleading guilty and waiving arraignment to get an immediate hearing.

Francis P. Mersch of Eagle Grove, the fourth man heard on the OMVI charge, paid his $300 fine and costs. The Iowans' drivers licenses were suspended for 60 days and their liquor books ordered surrendered for cancellation.

Mello Maid jumped into the lead in the roll-off, and by the time it was anchorman "Dutch's" turn, nothing less than a trio of strikes would keep the fat out of the fire for the Clothiers. So what does "Dutch" do? Yep, xxx marked the spot where Mello Maid's hopes went down for the third time.

Herman Morgan, whose closg out farm sale ad appeared in e Independent a couple of eeks ago, popped into the office st press day to say, "Thanks lot" for the big turn-out and od bidding that resulted from e advertisement. Herman was ighly satisfied with the job the d did for him and considered the oney very well spent.

Bear that in mind, you farm friends of ours who have sales coming up. On a good-sized sale, the cost of a well laid-out ad can easily boost your gross by 10 or 15 times the price of the space.

One thing we don't understand n regard to professional basketall is how the play-for-pay boys nd time for scoring between free hrows. In the Christmas Night ame between Waterloo and Inianapolis, the whistle tooted for ouls 90 (that's right, NINETY) imes.

The host Hawks were called for 41 infractions and the Olympians for 49. Waterloo—the winner 97-to-93—snagged 43 points from the charity lane and Indianapolis, 31. Each team missed on 15 efforts.

Incidentally, a pro cager must ave to cut an adversary's throat o be expelled from the game. One Olympian had SEVEN fouls, ive had six apiece and three Hawks each had an even halfozen . . . Should add up to a lot f action, but--ugh! --the blood!

You may have noted that Billy Rose is enjoying a reprieve in he Indepedent (of six-weeks' uration), in spite of our threat to drop his column if no readers rged us to continue the feature.

We felt somewhat vindicated this week when we received a nice card from Mrs. R. E. Ferguson, saying, "We DO enjoy Billy Rose's column very much. Your paper was good before, but with this added bit of spice it is a little better."

Thank you for the kind words, Mrs. Ferguson. Personally, we ike Billy, too.

The volume of Christmas mailing zoomed to a new high at the Belmond post office this year, according to Postmaster C. J. Brady.

Last year, from Dec. 13 through the 23rd, 54,500 letters and cards went through the cancelling machine; this year the total went up to 61,000 for the same period.

That either indicates that Belmond is burgeoning or that people are friendlier than ever before. Both, we hope.

We received one Santa Claus letter too late for publication in last week's paper. In the missive, Clarkie McNeal requested, "a license and ping-pong ballgun. And a box of red bullets." We wired the information to the North Pole and hope it was received by St. Nick in time.

MRS. UNDERKOFLER DIES

Funeral services for Nora Underkofler, 86, were held Tuesday morning at St. Francis church, with Rev. R. A. Ormsby officiating. Mrs. Underkofler was born Oct. 11, 1863 and passed away last Friday. Fulton Funeral home was in charge of the funeral and burial was in St. Francis cemetery.

Children May Give Toys to Tots
To Go To Europe

Belmond's American Legion Auxiliary is participating in the "Tide of Toys" campaign through which American children will be enabled to send gifts of toys to the less fortunate little folk of Europe.

To make the project a real lesson in giving, Belmond youngsters are invited to give one of their new Christmas toys for distribution through the "TOT" program. Each toy is to bear a note from the giver to the child who will receive it.

Mrs. Jean Bamford, Legion Auxiliary president, says that all toys should be left either at Jensen's Grocery or at C. C. Benson's office this Friday or Saturday, so they can be packaged over the weekend and shipped on Tuesday..

"We realize," says Mrs. Bamford, "that giving of a new toy rather than a cast-off entails some sacrifice on a child's part; but it is just that which makes the "TOT" program particularly significant"

Herman Schultz Sells Business; Retiring Jan. 1

Has Operated Drug Store Since September of 1904

Belmond's oldest business firm will pass into new hands next week when Herman Schultz turns over possession of his drug store to Don J. Nolan of Fort Dodge, who has purchased the establishment

It was 45 years ago in September that Mr. Schultz came to this community from Ackley and bought into partnership in the drug store, then owned by Tom Kenefick. A year later he bought Mr. Kenefick's interest and has been sole owner of Schultz Drug company since that time.

Mr. Schultz says only about two men who were Belmond merchants at the time of his arrival here are still around—Oscar Jacobson and H. N. Hill, neither of whom are actively operating business concerns now

The change in active business personnel in the community has been little greater than that which has taken place in the drug store with the passing years. A graduate of the Drake School of Pharmacy, Mr. Schultz did quite an extensive prescription business in those early years. Of late, he says, the number of prescriptions the store is called upon to fill is relatively small.

While Mr. Schultz has never endeavored to turn his store into a combination drug-grocery-and-hardware business, like many "modern" drug stores, new lines have established themselves as profitable.

As an example the retiring druggist cites cosmetics and allied products. He adds that accounting for Social Security, excise tax, sales tax, etc. has made a merchant's life considerably more complicated than it was when he first entered business.

Mr. Schultz has no specific plans for the future other than to "take things easy." A former golf enthusiast, he has been able to indulge in this sport very little in recent years. He owns a cottage at Clear Lake where he and Mrs. Schultz will no doubt spend many pleasant days during the resort season.

Mr. Schultz reports that Mr. Nolan, the new store owner, is a registered pharmacist and has been working for a Fort Dodge drug store the past two years. Previously he operated a drug store of his own at Mapleton.

Mr. Nolan is married and he and his wife have two daughters, one about eight and the other three. He has purchased the Dr. E. A. Watson house and is presently preparing to move his family to Belmond. He will take over active management of the drug store next Tuesday.

Glen J. Bailey, who was an assistant to Mr. Bleeker at Iowa Falls, is accompanying the latter in his move to Belmond and will assist in managing the business, which will operate hereafter as Bleeker's Recreation Hall.

Dick TerHark, who has been "Kopp's" right hand man at the pool hall, is going to work for Central States Electric company as electrician at their General Mills booster station. He replaces Marston Nelson, who recently purchased the Belmond Cafe.

Mussell Chevrolet Grand Opening, Showing of New Models Next Week

THE NEW HOME of Mussell Chevrolet company, on Highway 69, is shown above. Construction started in September and the garage was ready for occupancy only a few days ago. Shown in front are Lee Mussell (right), proprietor, and Sol Krass, salesman.

Lee Mussell, proprietor of the Mussell Chevrolet company, is planning to combine the grand opening of his recently completed garage with the showing of the new 1950 Chevrolet a week from Saturday, Jan. 7.

The firm moved to its new home this week and is now doing business in the 44x84-foot structure on Highway 69. The building provides much more work and display space than the former garage on Main street and is completely fireproodf. It is of brick and tile construction with steel roof.

The show room has space for two cars and the shop can accommodate 10 units at a time. To the south of the garage is a graveled area which will be used to display used cars.

The garage will not do body and fender work but will specialize in general overhaul and repair. A wash rack has already been installed and greasing facilities will be added soon.

Mr. Mussell obtained the Chevrolet agency here just a year ago January and is pleased that he now will be able to give his customers improved service. Personnel of the garage, besides the owner, includes: Sol Krass, salesman; Elmer Wineman, mechanic; Bill Summers and Dick Lowenberg, shop helpers.

Two Thefts Here Solved By Arrest Of AWOL Soldier

Alfred Thorson, 17-year-old AWOL soldier whose home is at Humboldt, is in the county jail at Clarion awaiting further investigation in connection with a series of break-ins and thefts that included two Belmond filling stations.

Accompanied by Richard Untraur, 20, of Nevada, Thorson early last Thursday morning broke into Finn's Skelly station and Porter's Standard. At the former, $12 in change, $15 in checks and the cash register were stolen; and from Porter's a flashlight, three quarts of oil and $1.30 in change.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Blecker reports that the two young men were picked up on suspicion by the night officer on duty at Garner about 4:00 a. m on Thursday. The car was found to be loaded with loot. The pair had stopped at Goodell on the way north and entered the D-X station, where they picked up eight cartons of cigarets.

In the course of questioning, Thorson admitted guilt in a long list of thefts, including 10 or 15

Council Acts to Delay Sewer Job Till Spring

At a special meeting of the city council held last Thursday evening, a resolution was adopted permitting R. E. Johnson of Sioux City to complete installation of the Third Street N. E. sewer next spring after the frost has gone out of the ground.

Late delivery of some 21-inch tile needed in the project threw the contractor behind schedule and about two blocks of the sewer at the east end remain to be completed. The job, originally, was to have been completed by the end of the year but the earth is now frozen to a depth that makes it impossible to finish the work at this time.

The council resolution provides that the project be completed within 10 days after frost is out of the ground next spring, that date to be determined by Rowat and Murray, engineers of the job.

VFW Delivers 33 Christmas Boxes

Thirty-three boxes, loaded with good things to eat, were delivered last Friday afternoon by the Veterans of Foreign Wars to local families whose prospect of enjoying traditional Christmas dinners appeared dim. →

The bulk of the food was contributed by members of the organization, themselves. Their project was abetted by Tip Top Market, which gave a box of apples and one of mixed nuts; Belmond Bakery, which provided bread; Tracy Dairy, which supplied the milk; and Cooperative Creamery, which gave butter for each box.

This is the second year that the VFW, assisted by its Auxiliary, has seen to it that families that might otherwise be on short rations on Christmas Day were able to enjoy a genuine holiday feast. Chicken, and "all the fixin's", was provided in every box.

Names of families to benefit by the VFW's generosity were provided by Margaret Bailey of the county welfare office, School Nurse Hermia Shefveland and Dr. S. P. Leinbach.

Helland-Long Will Hold Annual "Family Party" Next Thursday, Jan. 5

The annual free "Family Party" sponsored by Helland and Long, local International Harvester dealers, is scheduled for next Thursday, Jan. 5, at the Belmond high school auditorium starting at 8:00 p. m.

"Lunk" Helland says that a stage show including five big-time-acts has been engaged, featuring Jackie Jay as master of ceremonies. The program, described in an advertisement elsewhere in the paper, will offer a magic act, roller-skating duo, trampoline comedy act and an accordionist.

In addition, there will be moving pictures in color, including reels of comedy, travel, and of an educational nature. The show is entirely free and has been drawing jam-packed houses wherever it has appeared.

"Lem" Long offers the reminder, "There will be no sales talks. This party is 100 per cent entertainment."

Bronco Rating On State Basis Will Get Test

Battle With Forest City Will Reveal True Ability

Whether or not Belmond high school really "has something" in basketball this year, measured on a statewide rather than a sectional basis, should be determined next week when the Broncos take on Forest City.

The Indians stamped themselves as a really top-flight team last week, even in defeat. They dropped a close one to the Boone Toreadors, 36-32, but the winners are conceded to have one of the finest teams in the state. Undefeated thus far this season, Boone has a 3-0 record in the rugged Central Iowa conference and a four-point loss to this outfit is no disgrace.

Forest City has also been beaten by St. Joseph's, Mason City, 31-27, but there is no question but what the Indians are the classiest crew that Belmond will meet in regular play this season. Therefore, much hangs in the balance when the Broncs set their sights on Forest City a week from Friday on the local court. On Tuesday night Belmond tackles Clarion here, but the Broncos should throw the Cowboys without too much difficulty if they play up to standard.

Britt, undefeated along with Forest City and Belmond in North Iowa play to date, exposed its vulnerability last Thursday evening when it bowed to Klemme, 42-31.

Of course, this margin was only a point greater than that by which the Broncos lost their opener to the Shamrocks, but Belmond has improved very considerably since that initial loss.

So, at this point, it appears that the scrap for this year's NIC crown will be between the Indians and the Broncos; and next week's tilt will to a large extent determine who the ultimate winner will be.

Reduced From 1948 Total by Matter Of 31 Mills; "Average" Tax Lower

Country School District Levies Generally Higher

Property tax millages for 1949, released Tuesday by County Assessor F. Ross Henry will give many a homeowner a pleasant surprise, even when applied to the increased valuation of his property. In Belmond, the total millage dropped from 79.264 in 1948 to 48.1921. Total valuations were upped from $1,161,902 to $1,901,064.

While valuations, on the average, increased by a little over 63.6 per cent, the millage last year was approximately 64.5 per cent higher than this year—which means that the "average" property tax payer is actually a mite better off than before.

It would be misleading to suggest that the ordinary piece of residential property took a full 63.6 per cent increase in valuation, since most residential boosts were less and a good many business properties were re-evaluated at a larger per cent of increase than that. But for the sake of illustration, take a home that had a $2,400 valuation in 1948 and assume that its valuation WAS increased by the average percentage of 63.6—which would make its current valuation $3,928.

In 1948 the tax on it would have been $190.23—and if the owner were eligible for homestead exemption, the net would have been $130.23. For 1949, even with the higher valuation, the tax would be $189.29 — or with homestead exemption off—$126.79.

Although total millage in most Wright county taxing districts will be lower this year than last, the rural taxpayers in areas having a considerable number of tuition students attending town schools are going to find their taxes higher. This is because the town schools previously have been allowed to charge back to the townships only $17 for high school students per month and only $11 for grade students.

This year they are allowed to charge back the actual per-student cost, which averages $21 to $22 per month. The net result is going to be heavier taxes where a sizeable number of tuition students is involved.

In taxing districts such as Belmond Corporation, where school askings are materially the same

NEW YEAR'S CLOSING

Belmond's merchants will take advantage of the second "long weekend" holiday in two weeks by closing up shop on 6:00 p. m. this coming Saturday — New Year's Eve—and the stores will remain closed on Monday in official observance of New Year's Day.

HOSPITAL RECEIVES GIFT OF 50 DOLLARS; FIRST CONTRIBUTION

Last week the first contribution was turned in toward the construction of Belmond's new hospital, although a permanent organization to direct the project will not be formed until the previously announced mass meeting is held at the high schood auditorium on Jan. 9.

The initial gift, in the amount of $50, came from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haegele of Lester, Iowa, parents of the late Mrs. B. C. Hewlett.

When they heard through Mr. Hewlett that the project was afoot, they wished to contribute in the memory of their daughter, and in appreciation of care she received at Steele Memorial Hospital during her final illness.

In order to attract as large attendance as possible to the public meeting, the temporary hospital committee plans to send letters of personal invitation to all mail box holders in and around Rowan, Meservey, Alexander and Goodell and to Kanawha and its route territory in Wright county and adjacent to the line. Some 1,600 to 1,800 letters will be mailed. Boxholders on Belmond rural routes will be invited in similar fashion to attend the meeting.

Residents of Belmond proper are not being individually invited because of the high per cent of coverage the Independent has in town, but the committee has asked that a cordial, general invitation be issued by the paper to all residents of this community.

Since individuals in Belmond and vicinity have a personal stake in proposed hospital, the committee hopes that as many as possible are making plans now to keep the evening of Jan. 9 free so they can attend the meeting and take part in organizing the permanent planning board.

BLECKER MOVES IN

Deputy Sheriff Bob Blecker on Tuesday of this week moved into the "jail house" as Sheriff Roy Wilson's family left to make their home in Waterloo. Bob will assume "Lefty's" post as sheriff the end of this week. Bob says he has not yet selected a deputy to serve as his assistant.

Mumps on Decline
Chicken Pox
Now Taking Over

The autumn mumps epidemic having just about run is course (only three or four youngsters are still out of school with that ailment), School Nurse Hermia Shefveland is eyeing with considerable discouragement the growing list of student absentees due to chicken pox.

She says the pox outbreak offers a good demonstration as to how contagious diseases can quickly get a foothold in crowded class rooms. One youngster in kindergarten visited several weeks ago out of town in a home in which there was an undiagnosed case of chicken pox. Two weeks later, to the day, and the Belmond tot was bedecked with spots.

In the meantime, he had spent several days in class while the progress of his own pox was at the infectious stage. Last week 11 other kindergarten tykes were broken out—along with a sister of one of them, in second grade.

Just what this will lead to, Miss Shefveland doesn't know. She's hoping against hope that early identification of new cases will be possible so the victims can be kept from school and spread of the disease can be kept to a minimum.

Visiting around Iowa

New Year Resolutions

Cousin Ed got his 1950 calendar from the coal company yesterday. As he hung it up in the kitchen, he said something that struck me as pretty sound . . .

. . . "Too many people find it easy to think up New Year Resolutions for the other fellow, but not for themselves."

Yes, it would be a better world if we'd ALL make one big Resolution for 1950, something like this—

"Resolved: that I will try to practice tolerance toward the other fellow . . . and respect his right to HIS ideas and way of life, just as I expect him to respect MINE."

Sure, I think Ed's political ideas are crazy. But maybe he thinks mine are, too. That's Democracy. My Uncle Joe likes coffee, while I enjoy a temperate glass of beer. But each is entitled to his choice.

If we'd all make a Resolution to practice tolerance and respect for the other person's ideas, we'd make 1950 a better, happier year for everyone.

Mac: "Hold on. I said, 'will be.' We're takin' this old battleship out, and replacing it with a modern Lennox Heating System! And a Lennox is so compact it will take up just a tiny corner down here. We'll have plenty of space for a dandy play room."

Jack: "Go on—and I suppose you're inferring a Lennox can save anybody lots of extra space, and still keep 'em warm and comfortable. You're probably a special case!"

Mac: "Special, my foot! Why, there are complete Lennox systems that can be installed in small recesses, inside walls, beneath floors, even up in attics! What more d'you want?"

Jack: "Not a thing, pal—except the name and address of my nearest Lennox dealer.

school houses in Minnesota and northern Iowa, tourist lodgings at Humboldt, and business firms in a number of other places ranging as far south as Des Moines.

At Garner it was discovered that the '41 Chevrolet Thorson was driving, and which bore Minnesota license plates, had been stolen at Goldfield on Dec. 6. Earlier the same day he had stolen a Ford at Eagle Grove but had "burned up" the motor driving it to Goldfield.

Before coming to Belmond last Thursday, Thorson and Untraur had entered a school house three miles south of the Greyhound station on Highway 3. Their operations in Belmond were discovered through the checks obtained at Finn's station.

Finn's cash register — badly damaged—was discovered north of town near the gravel pit where it had been thrown from the car when the youths had been unable to open it.

About the same time that Thorson and Untraur were apprehended, Merle Burns, 17, of Nevada was picked up in Cherokee for car theft. Investigation revealed that he had been with Thorson when the Chevrolet was stolen at Goldfield.

He was brought to Clarion for questioning and then returned to Cherokee, where he has since confessed to a whole series of car thefts.

By agreement of the sheriffs from the various counties involved in Thorson's operations, Untraur was released from custody last Friday. Deputy Blecker explained that the youth was mentally retarded and the officers felt that his worst crime was falling in with the wrong kind of company.

1949 Property Tax . . .

for both 1948 and '49, a large drop in total millage has resulted, reflecting the jump in valuations.

The levy for Belmond Independent School budget is $70,856 for for 1949, compared to $71,099 for '48. This enabled school millage to be cut from 53.27 to 32.953. Corporation Belmond asked $19,337 in '48 and only $18,112 in '49, allowing for a millage drop from 16.58 to 9.473.

Further accounting for the over-all millage decrease in Belmond, the county millage rate was lowered by 2.452 mills this year; and since the state legislature decided to pay the '49 cost of the veteran's bonus out of surplus, the prescribed millage of 1.95 for this purpose was not required.

Actual over-all millage in Belmond for '49 totaled 50.154, but tax on monies and credits permitted a 1.9619 mill deduction to bring the payable millage to the quoted figure of 48.1921. In 1948, monies and credits knocked 3.166 mills off of the gross millage of 82.43.

The Belmond Township school district levy illustrates the tax increase in districts having quite a number of tuition-paying students. Although the school millage in '49 is 12.076 and in '48 was 14.01, this year's millage will bring $30,962 compared to last year's $23,996.

Total-millage comparisons for townships adjacent to Belmond, showing '48 totals first and then those for '49, are: Belmond township—30.565 down to 24.07; Pleasant—30.805 down to 23.399; Grant——29.865 down to 24.111; Iowa—24.425 up to 24.994. Rowan millage dropped from 61.24 to 48.206. Millages for other communities near Belmond were not available.

The above township millages all represented actual increased levies, ranging from about $2,000 in Pleasant to nearly $7,000 in Belmond. In each case, increase school askings offer the explanation.

Following are comparisons of property valuations for taxing districts in and around Belmond, showing the 1949 increases:

Corporation Belmond—$1,161,902 to $1,901,064; Belmond Independent School District—$1,323,508 to $2,150,223; Iowa Township School District (excluding Rowan and Alexander school districts)—$375,263 to $582,188; Grant Township School District—$1,427,593 to $1,958,857; Pleasant Township School District—$1,263,350 to $1,775,041; Belmond Township School District — $1,712,764 to $2,563,901.

EFFORTS OF BRONCOS AT FREE THROW LINE POOR BUT IMPROVING

On the basis of performances from the free throw line in Belmond's first six basketball games, it is highly to be hoped that the Broncos never find themselves in a position which requires accuracy on charity tosses to determine a verdict. Up to date, the Belmond cagers have succeeded in netting only 42 out of 111 gratis attempts at the hoop.

Jack Riggs is the only member of the Bronco squad who has been able to sink as many free throws as he's missed—and his record is an even .500, with 14 hits out of 28 tries.

Duane Trager has a .410 average with 12 out of 29; Sid Swenson has hit for .375 with three out of eight; Dick Kriens has sunk four out of 11 for .360; Don Faris five out of 15 for .333; and Rollie Kinseth four out of 14 for .285. Berns, Greenfield and Watermiller have missed three, two and one, respectively, with no "hits" so far.

Coach Jim Scott says he's been requiring daily practice on free throw efforts. Against Buffalo Center the Broncos hit six out of 13 attempts for a 46 per cent average. That's a step-up from the season's average of 38 per cent, so maybe the practice will pay off in due time.

Men's Top Bowling Score Put at 255 by Dorenkamp

It's becoming more than a lttle difficult to make a "record high score" stick at the Bowl-Mor Lanes these days. Last Friday the top score of 254 was posted by Harold Nelson. It lasted for exactly a day. On Saturday Don Dorenkamp cut loose with a 255 for his bowling brethren to shoot at.

Mary Gordon is having a one-way race with herself to see how high she can boost the record series total for women. In league play last week she banged the maples for a total of 545 to erase her former best mark of 492. Her best game of 193 still fell short of Billy Stokke's high single game of 202, however, so Mary still has something to work for.

Season Ticket Holders Enter by West Door at Clarion and F. C. Games

Ceabern Squires, high school principal, asks all season ticket holders—both student and adult —who plan to attend the basketball game with Clarion here next Tuesday evening to enter the west door of the gymnasium.

In view of the large crowd expected at the game, it is believed that admittance will be expedited if this request is observed.

The same policy will be followed for the Forest City game, a week from this Friday. With the North Iowa conference leadership at stake in this game, many followers of the Indians are expected to be on hand—so early arrival, as well as entry by the correct door, will be much to the point, Mr. Squires predicts.

Farm Loan Association Pays Dividends of 10%; $12,872 to Loan Holders

A special 10 per cent dividend is now being paid to members of the Cornbelt National Farm Loan association of Clarion.

Jay Vendelboe, secretary-treasurer, announced that checks totaling more than $12,872.00 are being mailed to 300 farmers in Wright and Hancock counties, who have Federal Land Bank loans through the cooperative association.

This is the second dividend paid in the last 12 months. A regular five per cent dividend was paid last July.

Mr. Vendelboe explained that the dividends were possible because of dividends paid to the association by the Federal Land Bank of Omaha, which is owned entirely by the Cornbelt and other National Farm Loan associations in a four-state-area.

Directors of the association at Clarion are: M. L. Thompson, Kanawha, president; E. Bock, Belmond, vice president; Harry Christensen, Goldfield; Nick Christians, Kanawha; and Ira Meyer of Eagle Grove.

Too Little for Brains' Idea Is Hindering Research Medicine

By BILLY ROSE

Today, I'd like to tell you about a talk I had with a doctor who is doing research work at one of the New York cancer clinics. He made me promise not to use his name because he was afraid he might be blacklisted by the foundation which pays his salary.

I began by asking him to sketch in his pre-research career.

"The usual 10-year grind," he said. "Four years of college, four more at medical school, a year as intern, and a year in residency training."

"What made you go into research?"

Billy Rose

"Like a lot of young doctors," he said, "I couldn't get used to sitting by while a patient died simply because I didn't know anything else I could do for him. Every time I looked up into the eyes of relatives gathered around the bed of a man in the last stages of cancer, I told myself that my job wasn't to go on using the hit-or-miss techniques but to get into a laboratory and help find the real cure."

"How did you go about getting started?"

"I made the usual applications," said the M.D., "but I soon found the hospitals and universities had no funds to hire research men, and that I couldn't get a job unless a foundation paid my salary. To complicate things, most foundations won't give you a fellowship unless you first have a job. In addition, it's almost impossible to get a grant until you've published a certain number of scientific papers and, of course, you can't publish such papers until you've worked in a laboratory and had a chance to do research worth writing about.

"It finally boiled down to this—I could work for nothing in a cancer laboratory, or I could take a job paying $120 a week doing research for a cosmetic outfit. Well, I had just gotten married and was ready to settle for the money, but my wife wouldn't hear of it—she went out and got an office job and made me stick to my test tubes."

"HOW LONG did you work for free?"

"About a year," said the doctor, "and then the head of the medical center—a very decent guy—squeezed me onto the payroll at $28.87 a week."

"You could have earned more washing dishes."

"We managed to get by," said the medico, "but the following year my wife had a baby and had to quit her job. After that, it was pretty rugged. As, for instance, we couldn't afford to buy a crib, and the youngster had to sleep in a donated baby carriage.

"Somehow, though, we pulled our way through, and by the end of the following year I had gotten a couple of research pieces published. With these to back me up, I applied for a fellowship paying $3,000 a year."

"Minus withholding tax, I presume."

"It may not sound like much, but I felt like John D., Jr. when the grant came through," said the doctor. "Last year, I went through the application rigmarole again—275 typed pages—and this time I got the full $3,600.

"WHAT DO YOU DO to earn all that money?" I said.

"I'm in charge of three cancer projects and help on half a dozen others. On the side, I run a throat clinic, work in the wards and give seminars."

"Any chance of a raise?"

"I'm afraid not," said the doctor, "and, as far as fellowships are concerned, I'm getting near the end of the line. I'm 29 now, and the foundations don't like to make grants to men over 30."

"There's always the job in the industrial lab." I said.

"It may come to that," said the M. D., "but I hope not. No matter what it pays, I want to keep plugging away on cancer. It seems a lot more important than developing a new shade of face powder . . ."

The day after our talk, I happened to pass the medical skyscraper in which the young doctor works, and I noticed that an additional wing was under construction. Dozens of steel workers, bricklayers and carpenters—all averaging around a hundred a week—were getting in each other's way

Over the half-finished entrance was a space which looked as if it might eventually be filled with a block of marble on which a fitting inscription would be carved.

"I know what it ought to be," I said to myself. "'Too much for bricks, too little for brains.'"

To All — A Successful Take-Off In 1950, And Happy Landings

Each year provides a fresh starting point, which can be utilized either as a spring-board to higher achievements or as the head of a slide to indifferent and uninspired performance. We hope that it will witness the fulfillment of all worthy aspirations and will see all good hopes crowned with success, throughout this struggling world, over this ambitious land and among all our friends and neighbors.

Specifically, we'd like to record a few wishes for the year 1950, as follows:

To the weary world—new strides toward universal good will and understanding.

To Uncle Sam—a balanced budget and a return to financial sanity.

To this community and the surrounding countryside—Godspeed to the new hospital project.

To our farming friends—rain when you need it, sun when you want it, a sudden mortality among the corn borer population—and an absence of "ill winds."

To the city of Belmond—election of a municipal administration in March that will launch this community on a new era of planned progress, to make for a bigger, better and more beautiful Belmond in the years to come.

To the school children—down-to-earth study of the problem of school reorganization, with improved facilities, greater efficiency and a better break for students and teachers, alike, as the goal.

To the Bronco basketeers— a clean slate for the balance of the season and good success in the coming basketball tournaments.

To the VFW and American Legion—record memberships for each, to further their good works.

To Supt. Don Faris—rapid recovery from his injuries and an early return to active duty.

To each and every one of you — good health and contentment, without which achievement is empty and prosperity fruitless.
